he Birdtown Community has a new 3,200 square foot community building. The facility, which includes an open floor plan with two restrooms and a full kitchen, opened officially as Stephan Watty, Birdtown Community Club chairman, cut the ribbon on the facility on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 22.

"We're a Tribe," said Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed who spoke on the importance of community. "Everything that we do must be done together, and it must be done in the spirit of unity and mutual respect for one another."

He said people disagree every day, but it's important to disagree in a respectful manner on both sides. "We need to be inspiring to one another realizing that everything that we do we are inspiring something in somebody else – for good, for bad, or indifference. So, we have to question our heart every day, who are we inspiring and what are we inspiring them to be?"

Chief Sneed said it is important for members of the community and Tribe to believe in each other. "It troubles me, at times, that we seem to be really good at tearing one another down. That really bothers me because we're a family, we're a community, and we're better than that...families build one another up, they don't tear each other down. So, I hope that this community center will be just that – a gathering place for our families, a gathering place where we can become closer as family and friends and a place where we can encourage one another to do our very best."

Vice Chief Alan B. Ensley commented, "It's a great day in Birdtown...I remember back when Butch Goings was a Council Member, and he always talked about how Birdtown needed a new community center. Being from Yellowhill, I know what it means to get a new building and what it does for your community. More people will come out and the more events you can have...to have a new building will invigorate the entire community."

The building, which is handicapped-accessible, also has a utility room and a storage room as well as a new covered outdoor batting cage. The project was combined with the new Wolftown Community Building and together came in at a total of $1,280,685 for the buildings, furniture, and site work.

Both of the Birdtown Council representatives were present at Wednesday's event. Rep. Albert Rose noted, "It's a beautiful building, from the sheetrock to the floor, the concrete, the cages outside – you guys did a wonderful job. There are so many people to thank. I want to thank Justice Wright Builders for the design and build, Chris Greene and Ken Green for overseeing the project, Travis Smith (EBCI Secretary of Housing) for helping to push this project through, Chief Sneed and Vice Chief Ensley for all you do for our communities, Tribal Council for supporting this project, and our community club officers. I always say anytime we cut a ribbon or break ground in our community on a project, it's a good day."

Rep. Boyd Owle said, "This is a good day. I want to thank Justin Wright and his crew for doing an excellent job."

He added, "We're expanding and growing. People say we're lucky, but we're not lucky; we're certainly blessed...this is a place for people to come and voice their opinions, suggestions, and grievances. I encourage all people in the Birdtown Community to come out."

he day after Birdtown residents cut the ribbon on their new community building, members of the Wolftown Community got to do the same. Wolftown's new facility, a 3,200 square foot building with an open floor plan, two restrooms, and a kitchen, opened officially as Dwayne "Tuff" Jackson, Wolftown Community Club chairman, cut the ribbon on the evening of Thursday, Aug. 23.

"I thought a lot about the old community club building and how humble it was, just a concrete block building, but I also thought about how many memories were made there and how many important decisions were made," Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed said during Thursday's event. "I thought about how many community members came and voiced their opinions to their elected officials and how much laughter was there and certainly some tears as well. Nevertheless, it was time for a new building, and this is a wonderful facility. It is almost identical to the Birdtown facility other than the really nice Porte Cochere drive-thru that you have which is great. It'll be nice on the rainy days."

He went on to say, "With the building itself, the same way the old building was the centerpiece and hub for the community for fellowship and decision-making, it my sincere hope that this building will fall in that same tradition and will be a gathering place for families, for neighbors, and for friends."

Vice Chief Alan B. Ensley commented, "This is exciting. Coming from Yellowhill, we got our building a while ago, and it reinvigorated our community...I'm just so happy for you to get this new building here."

He related that many events are held at community buildings including fundraisers. "We host a lot of them in Yellowhill. Hopefully, with Birdtown getting their new building and this one, the people in each of the communities can have their own sense of pride and have a building in their own community."

Vice Chief Ensley thanked Tribal Council for their support and especially Wolftown Rep. Bo Crowe and former Tribal Council Chairman Bill Taylor who co-sponsored the legislation to have the new facility built. "It's fun to do these projects for the communities."

