Injunction filed on Paul's Diner case

SCOTT MCKIE B.P.
ONE FEATHER STAFF

The fate of a Cherokee restaurant might lie with a complaint filed in Cherokee Tribal Court on Wednesday, Aug. 13. Hannah Smith, EBCI Office of the Attorney General, filed a Complaint and Request for Declaratory Judgment and Preliminary Injunction on behalf of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians in a case involving Res. No. 179 (2014). She says the Declaratory Judgment is about much more than a property dispute and was filed to clarify law and the rights of tribal members.

Res. No. 179 was submitted on April 10 by the Tribal Lands Committee and passed on May 1. It details a land encroachment issue between Mary S. Ensley, owner of Paul's Diner in the Yellowhill Community, and Sheridan Smith. Both are heirs of the late Geneva Smith and received various Upper Cherokee Parcels.

This month, the Office of the Attorney General filed a Complaint and Request for Declaratory Judgment in the Cherokee Court," said Hannah Smith. "The Complaint and Request for Declaratory Judgment is not a lawsuit against the Tribe or Tribal Council. The lawsuit is brought on behalf of the Tribe out of concern for tribal members and requests some guidance on whether tribal members have a right to bring land disputes to the court, and if not, then how Tribal resolutions that are quasi-judicial in nature are to be implemented in a manner that is consistent with the Tribe's Charter and Governing Document and the Indian Civil Rights Act."

She explained further, "The background issue prompting the Declaratory Judgment action involves a land dispute, an encroachment issue, between tribal members and Resolution No. 179 (2014). The resolution resolved the land dispute according to the quasi-judicial Lands Committee Appeal process and requires the Business Committee and other tribal agents to carry out Council's decisions. The Business Committee is concerned that implementing the Tribal Council resolution may violate the property and civil rights of one or all of the tribal members involved, while creating potentially devastating economic consequences for many tribal members in the community."

"Voting to file the declaratory action and taking a 'better to be safe than sorry' approach was a wise decision, and I applaud the members of the Business Committee who voted to do so," Hannah Smith related. "Given the significant importance of the possessory holding property rights at stake, asking the Tribal Court for some interpretation and guidance is appropriate. The questions asked to the Tribal Court involve legal rights of tribal members versus the powers of the Tribal government. Of course it is controversial within the Tribal government, but that is what our Tribal system of government is designed for. The legislative, the executive and the judicial branches of government are designed to check and balance government powers over individual rights."

She concluded by saying, "The Business Committee's vote to file the declaratory action demonstrates that it values the rights of tribal members enough to ask some very tough questions about our tribal laws and government systems. The United States Constitution, and when you're in Indian Country, the Indian Civil Rights Act, guarantees all of us certain protections of our life, liberty and property. The ultimate goal of the Business Committee is to make sure that the rights of individual tribal members are adequately protected, and that there is a clear and fair process for resolving these types of disputes between tribal members. If the Cherokee Court decides to hear and make a judgment on these issues, whatever the outcome, our tribal members and our tribal government will have a clearer understanding of how Indian civil rights and tribal property rights work together under our own tribal laws and systems of government. Once clarified, we can all move ahead with satisfaction that we have done our best for tribal members."

The voting on Res. No. 179 went as follows: FOR – Big Cove Rep. Teresa McCoy, Big Cove Rep. Perry Shell, Yellowhill Rep. David Wolfe, Chairwoman Terri Henry, Cherokee County – Snowbird Rep. Brandon Jones, Cherokee County – Snowbird Rep. Adam Wachacha, Birdtown Rep. Albert Rose; AGAINST – Vice Chairman Bill Taylor, Wolfetown Rep. Bo Crowe; ABSTAIN – Yellowhill Rep. B. Ensley; ABSENT – Birdtown Rep. Tunney Crowe, Painttown Rep. Tommye Saunooke.

According to the Resolution, the building which houses Paul's Diner encroaches on Upper Cherokee Parcel Nos. 276-A and 277 which are now owned by Sheridan Smith.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs Cherokee realty office completed a plat survey of the properties in October 2006 detailing the lands and the encroachment. The Tribal Lands Committee upheld the BIA plat on Aug. 23, 2012 and the Tribal Business Committee voted to accept it during a hearing on July 8, 2013.

