Relay for Life of Cherokee raises money, hope in fight against cancer

Tears were shed. Feet became sore. Eyes grew tired. But, no one's spirit could be dampened as teams of walkers joined together for the Relay for Life of Cherokee event held Friday, July 27 at the Cherokee Indian Fairgrounds.

"If you think you're alone, you're not," said Shawn Crowe, the event's emcee who lost his father to cancer. "Today, I want all of you survivors that are here and everybody that is here to know that you are not alone."

Crowe added that hope is the most important thing in fighting cancer. "My dad never lost his faith the entire time he was sick."

Fourteen teams raised over $18,000 at the event. The Mighty Mighty Fighters team led the way with $1,703 raised followed by the Cancer Crushers $1,541 and the Native Honey Badgers $1,004. Alissa Lambert was the top individual fundraiser at $381 followed by Autumn Long $146 and Jasmine Lambert $134.

"We're all here for the same purpose," said Principal Chief Michell Hicks. "As we go through life, we never know what's in front of us...but, continuing to be a strong person, a strong family and a strong community is how we deal with it."

"I deal with a lot of situations, and some are easier than others, but I will tell you that cancer doesn't discriminate; young, old, white, black, Native American...it doesn't discriminate."

Dr. Jo Blaylock, Harrah's Cherokee Casino & Hotel vice president for human relations and external communications, said, "Unfortunately, we have all been affected by someone having cancer. My dad passed away in 2001 from esophageal cancer. His diagnosis and ensuing battle were not easy."

She said the support from the community and the American Cancer Society helped her family get through the ordeal. Harrah's Cherokee has partnered with the American Cancer Society in western North Carolina for the past twelve years.

"We hope that one day cancer will be a disease of the past."

Robin Swayney, event co-chair, thanked all of the volunteers for the event. "We all worked very hard on this event, and thank you to everyone who came out to support Relay for Life of Cherokee."

The walk itself began with a Survivor's Lap led by Nell Crowe, Julie Wilnoty and Lucille Wolfe. That was followed by a lap honoring all caregivers, and then the walk started.

Teams walked well into the night.

Healthy Heart Initiative recognizes participants

The participants in the Healthy Heart Initiative (HHI) were recognized for their accomplishments at a luncheon held at Harrah's Cherokee Casino & Hotel on Wednesday, July 25.

"As we all know, Type 2 diabetes is a disease that affects not only every part of our body, but it also affects the people surrounding us," Chenoa Gass, RN, HHI staff, told the group. "I'm very happy today, that in spite of this, each of you has made steps to help defeat this disease."

"Today we honor and celebrate you in all of your efforts to improving your health and making a difference in not only your lives but the people surrounding you as well."

Gass related that there are now a total of 101 HHI participants. A total of 81 participants were enrolled in the program when various health data was taken recently to see how treatment targets were being met.

The following are goals for each participant: A1c lower than 7 percent, blood pressure lower than 130/80, LDL level lower than 100 and triglycerides level lower than 150.

At the beginning of the program, a total of 32 met the A1c goal, 36 met the blood pressure goal, 49 met the LDL goal and 33 met the triglycerides goal. That has increased to 34 for A1c, 55 for blood pressure, 57 for LDL and 41 for triglycerides.

"Each and every individual in this room has made improvements in their blood pressure, A1c, weight and cholesterol," said Gass.

Each participant present at Wednesday's event received a Certificate of Achievement and a medalion designed by EBCI artist Darrin Bark.

HHI participant Marvel Welch related, "I would really like to thank Healthy Heart for reminding us how important it is to take care of ourselves. I have really enjoyed this program."

HHI is funded through monies from the Special Diabetes Program for Indians through the Indian Health Service. Gass related there are a total of 30 programs in different tribes nationwide. "The program has been funded for another two years. We are in our second year now, and last fall they did approve us for another two years so we are looking at current funding to carry us through to Sept. 30, 2014."

Alexis Beyer, PharmD, of Cherokee Indian Hospital Pharmacy, works with the HHI program. She told the group on Wednesday, "You guys have done such an amazing job. I brag on you all the time. You should all be so, so proud of yourself."

Information from SDPI states, "The Healthy Heart Initiative targets American Indians and Alaska Natives who have been diagnosed with diabetes. This project uses an intensive clinical, team-based case management approach to treat factors for cardiovascular disease, which is the number one killer of American Indian and Alaska Native adults."

Celebrate the end of summer at the 11th Annual Talking Trees Children's Trout Derby which takes place at the Oconaluftee River Islands Park on Saturday, Aug. 4 from 7am – 2pm. Children can pre-register on Friday, Aug. 3 at the Cherokee Indian Fairgrounds beginning at 10am.

Pre-registration and line up before 8am on Saturday morning guarantees your child will receive gear. This year, children with an armband also get free admission to Unto These Hills outdoor drama and the Oconaluftee Indian Village. The trout derby is free for children ages 11 and younger and children must be accompanied by an adult. This event is accessible to children with disabilities. This year also includes the Carolina Dock Dogs 2nd annual Cherokee Dock Warriors event which features a dog water competition event.