The building, which is handicapped-accessible, also has a utility room and a storage room as well as a covered drive-thru Porte Cochere. The project was combined with the new Wolftown Community Building and together came in at a total of $1,280,685 for the buildings, furniture, and site work.

Rep. Crowe said, "I really want to thank the Community Club and Community Club officers. They had a really big part in everything that went into this building."

He added, "I hope that you come back and enjoy the building. We meet on the first Tuesday of every month."

Rep. Crowe also thanked Tribal Council for their support. "I know when it came up for a vote, it was a unanimous vote that every Council member voted for."

Wolftown Rep. Jeremy Wilson commented, "It's really good to see the community grow the way that it has with the Community Club... we're all here for each other, and at times when we see epidemics with the opioids and all the things we see and hear about negatively in the news, we're here, and if we stay firm within our community and stick together then we'll be able to do so many great things for our community. Wolftown can be the staple within our Tribe for helping to shape that."

McCoy sentenced to probation in marriage fraud case

Ruth Marie Sequoyah McCoy, an EBCI tribal member, was sentenced to two years probation and a $2,000 fine in federal court in Asheville on Thursday, Aug. 23 after having pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to commit marriage fraud in March.

According to her plea, "McCoy knew that the marriages she sponsored were entered into for the purpose of evading the immigration laws, and that they were therefore not legitimate. She knew that the participants needed her financial sponsorship in order to succeed in securing legal status on the basis of their marriages to United States citizens."

A federal criminal bill of indictment, unsealed in June 2017, charged 12 individuals with marriage fraud conspiracy and related charges, for entering into sham marriages for the purposes of evading United States immigration laws. Four of those individuals pleaded guilty in the case in November to conspiracy to commit marriage fraud including Kaila Cucumber, Kevin Swayney, Jordan Littlejohn, and Jessica Gonzalez – all of Cherokee.

According to allegations contained in the criminal bill of indictment, beginning in or about June 2015, and continuing through December 2016, in Swain and Jackson counties, the defendants engaged in a fraudulent marriage scheme, in which foreign nationals paid to enter into fraudulent marriages with United States citizens, in order to secure lawful, permanent residence in the United States.

Michell Hicks added to Dogwood Health Trust Board

SHEVILLE - Dogwood Health Trust ("Dogwood"), a recently formed North Carolina nonprofit, private non-operating foundation, announced on Thursday, Aug. 23 additions to its initial Board of Directors which includes former Principal Chief Michell Hicks, CPA. Dogwood Health Trust will become operational only if the contemplated transaction between HCA Healthcare and Mission Health is finalized.

"When selecting Board members, we've taken into account skill, competence, willingness, time and capacity to serve as well as geographic diversity," said Janice Brumit, Founding Chair of the Dogwood Health Trust. "Most importantly, Board members must have a firm commitment to our bold mission to dramatically improve the health and wellbeing of all people and communities in Western North Carolina and understand they do not serve on behalf of any particular geography, but rather as a fiduciary steward to ensure that Dogwood's mission is achieved for everyone in every community across this region."

In addition to Brumit as its chair, Jack Cecil, president of Biltmore Farms, will serve as Dogwood Health Trust's Vice Chair. The other selected Board members are:

- John R. Ball, MD, JD (Buncombe County)
- Sam Lupas (Jackson County)
- George Renfro (Buncombe County)
- Robert C. Roberts (Buncombe County)

- Wyatt S. Stevens, JD (Buncombe County)
- Martha Tyner (Yancey County) Brumit, Cecil and the seven other initial Board members will select the additional directors as the Dogwood Health Trust develops its vision and strategic plan. An online process has been established to receive nominations. Currently, there are Board members from Buncombe County, Jackson County, Yancey County, and the Qualla Boundary, and Dogwood anticipates building an initial board of 12 to 15 members comprised of members residing throughout the region. Board members' terms will be staggered to allow for ongoing change over time.