The Resolution offered three ways for Mary Ensley to solve the situation including:

- Remove all encroaching property/buildings from the parcels including parts of a two-story house and Paul's Diner
- Purchase said property from Sheridan Smith
- Lease said property from Sheridan Smith

The Resolution also immediately revoked the business license for Paul's Diner.

The Declaratory Judgment filed in Tribal Court on Aug. 13 states, "Res. No. 179 (2014) is to be carried out by the executive and administrative agencies and committees of the Tribe, but it is unclear what authority is granted and what limitations are imposed upon the legislative branch of the EBCI as it concerns the individual property rights of tribal members..."

It continues, "Pursuant to Res. No. 179 (2014), the Defendants

Cherokee Choices was one of many tribal and area programs and businesses that set up booths at the event to help EBCI tribal employees learn more about their health. According to the EBCI Benefits Department, the sponsor of the event, over 280 employees participated and three large boxes were collected for the Cherokee Food Pantry.

Shelter Operations Training held at Birdtown

AMBLE SMOKER ONE FEATHER STAFF

EBCI Emergency Management and the American Red Cross conducted Shelter Operations Training on Tuesday, Aug. 19 at the Birdtown Recreation Center.

The purpose of the training and exercise was to provide an opportunity for the Cherokee Recreation Department, Cherokee Natural Resources Enforcement (NRE) and other agencies assigned sheltering lead and support roles to work as a team to assess their ability to open, manage and close emergency shelters.

The exercise will also assist in identifying strengths and areas needing improvement regarding the tribes Emergency Operations Plan and to create policies and procedures for the shelters. This fall, the Emergency Management program will also partner with Law Enforcement Associates to conduct Disaster Preparedness and Crisis Response educational training to residents of the Qualla Boundary and Snowbird Community.

Mary and Paul Ensley have not complied with the remedial options issued in Tribal Council’s Resolution No. 179 (2014). The Plaintiff has not revoked the business license of Defendant Mary Ensley or executed the intent of the ‘injunctive-type’ relief; and Defendant Smith is currently without legally enforceable remedies leaving the status of rights, obligations and liabilities for both the Plaintiff and all Defendants uncertain and insecure.”

The Declaratory Judgment’s Causes and Claims for Relief section states, “Plaintiff seeks clarification of the Tribe’s law and the legal rights, obligations and liabilities of Plaintiff and Defendants as it concerns tribal possessory property rights and the protections of the Indian Civil Rights Act.”

The Judgment also asks for a preliminary injunction in carrying out Res. No. 179 until certain questions can be answered by the Court including does the Cherokee Charter and Governing Document “authorize the Tribal Council to act as a quasi-judicial body” and “are individual land assignments or possessory holdings, assigned by the Tribal Council to members of the Tribe, property ‘owned by the Tribe’?”

Another key question raised in the Judgment is, “Must the Executive Branch execute and carry out the rulings and actions issued by Tribal Council and Lands Committee?”

As of press time, no other filings or any judgments have been made in this case.

Qualla 2020 live online and ready for feedback

A strong, growing, sustainable economy is the goal of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians (EBCI). A sustainable economy will enhance the tribe's standard of living by creating wealth and jobs and encouraging the development of new knowledge and technology. Having a diverse economy, one based on a wide range of profitable sectors, is key in the development of a sustainable economy.

The Qualla 2020 Project, a six-month initiative that consisted of monthly committee meetings and several follow-up subcommittee meetings on the topics of Small Business/Entrepreneurial Development, Tourism, Real Estate, and Knowledge Industries, is seeking to lessen the dependence on gaming revenues, and to develop and expand businesses in ways that uphold the core values of the Cherokee people.

The purpose of Qualla 2020 is to diversify the Cherokee economy and reduce its risks to better ensure the wellbeing of the Cherokee people into the future. With the addition of the Qualla 2020 section online, community members have the opportunity to contribute feedback and suggestions on the 11 proposed action plans. Also housed on the website are full reports including cost estimates, funding sources, and timelines of the action plans.