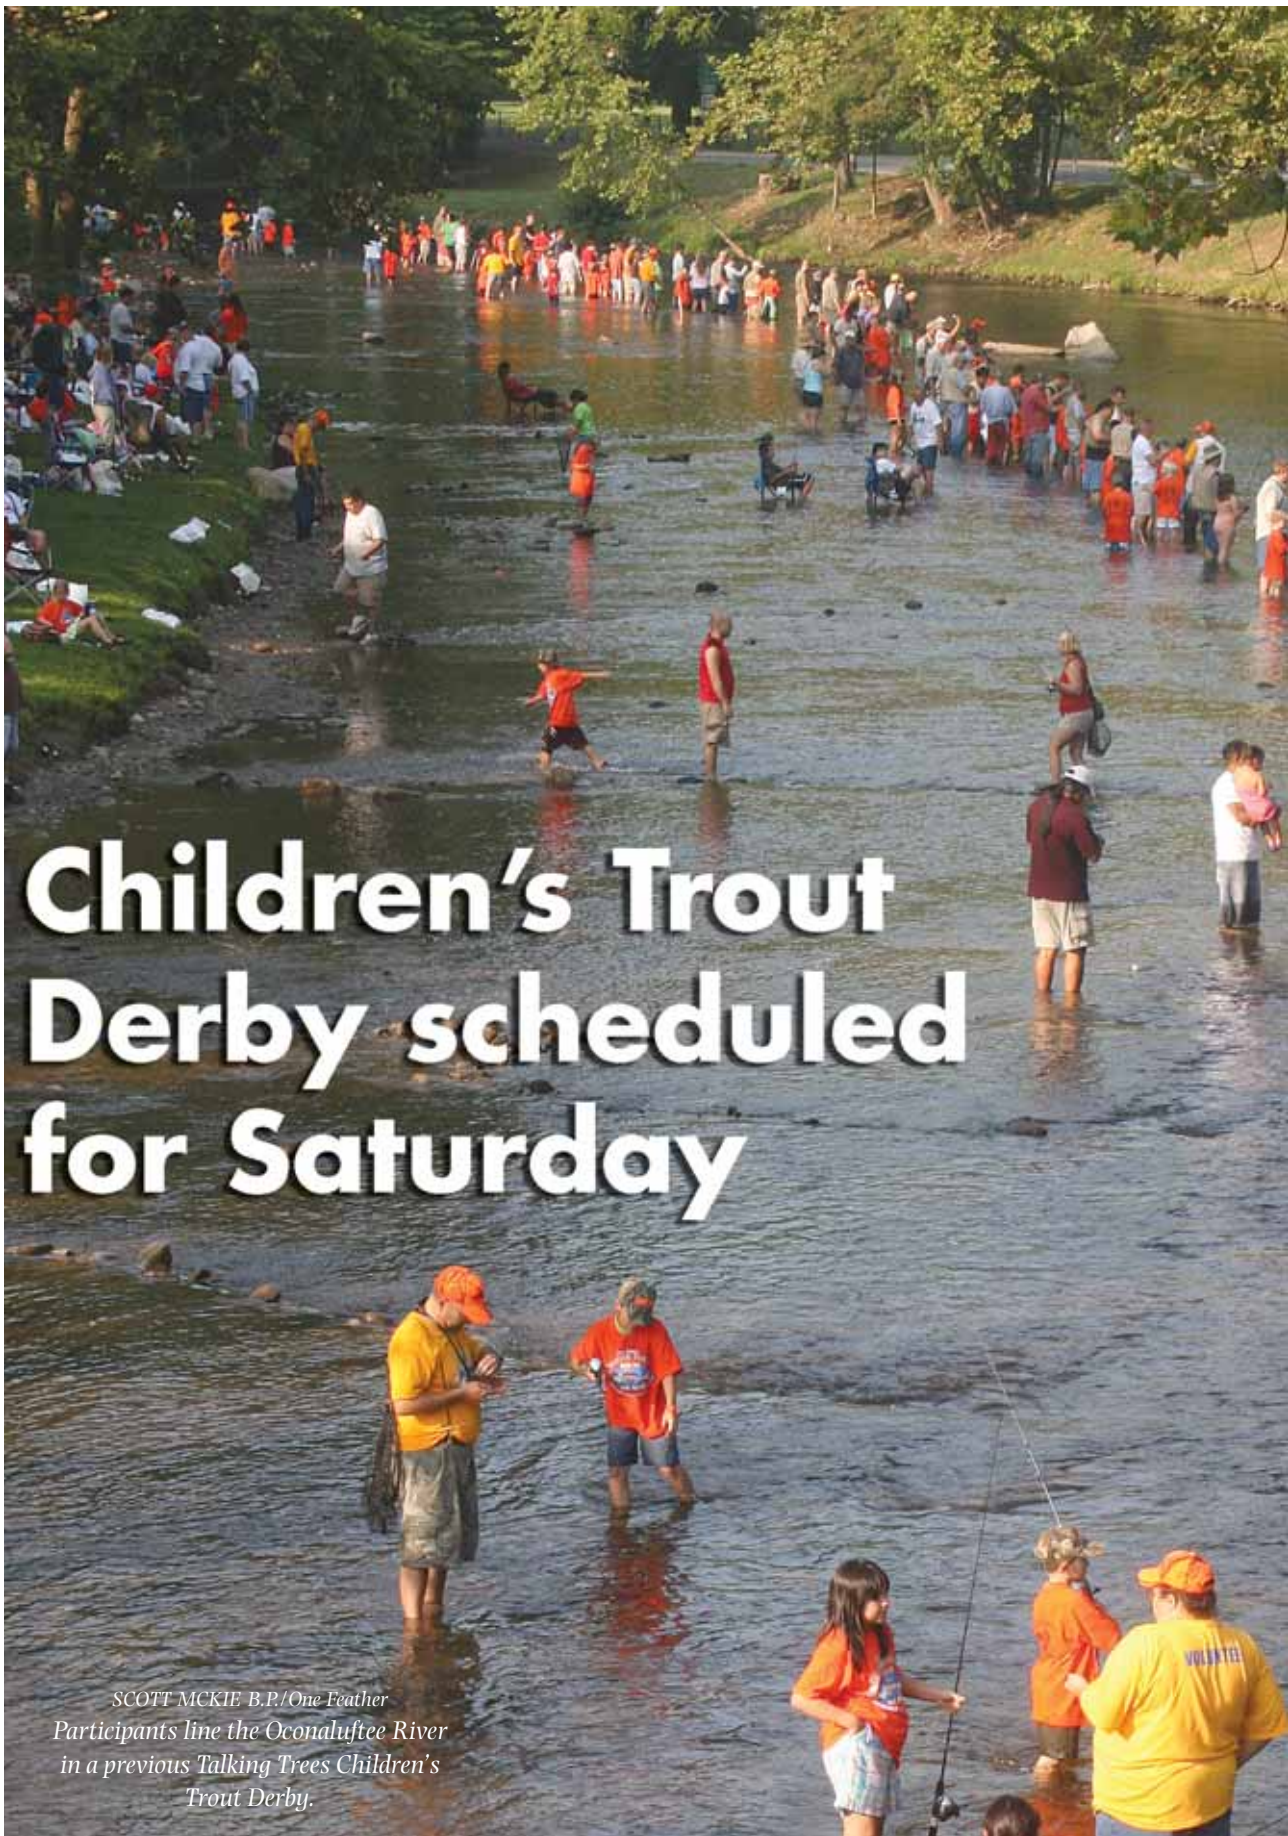

Events taking place on Friday at the Cherokee Indian Fairgrounds pre-registration include a dance show by Deer Clan Productions, the 2nd Cherokee Dock Warriors Open Practice, the Dock Dogs Dock Warriors Big Air Wave and a special prize event for registered children.

Saturday, the Oconaluftee Island Park registration and gear pick up begins at 6am. The Island opens at 7am with breakfast for participants. Opening remarks begin at 7:45am and at 8am fishing begins. There is a five trout limit per registered child, free bait and tackle while supplies last and you can bring your own bait and tackle, but no treble hooks are allowed!

Children and Parents should wear water-friendly shoes and shorts, bring towels, snacks for the family, a cooler for fish and portable chairs.

The Cherokee Dock Warriors event begins after the trout derby at 2pm with the Big Air Wave #2, at 4pm Big Air Wave #3 and at 6pm Extreme Vertical Competition. On Sunday, Aug. 5, the Cherokee Dock Warriors continues at 9am Big Air Wave #4, 11am Big Air Wave #5, 1pm Speed Retrieve (Finals follow) and 3pm Division Finals. # NATIVE OLYMPIANS IN LONDON

Four Native women making their Olympic debut at the 2012 London Games

By ELVIA WALKINGSTICK/ONE FEATHER STAFF

For many, it's exciting to know that the 2012 Summer Olympic Games began this past Friday, July 28, in London, England, and will continue through Aug. 12. Even more exciting is that the Native American community is being represented by four young women participating in four different sports, synchronized swimming, boxing, water polo and dressage, respectively.

These women, hailing from different nations across the Americas, are all competing in their very first Olympic competition, vying for their shot at a gold medal 100 years after Jim Thorpe won two gold medals at the 1912 Stockholm Olympics. If they're successful at medalizing during the 2012 games their names will join Billy Mills, Oglala Sioux, who won gold at the 1964 games, and Duke Kahanamoku, a Native Hawaiian and Olympic swimmer, who, like Thorpe, won gold at the 1912 Stockholm games.

Mary Killman, born in Ada, Oklahoma, 21, is a member of the Citizen Potawatomi Nation. She is half of the 2012 U.S. Synchronized Swimming team alongside partner Mariya Koroleva, who, in fact has dual citizenship with the United States and Russia. Killman was a member of the USA Synchro Junior Nationals Team in 2008 and was named the USA Synchro Athlete of the Year in 2010 and 2011.