Dogwood's goal is to partner with local non-profit organizations to analyze, understand and address core social determinants of health and well-being for the people and communities of western North Carolina, including helping local organizations build or expand their capacity to be effective collaborators within their own communities.

numerous others with deep experience in this area is that the single most important thing for the Board to do at this stage is to be deliberate, focused, strategic and not driven by an artificial timeline," Brumit said. "The activity associated with creating and eventually operating Dogwood Health Trust will involve engaging the community in a collaborative, multi-year process."

SCORE: Cade Mintz (#10), Braves junior wide receiver, scores on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Bobby Crowe just ahead of Choctaw's Cameron Jenkins (#11) in the first quarter of the Battle of the Nations game against Choctaw Central at Ray Kinsland Stadium on the evening of Friday, Aug. 24. On the night, Mintz caught 5 passes for 75 yards and 1 touchdown.

or the third straight year, Cherokee (1-1) defeated Choctaw Central (0-2) and got to hoist the Battle of the Nations trophy in victory. The Braves had a strong second half to secure a 27-6 win over the Warriors at Ray Kinsland Stadium on the brisk evening of Friday, Aug. 24.

"We worked hard this week to get better as a football team and we did," Kent Briggs, Braves head coach, noted after the game. "Before this game, I told them that no matter what happens we're a better football team now after seeing what mistakes we made last week and working through and making corrections and guys just having a better understanding of how to go out there and play the game. I knew we'd be an improved team."

Coach Briggs said there are a lot of players stepping into starting positions and leadership roles for the first time and are going through a learning process. "This team will get better and better. I was really proud of our effort tonight and our team. I really like this team. We can be a good football team."

The Braves almost doubled Choctaw's offensive output with 262 total yards to the Warriors' 144 yards. Choctaw was hurt all evening long by penalties having 17 for 150 yards compared to Cherokee's 8 for 53 yards.

Cherokee got the ball first in this contest and turned it over on downs after a drive that went to the Choctaw 28-yard line and took over half of the first quarter. The Braves' defense held the Warriors to a three-andout on their first possession.

On Cherokee's next possession, the Braves got on the board as Cade Mintz, junior wide receiver, caught a 20-yard pass from Bobby Crowe, junior quarterback, with 2:55 left in the first. The point-after try failed and Cherokee took a 6-0 lead.

On the night, Crowe completed 8 of 18 passes for 151 yards and 2 touchdowns, and Mintz caught 5 passes for 75 yards and 1 touchdown.

The Warriors fumbled on their next possession at their own 31-yard line. Cherokee recovered the fumble. Several plays later, Crowe connected with Sterling Santa Maria, junior wide receiver, on a 65-yard touchdown bomb to put Cherokee up by two scores early in the second quarter. Rocky Peebles, senior kicker, made the extra point, and Cherokee led 13-6 which is how the half would end.

The third quarter was mostly a back-andforth of offensive struggles with both teams having to punt once and turning the ball over on downs once. Late in the quarter, Cherokee started a drive in Choctaw territory and steadily marched down the field with a steady running game of Isaiah Evans, senior running back, who ran the ball 19 times for 113 yards and 1 touchdown.

He capped off the drive with a 6-yard touchdown run around the left end as time expired in the third quarter. The point-after failed, and Cherokee led 19-6 going into the final quarter.

Cherokee's defense held stiff in the fourth and didn't allow the Warriors to move the ball at all. In fact, the Braves' defense added the final points on the board as Michael Bernhisel, senior cornerback, intercepted a Choctaw pass and returned it 50 yards to the house. Cherokee converted the two-point conversion to make it 27-6 which is how the game would end.

The Braves were led defensively by senior linebackers Joaquin Layno and Kyler Hill with 12 tackles each.

The Braves have a bye week coming up. They are in action next on Friday, Sept. 7 as they host Asheville School at Ray Kinsland Stadium.

RUNNING: Isaiah Evans (#5), Braves senior running back, breaks a tackle during a run in the first half. On the night, Evans ran the ball 19 times for 113 yards and 1 touchdown.

LEADERS: Former Principal Chief Ed Taylor (left), who was instrumental in starting the Battle of the Nations game along with the late Mississippi Band of Choctaw Indians Chief Phillip Martin, is shown at the pre-game coin toss with Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed and EBCI Secretary of State Bill Taylor, Chief Taylor's son.