"Expanding our economy is going to be the key to our tribe's sustainable future. It's very important to have our citizens and business leaders actively participating in the formulation of the Qualla 2020 action plans. With feedback and dialogue, strategies will unfold to help maintain the quality of life for our citizens while attracting new businesses to further diversify economic development," said Cherokee Preservation Foundation Executive Director Annette Clapsaddle.

To offer comments and feedback, and to see the schedule of upcoming Qualla 2020 events, log on to www.cherokeepreservation.org and go to the Qualla 2020 section.

WAYNESVILLE - The scoreboard may not have reflected it at the end, but the Braves' season opener against Tuscola at Waynesville Middle School on Friday, Aug. 22 was a success for Cherokee. They played well and put together a nice fourth quarter comeback that fell just short as they lost 35-28.

Braves QB Brandon Buchanan gave Cherokee fans something to cheer about the entire game. He accounted for 285 yards of total offense including 216 yards passing. He ran for a 13-yard score in the second quarter and threw two touchdown passes in the fourth quarter.

Lloyd Mitchell and Kennan Panther led the Braves defense with 12 tackles each followed by Will Davis with 11. Davis also recovered two fumbles. In all, the Braves defense recovered a total of five Tuscola fumbles. Also recovering for Cherokee were Dustin Johnson, Mitchell, and M. Lee.

The game began with two Tuscola scores in the first quarter including a 2-yard run by Parker Allen and a 52-yard touchdown pass from Allen to Nathan Messer. The Mountaineers led 14-0 going into the second quarter.

Only five seconds into the second quarter, Buchanan got the Braves on the board with a gutsy, right-up-the-middle 13-yard run. The two-point conversion failed and Cherokee trailed 14-6 at the 11:55 mark.

Four minutes later, Tuscola would answer as tough-running Houston McCracken broke several tackles and refused to go down en route to a 30-yard score to put Tuscola ahead 21-6. McCracken carried the ball 18 times for 130 yards.

Cherokee kept grinding and Braves tailback J.J. Benjamin found the endzone on an impressive 17-yard run with only 1:19 left in the half. Benjamin carried the ball 6 times for 33 yards.

The two-point conversion was good and Tuscola led 21-14 at the half. The third quarter went back and forth, but Tuscola managed to get one score as Allen took it in from one yard out to make it 28-14 going into the fourth quarter.

Then, just 10 seconds into the final quarter, Tuscola put what they thought was the nail in the coffin as Damon McDaniels caught a pass on the run from Allen and took it 82 yards to the house to make it 35-14 at the 11:50 mark.

But, Cherokee was far, far from being finished.

The Braves moved the ball down the field quickly following the ensuing kick-off and Benjamin caught a Buchanan pass on a 17-yard scoring play at the 10:45 mark. The two-point conversion was good, and Cherokee cut into the lead making it 35-22.

Following a Tuscola fumble, Cherokee drove back down the field and Buchanan connected with Jason McMillan on a 15-yard touchdown pass with 5:57 left.

Cherokee got the ball back one more time, but their drive failed just short of the endzone and the game ended with Tuscola on top 35-28.

The Braves will take on the Mountaineers again this week, but it will be the Mitchell Mountaineers at Ray Kinsland Stadium on Friday, Aug. 29 at 7:30pm.

Will Davis (#55) celebrates after recovering a Tuscola fumble in the third quarter. He recovered another fumble in the first quarter and had 11 tackles in the game.

VEHICLES...

In 2010, Americans traveled a total of 3 trillion miles—the equivalent of 6.5 million round-trips to the moon. Transportation accounts for 72% of U.S. oil use, mostly for gas. Luckily, there are plenty of ways to improve your gas mileage or avoid using gas altogether. Here are few that are easy to do.

- Avoid idling. Think about it—idling gets you 0 miles per gallon. The best way to warm up a vehicle is to drive it. No more than 30 seconds of idling on winter days is needed. Anything more simply wastes fuel and increases emissions.
- Avoid aggressive driving, such as speeding, rapid acceleration, and hard braking, which can lower your highway gas mileage by up to 33% and your city mileage by 5%.
- Avoid high speeds when practical. Above 60 mph, gas mileage drops rapidly. For every 5 mph above 60 mph, it's like paying an additional $0.30 per gallon of gasoline.