"Representing the United States is an amazing honor," she said. "To be able to not only represent my country, but also my sport, and have a bit of Native American pride as well just makes it all better!"

All the hard work and training she has put into making it to where she's at today has been lined with confidence, something she feels is crucial to success. "The most powerful thing you can have is confidence in yourself," says Killman. "There are always going to be rough times but if you keep pushing and just believe you can, you can achieve things you've only dreamed about. This works in not only athletics but in life in general. I've worked years trying to make my dream a reality and it's finally coming true."

One of Killman's heroes is the above-mentioned Thorpe. "He's definitely someone who had to work insanely hard to get every bit of recognition he got. He's proof that you can do anything if you set your mind to it...I've always been brought up with something my dad always said, 'rather you can see yourself doing or not, you're right.'"

The 2012 London games marks the debut of women's boxing and First Nation Ojibway Mary Spencer set off as one of Canada's best bets; a sure contender for gold. Spencer nearly lost her chance of competing in this year's game after a surprising and disappointing first round loss at the women's world championships in China that served as the qualifier for the 2012 Olympics. A few agonizing weeks later, she learned she had been awarded the wild card and became the lone Americas Continental group selection by the Tripartite Commission in the middleweight (75kg) class.

Spencer began boxing in 2002 at the age of 17. In an interview with the International Amateur Boxing Association she said, "I was always a sports fanatic and I took up boxing after my basketball season ended and I wanted to keep in shape. Since then I have not looked back, the energy in boxing is unrivalled in sports." From her beginning days in the sport, she has been described as a natural and very quickly started training under three-time Olympic coach Charlie Stewart at the Windsor Amateur Boxing Club in Ontario, Canada. Under his guidance and her hardwork, she's become an 8-time nation champion, 3-time world champion and 5-time Pan-American champion.