QB: Bobby Crowe, Braves junior quarterback, drops back for a pass in the first half of Friday's game. On the night, he completed 8 of 18 passes for 151 yards and 2 touchdowns.

TEAMWORK: Braves linebackers Kyler Hill (#23) and Ayden Evans (#8) combine on a tackle of Choctaw's Joshua Jordan. On the night, Hill, senior, was co-leader for the Braves in tackles with 12.

ON THE SIDELINES

Sports provide moments in time

SCOTT MCKIE B.P.

ONE FEATHER STAFF

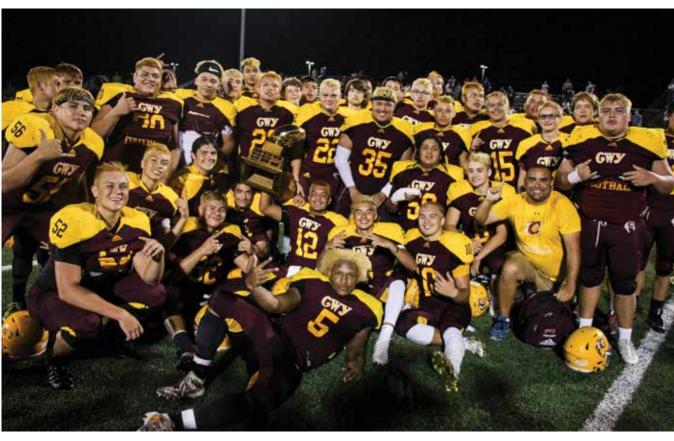

his past Friday, I had the pleasure of watching the Cherokee Braves hoist the Battles of the Nations trophy - a feat they've accomplished three consecutive years. As I began to think of the game and the overall atmosphere, I realized that the photo I took of them posing with the trophy was truly a moment caught in time as all photographs are.

Famous landscape photographer, the late Ansel Adams, once said, "There are always two people in every picture: the photographer and the viewer."

Now, being a landscape photographer, most of the photographs he took during his career were devoid of people, but he understood the relationship a camera lens can make between the person looking through it and the people looking at the resulting photo later.

During most football games, I'll take several hundred, maybe more, photos, and I'll put 40-50 on the One Feather Facebook page and use a few in the print edition. Each photo I take is a moment of time. It is a split-second of a person's life that I manage to capture.

In the case of the team's trophy photo from Friday, I really thought about the team as a whole. This group of young men will never have that moment again. Even if some of them return next season and defeat Choctaw again, that will be a different moment. Friday's moment was Friday's moment.

SCOTT MCKIE B.P./One Feather

In that group of Braves players, there may be future Principal Chiefs, Vice Chiefs, or Council Representatives. There may be future coaches, teachers, or tribal employees. Some will continue their football career in college. Some will end their football days this season. Some will become husbands, fathers, grandfathers, uncles, and may take their children to future Battle of the Nations games.

Rachel Morrison, noted cinematographer who most recently worked on the Marvel film "Black Panther", once noted, "Photography was a way for me to freeze time and to capture the moments that were happy and healthy. I saw a photo as a way to go back to a memory if I ever needed to."

In this fast-paced world dominated by social media, we are inundated daily with memes and videos, but some have lost the subtle art of a good, solid photograph. Videos capture an event, but a photograph captures a moment - a second in time.

I hope that the players in Friday's game can look back at the photograph of them holding the trophy in 10 or 20 years and feel the same pride they did that night. Good game boys, you should be proud, and thanks for letting me be a very small part of that moment.

Cherokee Nation crowns new Junior Miss Cherokee

AHLEQUAH, Okla. – Cherokee Nation citizen Kaitlyn Pinkerton, 15, of Claremore, was crowned 2018-19 Junior Miss Cherokee after competing at the 27th Annual Junior Miss Cherokee Competition Saturday.

While representing the Tribe as Junior Miss Cherokee, Pinkerton, a sophomore at Claremore High School, will serve as a goodwill ambassador to promote the Cherokee Nation and share the culture and history of the tribe.