MAGGIE VALLEY - The Lady Braves traveled to Maggie Valley Club and Resort on Monday, Aug. 25 for their third match of the season to take on the Highland Highlanders and the Smoky Mountain Mustangs. The Mustangs cancelled before the match, leaving the Lady Braves 10-person team against a two-person Highlands team.

"The older girls played really well; they just need to work on their short game. They are driving well," said Coach Sharon Bradley after the match.

Tysha Sampson started the day strong by carding a birdie off the first tee and finishing atop the leaderboard by shooting a personal season low 50. Latika French, Bree Stamper, and Peri Wildcatt finishing tied for second with 54, while Highlands Alexa Reese rounded out the top-five with 57.

Latika French had a strong outing and kept her score low by shooting par on hole-seven and dropping her tee shot off hole-nine to within 7 feet of the pin. Long-hitter Peri Wildcatt had the drive of the day on hole-five when she crushed her tee-shot to within 75 yards of the pin. Bree Stamper and Blake Wachacha also had a par apiece.

The complete scorecard for Cherokee was:

Tysha Sampson – 50
Latika French – 54
Bree Stamper – 54
Peri Wildcatt – 54
Blake Wachacha – 58

What's happening at the Fair on Tuesday?

Miss Cherokee Madison Crowe rides in last year's Cherokee Indian Fair Parade.

ROBERT JUMPER ONE FEATHER EDITOR

The Cherokee Indian Fair will take place Oct. 7-11 at the Cherokee Indian Fairgrounds. The Destination Marketing Department has prepared the lineup for this year's event. The theme for this year's Fair is Cherokee People: Our Legends and Tales. Each week, leading up to the Fair, the Cherokee One Feather will print a day schedule showing all the activities at the Fair.

The first day is traditionally known as "Parade Day". Each day of the Fair has its own unique theme. On Parade Day, the highlight is the Cherokee Indian Fair Parade, where hundreds of people, floats and vehicles march through town, beginning at the Harrah's Cherokee Resort and ending at the Museum of the Cherokee Indian. The grand marshals for this year's Fair will be Cherokee storytellers. Representing the storytellers are Kathy Littlejohn, Lloyd Arneach, Freeman Owle, Jerry Wolfe, Davy Arch, Freddie Bradley.

"A lot of hard work and patience are required to put on the parade and I appreciate the Welcome Center staff that makes the parade happen," said Josie Long, who organizes Parade Day for the Fair Committee. "We hire in several temporary workers and they make sure operations continue. Cherokee Police Department, Fire Department, Emergency Services and Cherokee Department of Transportation work together to help us with the Fair."

Each float in the parade is eligible to participate in a contest for recognition and prize money. This is the first opportunity to see how the community interprets the theme of the Fair because all float designs that compete will have a theme requirement. In addition, many of the floats carry special guests. Tribal government officials, pageant winners and contestants and tribal elders are just a few of the people you might see in the parade.

At the conclusion of the parade the Fairgrounds ticket booth, gates and Exhibit Hall opens. At 6pm, the opening ceremonies will take place on the amphitheater stage. The Agricultural Extension Office and Qualla Arts and Crafts Cooperative will award prizes for exhibit hall community display designs. Local singers and dancers will take the stage.

Tuesday night at the Fair will also be the kickoff of Cherokee Idol. At Cherokee Idol, local singers have the opportunity to perform before a live audience with a professional audio and lighting team. Winners receive cash prizes and one will be crowned 2014 Cherokee Idol.

In recent years, a run/walk has been organized in conjunction with the Fair by the Executive Office to bring awareness and support to juvenile cancer. The event, known as the "Chief's Challenge", runs the length of downtown, starting at Phoenix Theatre and concluding at the Cherokee Urgent Care parking lot.

Jerry Wolfe Fridays at the Museum

SCOTT MCKIE B.P./One Feather

EBCI Beloved Man Jerry Wolfe is set to tell stories each Friday at 1pm throughout the fall months at the Museum of the Cherokee Indian.

Jerry Wolfe, Beloved Man of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, elder, and WWII veteran will be telling stories and sharing history every Friday afternoon at 1pm at the Museum of the Cherokee Indian.