Not only is she a fierce fighter in the ring, she's proof positive there's true splendor in being a strong woman as she was named as an ambassador for Cover Girl. Of the endorsement Cover Girls says they are, "proud to support Mary Spencer to help celebrate the power and strength in beauty." She is also a member of the Motivate Canada's GEN7 Aboriginal role model initiative. Her participation in the program includes developing sport, physical activity and empowerment programming with Aboriginal youth in First Nation communities in Ontario.

Tumua Anae heads into the 2012 games as the goalie for the US National Water Polo team. Anae, full name Tumuaialli Anae, is a Native Hawaiian whose grandfather emigrated there from Samoa in the 1920's. She now resides in California and is an active member of the Church of Latter-day Saints and as the only Mormon on her team she's said her team knows of her religious beliefs.

Tori Ackerman, of the Deseret News, reported Anae as saying, "When we go out on a team trip and go out and they drink after a game win or big tournament they say, 'Oh yeah, Tumua can't come, she's Mormon,' or 'Tumua you can't watch-this movie is bad and you're Mormon,' but they all respect that and I'm used to that."

Tumua attended the University of Southern California where she majored in broadcast journalism. While at USC, she played goalie for their water polo team all four years of her college career and then began training with the National team the summer after her senior year. One the road to becoming an Olympic athlete, Tumua racked in honors with her incredible talent in the pool. Among other things, she was part of the 2005 and 2006 CIF Water Polo Champions Division II, a finalist for the 2010 Peter J. Cutino Award and 2010 NCAA champion. More recently, she had 8 saves as backup goalie at the 2011 FINA World Championships as well as the 2011 FINA World League Super Final, in which she won gold, 7 saves in Team USA's gold medal win at the 2011 Pan American Games, and a whopping 16 saves at the 2012 FINA World League Super Final. Finally, in May of this year, she was selected to the Olympic team as backup to Betsey Armstrong, whom many consider the best women's water polo player in the world.

Adrienne Lyle, a Cherokee Nation citizen, comes to her first Olympic games as one of America's youngest dressage riders at the age of 27 in a sport that commonly has Olympians double her age. She earned her spot by placing fourth-place at the U.S. Equestrian Federation Dressage Festival of Champions and USEF Dressage Olympic Selection Trials while riding Wizard, a 13-year-old Oldenburg gelding by Weltmeyer.

Lyle, coming from humble beginnings being raised on a small cattle ranch in Whidbey Island, Wash., shot to stardom in the dressage world after working some with Debbie McDonald (an extremely successful dressage rider in her own right) as a working student at Peggy and Parry Thomas's River Grove Farm in Idaho in 2005, in 2006 as a full-time assistant trainer and then competing with Wizard in their first Grand Prix in 2009.

These young women exemplify where hard work, discipline and the courage to put your dreams in motion can lead to. Many throughout Indian Country will be keeping an eye on these ladies as they strive for gold in these coming weeks.

As Mary Killman says, "2016 in Rio anyone?"

Learning about blowguns, darts

TEXT and PHOTOS By DAWN ARNEACH
ONE FEATHER CONTRIBUTOR

Cherokee blowgun and dart making is not as popular as basket making. A step forward getting more EBCI tribal members into learning how to make these items began in Snowbird last week. A class hosted by Qualla Arts & Crafts, funded by the Cherokee Preservation Foundation, was held at the Junaluska Museum in Robbinsville on Monday, July 23.

The class was led by Davy Arch, manager of the Oconaluftee Indian Village. He brought several examples of blowguns and darts that he has made over the years.

"I am excited to see people wanting to preserve this part of the Cherokee culture," said Arch. "Having the class and seeing people enjoy learning about the blowgun and darts makes it all worthwhile."

The class started with learning about the thistle and how to get it ready to attach to the shaft of the dart. Pulling the dark pieces out first, then removing the husk to be able to knock off the seeds from the bottom, sounds easy, but is a little tricky and you can lose a whole pod with a little slip up.

Once the class had the thistle set and ready, they set the dart up in their hands and held the string in the mouth to keep tension on it and began twisting the dart to lay down the rows of thistle. After seeing how their dart looks with one pod of thistle some even added a second pod to make it bigger and fuller. Once they were satisfied with the way the dart looked, they would go back with the point of another dart and knock out pieces that didn't get under the string, then turn the dart upside down and spin the loose pieces off.

Dart-making may sound difficult, but the blowgun itself is a workout. Arch first showed the class how to hold the river cane over a flame to start heating it up for bending. He explained how to look down the cane for the bends, and also not to bend too much at first, just to keep moving from one section to another and back and forth, letting the cane cool down in between to see if more bending is needed. Once they felt their cane was straight enough, Arch showed them how to use a piece of steel with an L-bend for a grip or handle, and to place it inside the cane to start knocking out the joints. Once the joints are knocked out, he took another piece a little larger to start "filing" down the inside of the joint so that the dart, when used, will go through the blowgun easily.

Even though learning about the blowgun and the darts was the main point of the class, listening to the them swap stories of growing up, other crafts they have tried and asking each other things about legends made this class seem relaxed and fun, seeing Cherokees gather and share no matter what community, made this a true Cherokee class.

Fundraiser to benefit elk population

SUBMITTED By JOYCE COOPER
ROCKY MOUNTAIN ELK FOUNDATION

Enjoy an entertaining evening while raising money to benefit elk, other wildlife and their habitat. That's the promise of a Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation fundraiser banquet and auction slated for Saturday, Aug. 18 at Harrah's Cherokee Casino Hotel Ballroom.