"All of our Cherokee ambassadors set an important example for our tribe, and earning the title of Junior Miss Cherokee is something to be very proud of," Cherokee Nation Deputy Chief S. Joe Crittenden said. "We are very proud to have a young lady with such grace and heart for people to serve in this position over the next year. Chief Baker, I and the rest of our administration look forward to serving alongside her in the coming months."

Pinkerton is the daughter of Amy Pinkerton and is a member of the Cherokee National Youth Choir. "It feels so surreal to earn this title," Pinkerton said. "My favorite part of the competition is always making new friends, and I think that is what I am most looking forward to about serving as Junior Miss Cherokee as well. I love to meet new people, and that will definitely be a great part of this experience."

to an impromptu question.

One of four contestants, Pinkerton received high marks for her language skills, as well as her rendition of the song "North Wind" performed in Cherokee. Her platform speech focused on the importance of mental health awareness, a topic that she has shared all over the United States.

"My platform is about mental health awareness and how important it is to address the stigma that surrounds it," Pinkerton said. Along with her new title, Pinkerton has plans to continue her work with mental health awareness, including organizing a school club called youth MOVE.

Glimmers of hope

ROBERT JUMPER

ONE FEATHER EDITOR

In some ways, we live in a dark world. Earthquakes. Fires. Floods. Drug addiction. Murder. Rape. Child Abduction. Human trafficking. Deadly diseases. Sociopathic behavior. In the town hall meeting to discuss opioid abuse, the moderator asked for a show of hands as to individuals in the audience who had been impacted personally by the opioid epidemic. Nearly the entire audience raised their hands. It used to be a rarity to see a capital crime in the mountains, particularly in the seven western-most counties of North Carolina. Now, we are shocked if we manage a 24-hour period without a horrific crime or cataclysmic crisis. It would be easy to be a pessimist in the world in which we live. Misery loves company.

We, at the One Feather, were once asked to remove the photos from the arrest report because it was felt that we should not show people at the lowest points in their lives. And, while that is a noble and compassionate gesture, in our decision-making process, we also had to consider that part of our responsibility to the community is to inform and protect. Many of our readers felt similarly that we should print the photos so that potential threats to the community could be more easily identified. We compromised by removing the photos from the print edition but continuing to post them at the website.

After working out a few communications bugs, the pictures are back in the online arrest reports. The Cherokee Indian Police Department has been an outstanding partner in providing information to the community about these arrests. We know that those who appear on the arrest report are innocent until proven guilty and we always post that disclaimer with any information about arrests. In addition to that report, we work with the Cherokee Tribal Court to publish the Cherokee court dockets and judgment reports.

We appreciate both the Cherokee Indian Police Department and the Cherokee Court System for their collaboration with us in providing this important information to the community. You are better protected and informed when our law enforcement and judicial system see the value of transparency in reporting their activities.

In 2016, a new department was created to publicize the Tribe's activities in a positive light. The Office of Communications was established, and a team assembled. The department focuses on highlighting cultural and governmental success stories, in addition to helping document Cherokee community and business. They document via audio and video recordings that are distributed via the internet and cable. The department has inspired other local artists to experiment with the internet to promote cultural awareness. The Communications Department is still growing, developing innovative ways to make it easier for you to engage in Cherokee culture. Communications also navigate the technology that allows you so see Tribal Council sessions on cable tv and your smart devices. The Communications team is another step in the right direction regarding transparency in government. The Tribe has finally established a structure for capital growth. We now have a functioning LLC board, Kituwah Economic Development Board, to parse revenue stream opportunities for the Tribe. They now have the flexibility to seize opportunities and execute projects without the cumbersome processes that are typically involved in government approval. This entity has the potential to make new and sustainable revenue streams for our community and provide more opportunities for growth in services for the Cherokee people.