"We wanted to offer our visitors something extra to show our appreciation," said Bo Taylor, Museum of the Cherokee Indian executive director.

Wolfe was born in the Big Cove Community where he grew up with traditional Cherokee culture. He attended the Cherokee Boarding School in the 1930s, and left to enlist in the Navy. He became a signalman and participated in the landing on Normandy Beach on D-Day. In 2013, Wolfe received the title "Beloved Man" from the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, a designation that no Cherokee man had held since 1801.

A fluent Cherokee speaker, Wolfe works part-time as Museum Outreach staff and is available for visits and talks on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Recently, he opened the North Carolina legislative session with prayer, blessed a new project for Dolly Parton, and spoke to a group of teachers from across the U.S.

The program will be held in the Education and Research Wing or outdoors, weather permitting. Storytelling sessions began Aug. 22 and will continue throughout the fall months.

WCU Cherokee Center report

With fall semester underway, please give us a call at the WCU Cherokee Center if you have any questions about your classes, scheduling, adjustment or anything we can assist you with. There are several important events coming up in the next weeks that you should consider for your busy schedules. On Wednesday, Sept. 3, Dave Baldrige will present a talk on "Diabetes and Mental Health." He is the Executive Director of International Association for Indigenous Aging and is a nationally-recognized Native advocate for elder issues. This will be held on the WCU West Campus, College of Health and Human Sciences, Room 204. If you have any questions you may refer to Dr. Lisa Lefler llefler@email.wcu.edu or contact the Cherokee Center.

The 5th annual "Rooted In the Moun-ains" symposium will be held Sept. 25-26 at the College of Health and Human Sciences on the West campus at Western Carolina University. The symposium is free to WCU faculty, staff and students. Registration for the two-day event is $75 and registration is available on-line. This year's topic is Climate Change. More details will be in next week's article or you may call the Cherokee Center 497-7920.

This is another preliminary announcement re: a special football game on Saturday, Nov. 1 at WCU. Planning is underway for the EBCI community to receive recognition. You may call in questions to the Cherokee Center.

Finally, we are planning a mentoring program for WCU students, new or continuing, by community members. Please call Roseanna Belt, Cherokee Center director, if you have any interest or questions.

SCC to offer poker dealer course in Cherokee

If you enjoy card games and are looking for a new career, Southwestern Community College has an option worth looking into.

Starting next month at the Tribal Bingo building in Cherokee, SCC will offer a poker dealer certification course that prepares students for work at a casino.

The class meets from 7-11 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays starting Sept. 8. The last class meeting is Nov. 6.

Students will learn to proficiently deal the game of poker, and they'll be taught the legal and regulatory aspects of gaming from Jason Jones – poker manager at Harrah's Cherokee Casino Resort. Table management skills, communication with players and customer aspects of gaming will also be covered.

Students must attend 90 percent of class meetings and be able to pass an audition on the last day of class to be considered for employment at Harrah's.

Tuition costs $180. Info: (828) 339-4426 or send an e-mail to l_downs@southwesterncc.edu.

THANK YOU

Family of Sally Ensley says thanks

The family of the late Sally Ann Crowe Ensley would like to thank all of the family, friends, and community for all of the prayers, comfort, and warm words we received during our mothers passing. We would like to thank the Cherokee Pentecostal Holiness for offering their house of worship during this time and to the church members who offered their time and food preparations. Thank you also to the Big Y Community and Tribal Free Labor for assisting us with the burial site. Thank you to all the people who sent flowers, cards and food and thanks to all the singers for their reverent voices. We are so humbled by our community and the support you all have bestowed upon us during this time. We sincerely appreciate it. Our mom will be missed but forever in our hearts. Thank you and God bless all of you.

Sincerely,

Beverly, Joann, Sharon, Pamela, Clement, Joey, and Billy

WCU's fall leaf predictions

WNC fall color may be spotty, but last longer, says WCU's foliage prognosticator

CULLOWHEE – The combination of a wet spring and forecasts for above-average temperatures this fall could produce a long-lasting leaf display in the mountains of Western North Carolina, but with spotty color development.

That's the word from Western Carolina University's autumnal season soothsayer Kathy Mathews in her annual prediction of how foliage around the region will perform as the sunlight of summer wanes and days become crispy.