The evening begins at 5pm with raffles and silent auction, dinner at 7pm, followed by a live auction for world-class wildlife art, firearms, unique collectibles and trips from all across the world.

"We promise a good time for a great cause," said Joe Treadway, of Asheville, who serves as Chapter Co-Chair and volunteers with the local committee of conservationists to host the annual event. "This is the 19th annual banquet that we've hosted here in WNC, and we're proud of our continuing support for the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation's conservation work across the country and especially here in North Carolina."

Since 1984, the organization has enhanced or conserved over 6 million acres of habitat—nearly all on public lands—for elk and other wildlife.

More than 600,000 acres have been opened for public access including hunting, fishing and other recreation. Additionally, wild elk populations have been restored in parts of their former range here in North Carolina, as well as Kentucky, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Missouri and Virginia. For ticket information and reservations, contact Co-Chair Joyce Cooper at 828-506-3308. Deadline is Saturday, Aug. 11.

Auctions and raffles are always a popular highlight at Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation events. Featured prizes at the upcoming event include: Henry Golden Boy .22LR; Browning HiPower Mark III Carbon Fiber, 9MM; Remington Model 700 SPS Camo (MOBI); Weatherby Vanguard Deluxe, 257 Weatherby; Howa Hogue .300 Win Mag w/3-19x42 Nikon Scope; 2012 Banquet Edition Rifle Cased Set: Browning BLR,.270 Win & Browning BL-22; additional guns; hand-stitched quilt; a bow; prints, grill w/RMEF logo; tent with camping equipment; hunting trips; PBR World Finals package in Las Vegas; golf package; Wyoming wilderness pack trip, jewelry; unique household items, etc. Something for everyone, especially the elk lovers. Life & Sponsor memberships are also available.

"This is the 19th annual banquet that we've hosted here in WNC, and we're proud of our continuing support for the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation's conservation work across the country and especially here in North Carolina."

EBCI team attends Juvenile Justice Reform 2012

WASHINGTON - Five individuals who are employed by EBCI Tribal Programs attended Georgetown University's Center for Juvenile Justice Reform 2012 on July 6-13. The Juvenile and Child Welfare Multi-System Integration Certificate Program for Public Sector Leaders is a week-long program of intensive study designed for those in government who want to improve outcomes for youth known to multiple systems of care.

The EBCI team of five received instruction by national leaders in child welfare and juvenile justice reform as well as nationally acclaimed professionals in the art and science of multi-systems integration and collaboration.

The Certificate Program was organized by Georgetown University's Public Policy Institute and utilized a multi-systems and multi-disciplinary approach to focus on programs and practices that relate to youth who are served multiple systems of care, particularly juvenile justice and child welfare; also known as "crossover youth."

The purpose of the program is to bring together current and future leaders within public agencies to increase their knowledge about multi-system reform efforts, improve the operation of the multiple public organizations serving this population, provide an opportunity for the development of collaborative leadership skills, and to create a mutually supportive network of individuals across the country committed to systems reform.

The EBCI is the first Indian Tribe to participate in the Center For Juvenile Justice Reform's Certificate Program. The local team included Hannah Smith, Assistant Attorney General/Juvenile Prosecutor; Tina Saunooke, Community Coordinator ZERO TO THREE Safe Babies Court-Cherokee Court; Brentley McCoy, Manager Higher Education and Training Program/Chairman Committee for Comprehensive Social Services; Chris Weatherford, Manager Cherokee Children's Home; and David Hutchinson, Juvenile Justice Treatment Continuum/ Shared Vision Consulting.

The rigorous seven-day program culminates with each team designing a Capstone Project that will have the instructional and implementation support and expert technical assistance from Georgetown University's Public Policy Institute. The EBCI Team's Capstone Project is building an integrated Tribal Juvenile Justice and Child Welfare system using the Results Based Accountability approach to multi-systems integration. The EBCI team looks forward to presenting a summary of the certificate program and its Capstone Project to the tribal committee tasked with investigating the feasibility of a comprehensive tribal social service program.

"On behalf of the EBCI Team who attended CJJR we'd like to thank the Principal Chief, Michelle Hicks for providing funding," the team said in a statement.

CHS students Aidan Galloway, Olivia LaCombe, David Jackson and Mack Lackey are shown with Mrs. Frances Hess at Wake Forest University.

CHS students attend MedCat program at Wake Forest

Students from Cherokee High School travelled to Winston-Salem to attend a four-day seminar at Wake Forest University to strengthen their interest and knowledge of health occupations. This year's MedCat program focused on Diabetes and Obesity but included a day at the Wake Forest Baptist Medical Center where the students observed a surgery, visited a Cardiac Cath Lab, observed bioimaging and a Patient Simulation Lab.

The MedCat program, a collaboration between Western Carolina University, WCU's Native Health Program and Wake Forest University, offers a rare opportunity for high school students in our region to experience hands-on, state-of-the-art health practices at one of the most prestigious Medical Centers in the world. In addition to Cherokee High School students, others from Smoky Mountain, Swain, Robbinsville, Andrews and Murphy were participants.

The students were accompanied by their school's health teachers, Frances Hess (Cherokee), Edith Callahan (Smoky Mountain), Liz Butler (Robbinsville), Carolyn Crosby (Murphy) and Barbara Haydon (Andrews.)

Dr. Lisa Lefler, head of the Native Health Program-WCU and Roseanna Belt, director of the Cherokee Center-WCU were also participants. Lead faculty participants at Wake Forest were Dr. Ronny Bell, Sarah Langdon and intern, Brittany Hunt.