Innovative thinkers in the Operations Division took a passion for a hobby and turned it into a fast-growing, popular regional attraction. The Fire Mountain Trails system is still in its infancy, and yet, it has become one of the most talked about attractions in the seven western counties. Hikers and bikers are singing the praises of the trail, loudly, attracting the press and hundreds of enthusiasts to come and experience what Cherokee has to offer. Members of our community and those outside are

Why you should vote in all elections

Decisions made at all levels of government (President and Congress in Washington, DC, General Assembly in Raleigh and County Commissioners, Sheriffs, Courts, etc.) impact your daily lives. All federal laws passed by the US Congress directly impact us in our local communities. How our North Carolina State Representative and Senator votes on issues such as fracking, Medicaid expansion, education, Indian Health Service, environmental issues, etc. should be a concern to you.

You have the right to vote in county, state, and national elections. American Indians sent more volunteers, per capita, to fight America's wars, than any other group of people in America. Many Cherokee people have fought and died for the freedom to give you the right to vote. Take full advantage of this right as your vote does count. Many elections have been won by one or two votes. Voting makes sure your voice and opinions are heard. Convicted felons can now vote in North Carolina if they have served their time and are no longer on probation or parole.

Be an informed voter. Don't believe the negative ads you see on TV, what is mailed to you or on social media. If the person running for office is currently serving, check out their voting record and who their major contributors are. If they have not been in office, check out their platform and look at what they have done in their lives and how that might agree with your concerns and values.

The Electoral College applies only to the presidential election and does not have any effect on other political races. There are no presidential elections this year, but there will be in 2020. Whoever is elected president appoints Supreme Court Justices whose appointments are for life and can determine the course of history for generations.

Two EBCI members from Jackson and Swain Counties will be on the November ballot. You can register to vote at any time at your local Board of Elections during regular office hours. The date for the general election is Nov. 6. The deadline for registering for the Nov. 6 election is Oct. 12. However, you can register and vote during the early voting period from Oct. 17 to Nov. 3 and you need to provide a photo ID. A tribal enrollment card is acceptable. In the general election in November, you can vote for anyone from any party.

Regardless of what party you are or what candidates you support, please exercise your right to vote and vote by absentee ballot, early voting or on Election Day. The future of your children, grandchildren and the Tribe is at stake.

COMMENTARY

Reader upset with Jackson County Board "shenanigans"

ast night, I attended the Jackson County Board of Commissioners meeting specifically to apologize to Commissioner Charles Elders.

I was appointed to the DSS (Department of Social Services) Board last year. The commissioners voted to combine the Health Department with DSS this year and the commissioners offered me a seat on that combined Health Services Board. From the very first meeting, complaints have been logged ad nauseam and ad infinitum regarding the reasons for the Commissioners decision. In fact, one board member made a motion to have the county manager request from the Commissioners a written explanation for the merger of the two departments.

At the first Board meeting, one member resigned after being sworn-in. To say it has been contentious is putting it mildly! The Commissioners declined to submit a letter, so the new Health Services Board member that submitted the original request made a motion to withhold consent on hiring a director for the combined departments "until after the November elections." I thought I would be serving on a Board that would help people, not serving on a Board that wanted to usurp the powers of the elected Board of Commissioners. The newly formed Health Services Board is not an elected Board. The county did not have an opportunity to vote on those appointments. The Jackson County Board of Commissioners, however, were elected by the people of the county. That is a political move pure and simple. However, I was having trouble with how to respond to the motion — should I say "aye" or "nay?" I said "aye". Upon reflection, I determined I made an error in that vote.

The Commissioners' vote to combine DSS and the Health Department was 3-2 split along party lines. The reason the combined Board member made the motion to forestall the hiring of a new Combined Board Director until after the election was a political move, hoping to put a liberal in Commissioner Charles Elders' seat in November so that the liberal could dissolve the union. She has already stated she will do that if elected! I don't even think she has participated in any fact finding from other counties who have succeeded in the merger!

The contention is because it creates a new position – director over the combined Departments. Yet, isn't that what the Left always seeks – an increase in government jobs? Bill Clinton heartily approved such events, as does the Democratic Party. The reason for these shenanigans is to try to dislodge Charles Elders from his seat on the County Commissioners to put in a liberal who has already stated she plans to dissolve the union if elected.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Reader complains about treatment in area hospital

Editor's Note - The author of this editorial letter has stated that the Cherokee Indian Hospital is not the hospital referred to in his letter. Cherokee people are often referred out to hospitals in this region.