Mathews, an associate professor of biology at WCU, specializes in plant systematics and bases her color forecast in part on weather conditions. She believes that the formation of higher levels of pigments in the leaves correlates with dry weather throughout the year, especially in the spring and September. Predicting the quality of the fall leaf color is a combination of a science and an art, Mathews says.

"Forecasters combine knowledge of environmental effects on pigment formation, climate history and forecast, and a healthy

SCOTT MCKIE B.P./One Feather

Last year's fall colors in Cherokee were bright in spots. This year's colors throughout western North Carolina "may be spotty", but are expected to last longer says WCU's foliage prognosticator Kathy Mathews.

dose of observation and experience of past autumns in the region to make their best prediction," she said.

Rainfall measurements for the Asheville area indicate that April was a very wet month, with about two inches above normal precipitation, and rainfall amounts slightly above normal fell in May and June, Mathews said.

"The rainy spring months this year portend somewhat muted pigments on the leaves in the fall," said the fearless foliage forecaster. "On the bright side, our abundant tulip poplars, which are typically among the first trees to change color in the fall, perform well in wetter conditions, developing a golden hue that persists longer before browning. Overall, however, trees that produce red leaves, including sourwood, red maple and dogwood, perform best in dry conditions. Therefore, we may see fewer brilliant reds during the peak of fall color change."

Still, the development of dry conditions in late August and September could improve the overall outlook and produce the best bursts of color, she said.

On the other side of the weather coin, the seasonal forecast from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration calls for slightly above-average temperatures this fall in the Southeast, and if that prediction pans out, the color season could be longer than normal, extending well into November, Mathews said.

Fall foliage fans always want to know when the "peak color" will happen, but the timing of the color change is highly dependent on the decreasing amount of sunlight that comes with the passing days, plus the elevation of a particular location, she said. "The peak of fall color often arrives during the first and second week of October in the highest elevations, above 4,000 feet, and during the third week of October in the mid-elevations, 2,500 to 3,500 feet," Mathews said. "However, the timing of the first frost is important, as well. Because freezing temperatures quickly degrade the green chlorophyll, leaves peak in color intensity four to five days after a frost."

Several periods of unusually chilly mid-summer weather in WNC, which included some of the highest peaks of the Smokies dipping into the 30's, already may have had an effect on some trees in the mountains, Mathews said.

"We've been seeing very early color change already in individual trees, mainly red maples, around the western part of the state," she said.

Regardless of all the factors that affect leaf color, visitors to Western North Carolina always will find a pleasing leaf display somewhere in the mountains from September into November, with a smorgasbord of color made possible by the region's more than 100 tree species, Mathews said.

PAT SWAYNEY
LITERACY COORDINATOR

Another new school year has started and it sure is nice to see the children again and some new smiling faces! We have such a wonderful group of children this year and we are looking forward to helping them attain the skills they will need to grown and learn. One of those skills is the importance of reading.

The literacy center offers a variety of books to the children. Each week, the children will come to the literacy center for stories and other activities. They will also be able to check out books to take home. Reading with your child is important and it influences a child's interest in learning to read.

Here, at Cherokee Tribal Child Care Services, we have been busy learning all about the literacy center. The children have been listening to stories about going back to school such as "Timothy Goes to School" This helps them understand the concept of meeting new friends and how to play with them.

The Literacy Center also offers the 50 and 100 Book Club.

Don't forget to pick up information on 50 and 100 Book Club.

We look forward to helping the children and their families develop a love of reading.

EMPLOYMENT

The Jackson County Department of Social Services is recruiting for a Social Worker in Child Protective Services for its Cherokee office. This position investigates reports of child abuse and neglect and provides services to families where needs have been identified. It also requires limited availability after hours and on weekends on a rotating basis. The salary range is $41,276.54 – $73,300.73, depending upon qualifications. Minimum qualifications include a four year degree in a Human Service field. Preference will be given to applicants with a Master's or Bachelor's Degree in Social Work and/or experience providing Social Work services. Applicants should complete a NC State application form (PD-107) and submit it to the Sylva branch of the NC Division of Workforce Solutions (formerly ESC) as soon as possible. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. 9/4pd