Walmart donates $100,000 to American Indian College Fund

The American Indian College Fund will award 16 scholarships to first-generation, first-time Native tribal college students through a $100,000 grant from the Walmart Foundation. For more than a decade, the Walmart Foundation has funded Native student scholarships through the American Indian College Fund. This year, the Walmart Foundation's donation will continue the Walmart Tribal College Scholarship Program, providing students with scholarships for the duration of two years. Under the program, three scholars will also be selected to attend a professional networking and education conference aligned with their career goals.

The goal of the Walmart Tribal College Scholarship Program is to increase American Indian students' access to college. According to the U.S. Census Bureau (2010), only 13 percent of Native Americans received a bachelor's degree as their highest degree, contrasted with the national average of 28 percent.

"Walmart's continued support generously helps 33 tribal college students pay for school and sets them on a path for success," said Richard B. Williams, President and CEO of the American Indian College Fund. "Their assistance helps lift students and their families out of poverty, impacting their lives and their communities."

Senate approves extension of Tribal Law and Order Commission

WASHINGTON – The Senate approved passage of the Tribal Law and Order Commission Extension (S. 2090) by unanimous consent on Wednesday, July 25.

The role of the Commission is to assess implementation of the Tribal Law and Order Act and to recommend additional ways to strengthen public safety for people living in Indian Country. Although the Commission was approved for a period of two years in 2010, it was not funded until August 2011. As a result, the Commission has only had one year to complete its assessment on the Tribal Law and Order Act. The bill, which Senator Akaka introduced on February 9, 2012, extends the term of Indian Law and Order Commission for an additional year.

"The Commission's recommendations have already strengthened law enforcement and brought justice for people living on reservations and in surrounding communities," said Sen. Daniel K. Akaka (D-Hawaii). "Allowing the Commission to continue its mission will further increase safety and provide the two-year timeframe originally intended by the Congress at no cost to taxpayers. I am glad that the Senate stood united today and passed this important bill."

Thank you Yogi Crowe Scholarship Fund

To the editors:

As I approach completion of my MFA program at Western Carolina University I want to thank the Board of Directors of the Richard "Yogi" Crowe Memorial Scholarship Fund for their support and encouragement. The experience of being in graduate school, focusing exclusively on my art, has been a gift. Having this opportunity to explore and expand my art has been a wonderful journey. Some of the art I created during this period has been selected for two important Native American exhibitions. I have a sculpture installation currently showing at the Museum of Arts and Design in New York City, part of "Changing Hands: Art Without Reservation 3". This group show will travel to several venues in the United States and Canada for the next three years. I am also honored to be included in a exhibit,

"Native Art in Russia", currently showing in Ekaterinburg. Works on paper in this show will also be part of the Novosibirsk Biennial this Fall before returning to the United States. My world and my art have been enlarged through my graduate studies.

Sincerely,

Caroline Luzene Hill

Braves Football Camp successful

The Cherokee Varsity and Junior Varsity completed a three day camp in Cherokee. Forty players, six coaches, parents and community members worked really hard to make it one of the most successful camps ever. On the last day, the Braves showcased their skills by hosting Smoky Mountain, Robbinsville, and Cosby football teams who participated in activities designed to improve skills and strength.

The Braves wish to thank all the parents and other family members who cooked and or served the meals, Cherokee Choices for the delicious smoothies, Missy Reed for the cupcakes, Bill Taylor and Tommye Saunooke for the Gatorades, Jessie Swimmer, the great cooks at the Methodist Church, the Cherokee Booster club, and the following businesses for their donations: Granny's Kitchen, Dominos, Food Lion, Bradley's Grocery, Pet Dairy, and Rancho Via for the discount.

Submitted by,

Kathi Littlejohn

Thank you

I would like to take this time to thank the Yogi Crowe Memorial Scholarship Fund for the grant award I received to continue my education at the University of Kansas School of Law.

I am finally a third year law student and received by third year practice license this summer which allowed me to appear in court under the supervision of the tribal prosecutor. I was able to gain invaluable practical experience and continue to learn more about the justice system, and tribal courts specifically. Over the summer I also completed Secured Transactions, a required course for all students at KU Law. I am now scheduled to take the Multistate Professional Responsibility Exam in Durham on August 10th and move one step closer to the bar exam. Overall, this has been a very busy summer. I am looking forward to my final year of law school and completing the last 21 hours required to receive my juris doctor degree next May. In addition to my JD, I will also receive two specialty certificates: Advocacy and Tribal Law. I am currently enrolled in Trial Advocacy, Conflict of Laws, Evidence, Alternative Dispute Resolution, and Administrative Law.

All these accomplishments have been made possible because of the support of my family, friends, community, tribal funding and scholarships from the Yogi Crowe Memorial Scholarship Fund. Without such funding it wouldn't be possible for me to pursue my educational and career goals. I truly appreciate the monetary support as well as the encouragement provided by my family and community.

Sgi,

Shannon Swimmer

Thank you

The Family of Winston Welch would like to thank everyone who has kept Winston in their thoughts and prayers during his recent surgery. He traveled to the University of Alabama-Birmingham Children's Hospital for tumor removal and facial reconstruction. He is recovering miraculously from the surgery, but still has a long way to go.