 $oldsymbol{A}$ ll of us who rely upon the local news as a $oldsymbol{\Lambda}$ monitor have heard and borne witness to the fault lines in our great nation. Core values, common decency, and social mores have been set spinning. The causes -multitudinous and complex - demonstrate divisions not seen since the Civil War.

Citizens are out of sync with one another – a gross absence of social consensus. The nation and communities are undergoing trail, if not tribulation. A while before the sexual harassment allegation epidemic instancing another fracture in our American solidarity began becoming daily news, I, a male patient, experienced sexual harassment by a female employee at a regional hospital in a small town in the western North Carolina mountains.

What was yelled at me and the actions following, without any provocation constituted: assault, premeditated discrimination, infliction of intentional pain and suffering, and sexual harassment by this hospital's employee on a patient.

At the top of her lungs, in a waiting room full of patients, she screamed at me, "You are a male sexist chauvinist pig".

Within one-minute, hospital security was compelling me to depart. The party was deaf to my physical suffering and assumed that I was responsible as patient where the power lies with the employee. Now, these were "fighting words", not only heard in bars, but in a hospital to a patient! Odds are one in 50 million. But, at a small subsidiary of a nationally top-ranked North Carolina health system in a western North Carolina mountain town-utterly unbelievable!

Upon review by hospital CEO and subsidiary unit, after initial misrepresentation, it was determined that this employee called me, before a host of waiting patients, a "male sexist chauvinist pig". Required to immediately depart, I felt physical suffering, slandered, humiliated, and in a state of shock and profound disheartenment. Needless to say, my attempts to obtain an apology were ignored to the top of the leadership of the hospital-the chancellor of the 17th top ranked health system in the nation. My purpose to the public is not to grieve before it but cite an example of how terribly lax we are as a society, as a culture, as a people, and as a country. Fragmented, fractured, and in chaos, I hope and pray that we can mend our ways before the patterns in motion overwhelm us.

Charles Elders is one of the finest men in this county. He cares a great deal more about service to those in need than do those jockeying with politics. Elders would like to see the new Health Services Department become more efficient and cost saving. Other counties have reported this came about for them, according to some of the other Commissioners. It doesn't necessarily mean it would for Jackson County, but more oversight is a good thing.

I apologize to you, Charles Elders, for falling into that political trap. I volunteered to serve on the DSS Board and Health Services Board to give back to this wonderful community. I did not expect to be pressured into this political mess. Shame on those who try to jam politics down people's throats!

having fun and getting healthy in the process by challenging themselves to challenge the Fire Mountain Trails.

There was a great moment in Tribal Council during budget hearings last week that I think all of us should go back and watch (https://ebci. com/live-streams/). Tribal Council Chairman Adam Wachacha was addressing the Housing Division budget and issues with Qualla Housing Authority. There has been some discussion on duplication of services and audit findings that were repeated year after year.

During the discussion, some thoughts were expressed as to how this could happen and who was accountable. Chairman Wachacha said, "I think the blame game here probably needs to stop because, like I said, we are all included in this. We sit in these seats. We oversee these programs. We manage these budgets. And, we get to the point where we are at. These audits will probably reflect that and that we wanted these things taken care of. Duplication of services. They were overseen by Deputies before, now Secretaries so, I don't know, I just feel like sometimes that (extremely poor) performance is because of (extremely poor) leadership. And that could be all of us. That could be this Council. It could be the Board over there. That could be the Executive Office. But, these are some hard-working employees that I don't think needs to take any of the blame because all they are doing is taking direction."

Chairman Wachacha acknowledged that the buck stops at the top. If blame must be assessed for failures, the first place to look is management But why focus time and energy on that? Hope for a better future is what we do moving forward, recognizing the past only to avoid repeating it. I encourage you to share your examples of glimmers of hope. A single glimmer or spark can be the beginning of a bonfire.

Statistics shows that every year there are 17 million people potentially vying for roughly three million shelter animals. So even if 80 percent of those people acquired their animal from somewhere other than a shelter, we could still zero out the killing of healthy and treatable animals.