Thank you to everyone who participated in the Silent Auction that is helping us with travel expenses related to the surgery and follow-ups. We are grateful to many special friends who helped us in so many ways including Valorie Welch, Marvel Welch, Eli Lanning, Harold and Nancy Long, Reggie McCauley, Dr. Lori Bubb, Dr. Dan Mackey, Tyler, Hannah and Cynthia Ledford, Connor, Rosie and Dan McCoy, Missy Crowe, Lisa Montalongo, Roy Lambert, an anonymous friend, Cindy Fogle, and everyone at EBCI Cooperative Extension. Our family has provided untiring support, especially Geraldine Walkingstick, Mary Ann Thompson, Mike and Billie Jo Rich, Betty Lou Maney, Tamara Thompson, Grace, Alex and Bob Lauver, Jo and Kaitlin Blalock, Emily and Jack Smith, and Holly, Lanny and Brigitte McClellan.

We are overwhelmed by the kindness, generosity, love and support shared by everyone in this community and our friends and family around the country. We have witnessed the Grace of God, unconditional love, and the Gadugi spirit. We are truly blessed!

Winston, Kevin, Sarah and Eva.

Thank you

Note: This letter was addressed to Bruce Welch, EBCI Transit night supervisor.

Bruce,

Words cannot express how thankful we are for people like you, Donna Ball, and of course your chief, Mr. Michell Hicks. I don't know what I would have done last Saturday when we were stranded after the tree branch fell and smashed the windshield on our van.

I travel often taking people with disabilities on vacations and have not met so many nice people willing to assist when we encounter problems, until Saturday. Everyone we met at the Arcade, The Little Princess Restaurant and the Sweet Temptations Ice Cream Shop were so kind. Bless all of you.

Cherokee Central Schools Child Nutrition Program news

SUBMITTED BY LAURA CABE
CHEROKEE CENTRAL SCHOOLS

The Child Nutrition Program would like to welcome back all students and staff. Here at Cherokee Central Schools we provide nutritious breakfasts and lunches which are designed on the USDA Dietary Guidelines and the North Carolina Nutrition Standards. These guidelines restrict the amount of fat, salt and sugar and encourage increased consumption of fresh fruits, vegetables, whole grain products and calcium rich foods.

Eating smart and moving more form the cornerstone of a healthy lifestyle and provides the solid foundation needed for children and youth to succeed in school and in life. As students work hard to achieve high academic standards, it is even more important that we provide opportunities for them to eat healthy throughout the day. Working together as families, schools and communities, we have the power to make positive changes that will enable students to reach their full potential.

USDA Meal Applications

ALL students must have a current and complete meal application on file by Friday, Aug. 31 for the 2012-2013 school year in order to not be charged for school meals. Meal applications are provided in each school enrollment packet and can be turned into the student's teacher for elementary students, and into the school secretaries for middle/high school students. Meal packets call also be turned directly into the Child Nutrition Director, located in the elementary cafeteria.

If a meal application is not submitted by Aug. 31, the cost of breakfast for all students will be $1.25 and the cost of lunch will be $2 for elementary students and $2.25 for middle and high school students.

If you have any questions regarding the meal application or need assistance in filing it out please call Laura Cabe, Child Nutrition Director 552-5090.

"In accordance with Federal law and U.S. Department of Agriculture policy, this institution is prohibited from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age or disability." To file a complaint of discrimination, write USDA, Director, Office of Civil Rights, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20250-9410 or call (800) 795-3272 or (202) 720 6382 (TTY). USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer."

Special Diets/Food Allergies

If you have a child who has specific food allergies or specific diet needs, the Child Nutrition Program can make any changes necessary by having a nurse or physician fill out a "Medical Statement for Students with Special Nutritional Needs for School Meals." These forms are located in each of the front offices of the school, on the school website, and the offices of the school nurse's, cafeteria manager, and child nutrition director. A form must be completed each year and on file in the cafeteria manager's office. If you have any questions or concerns please call Laura Cabe 554-5090.

LUNCHPREPAY.COM

With LunchPrepay.com you never have to worry about lost lunch money again. LunchPrepay.com is a secure, easy and convenient way to apply funds directly to your student's account online. You can even check the account balance and keep an eye on what your student is buying!

Cherokee Central Schools is a Fast Food Free Campus!

Cherokee Central Schools will continue to enforce the "Healthy Foods Policy" beginning the first day of school, Wednesday, Aug. 8. This policy will not allow any outside foods to be brought or delivered onto school campus during school hours. Exceptions are approved for healthy school parties, healthy snacks and after school activities in the elementary school. We greatly appreciate your cooperation in supporting the health and wellness of all of our students, faculty and staff at Cherokee Central Schools.

Do you want to help strengthen local Cherokee communities? Then apply to become a Community Development Coordinator!

The EBCI Cooperative Extension Center and Cherokee Preservation Foundation are jointly looking for a Community Development Coordinator who has the skills and experience to help Cherokee communities and community leaders build capabilities, relationships and funding for an improved quality of life on the Qualla Boundary. The Community Development Coordinator reports to the EBCI Cooperative Extension Director and works closely with both the Cooperative Extension and Cherokee Preservation Foundation staffs.

The Community Development Coordinator's work will include coordination of community clubs' efforts, the Costa Rica eco-study tour for regional youth, community participation in the Cherokee Indian Fair, the Cherokee Day of Caring, and Cherokee Preservation Foundation's annual Community Celebration. S/he will help communities develop their budgeting, grant application, fundraising and other skills.

The Coordinator must have a two-year college degree or experiential equivalent, exceptional interpersonal and customer service skills, and excellent verbal and written communications skills. S/he must also be adept at using social media and have experience in event management, grant writing, budget creation, and standard office computer applications (the full Microsoft Office suite at a minimum, and desktop design expertise is a plus). Knowledge of the culture, values, guiding principles, government and communities of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians is required. Evening and weekend work will frequently be required.

No later than August 17, interested persons should send a resume and a letter of interest with a salary history to Janet Owle at the EBCI Cooperative Extension Center at 876 Acquoni Road in Cherokee, NC 28719.

Bolt appointed to National Ocean Council Governance Coordinating Council

Eastern Woodland American Indians now have a new advocate and voice on the President's National Ocean Council Governance Coordinating Council. The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians Water Quality Section Supervisor Michael Bolt has been appointed to serve a two year term. On Feb. 23, 2011, the National Ocean Council established the Governance Coordinating Committee (GCC), in consultation with appropriate state, tribal, and local governments and organizations, to serve as a key coordinating body on inter-jurisdictional ocean policy issues. The GCC consists of 18 members from states, federally recognized tribes, and local governments.

The GCC is charged to find solutions to Deepwater Horizon, the Gulf of Mexico Dead Zone, and Climate Change. The overall welfare of our oceans will be the general focus. Some Tribes do not have a coastal water front while others depend on it for their way of life.

Bolt stated, "Oceans are a very unique ecology of the planet. In fact they are the breeding ground for the whole web of life which needs to be protected and enhanced." Bolt is one of three Tribal representatives with the committee.

Several Tribes in Alaska, Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Maine, Massachusetts, New York, and Rhode Island can feel the direct impact of variables in the ocean. Some have experienced difficulties and effects of erosion and pollution. All Tribes will feel the direct effects of climate change that is brought about through ocean levels rising and change in water temperature.

Bolt notes the GCC works to make effective changes to legislation that will identify and implement solutions for these issues. "My goal is to make sure that Tribes are included in these processes and that they are consulted so their voice is at the table," Bolt adds.

United South and Eastern Tribes,

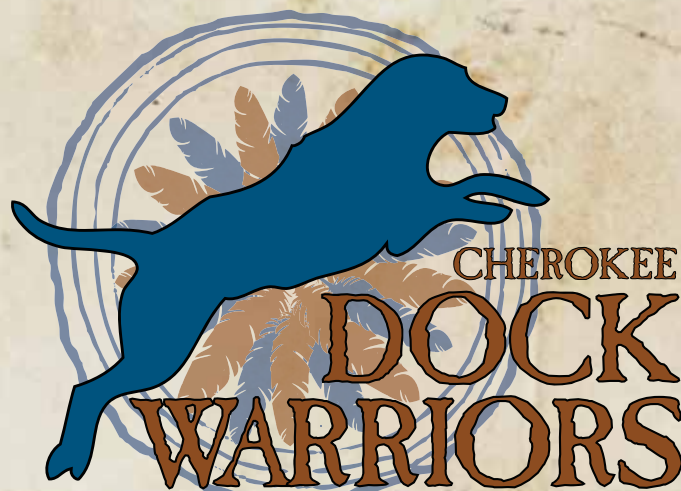

Incorporated (USET) was instrumental to secure the appointment for Michael Bolt to serve on the GCC.

"USET works to improve the way of life in Indian Country through economic development, health and medical programming, housing, emergency management, social services, and natural resources," stated USET president Brian Patterson. "All of those initiatives will be meaningless if we do not have a sound environment. We must be ready to address today's issues and be prepared for the next seven generations. We believe the experience, education, and character Michael Bolt has and will proudly serve Indian Country. Our relationship with the federal government, our Tribes, and community at large is paramount to accomplishing our goals at USET. As a result we are proud to see Mr. Bolt appointed to this commission."

Bolt is a seasoned technician, operator, analyst and manager of water treatment and waste water treatment. He has superlative knowledge and education on environmental and ecological systems and related issues. For more than 20 years, Bolt has worked as a wastewater operator in the southeast United States. He serves as chair of the USET Natural Resources Committee, Wastewater and Laboratory Analysts Certification Board and is vice chair of the National Tribal Water Council. In addition to his master's degree, Bolt has completed postgraduate studies in environmental law and management at the University of Wales in the United Kingdom.

"Michael Bolt's appointment to the National Ocean Council Governance Coordinating Council means a great deal, not just to USET Tribes, to Indian Country. We will continue to have a strong voice in shaping policy that will ultimately give definition to our communities," says USET Executive Director Kitcki Carroll.

It's veggie time!

By TAMMARA COLE

EBCI COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

July, August and September are prime months to enjoy our locally grown fruits and vegetables from the garden. Corn, beans, okra and of course...tomatoes are all perfect right now. Stock up fresh food for your dinner table or for preserving for the winter. Don't forget the Cherokee Cannery. For fifty cents, you can have Trish Calhoun do the hot work of safely canning your fruits and vegetables - give her a call at 497-2440.

Here are some places to get great local produce:

- BIA Sale – go by and check out what your neighbors may be offering on Saturday mornings
- Island market – swing through the Island Market parking lots to see what garden items are available
- Local vegetable stand – Cooper's -across from Texaco on Hwy 441
- Swain County Farmer's Market – great selections of fruits, vegetables, baked good and crafts – Fridays from 9-1 beside the Old Courthouse on Hwy 19
- Jackson County Farmer's Market – fruits, vegetables, baked goods, meats and crafts – Saturdays from 9-

12 beside the Bridge Park (behind Peebles)

- Pick Your Own Blueberries – on Tarhelia Heights across from the Whittier Community Center
- Ask you neighbor if you can buy or trade for something in their garden
- And if you love to grow your own – remember mid-August is the time to put in fall and winter greens. Enjoy veggie time and all the great tastes of summer. They are good for your taste buds and good for your health.
