Cherokee celebrates World Breastfeeding Week

World Breastfeeding Week (WBW) is Aug. 1-7 and the EBCI WIC Program hosted a Breastfeeding Awareness Celebration on Wednesday, July 31 at the Acquoni Expo Center. The World Alliance for Breastfeeding Action (WABA) is helping to celebrate WBW in over 174 countries with this year's theme, "Breastfeeding Support: Close to Mothers".

Georganna Cogburn, MS, RD, LDN, IBCLC, Buncombe County WIC director, was the keynote speaker for Wednesday's event. "Our goal...is to support our moms with breastfeeding."

She related that there are numerous health benefits for the babies including decreased risks of stomach viruses, respiratory illnesses and ear infections and long-term decreased risks of obesity and type 2 diabetes. "If you're doing something to protect your child, that's a very good start."

"It's protective for the mom as well," she said relating that mothers who breastfeed see a decreased risk of uterine cancer, breast cancer and type 2 diabetes.

In addition to the health benefits, Cogburn related that breastfeeding can save around $1,500 a year in food costs. "We're wanting a healthier future for our mom and babies."

Jerry White was at Wednesday's event with her one-year-old son Joey Panther whom she has breastfed since birth. "It worked good with him. He took right to it. He's been a healthy, healthy baby."

Tina Hornbuckle, EBCI WIC breastfeeding peer counselor, related, "We are here for the new moms and try to be supportive of them. This isn't just a job, I love and care about them as a person."

WABA chairperson Dr. Felicity Savage said in a statement, "Peer counseling is a cost effective way to make skilled help available to mothers, and enables mothers to have more support than health professionals alone can provide. Peer counselors, or peer supporters, are usually women from the community who are trained to support breastfeeding, regardless of their educational background."

Harrah's Cherokee donates $15,000 to NC Senior Games

Harrah's Cherokee

NC Senior Games President and Executive Director Brad Allen and Senior Games board member Sue Bent accept a $15,000 donation for the organization's state finals from Harrah's Cherokee Casino Resort VP of Human Resources and External Relations Jo Blaylock and Community Relations Specialist Janna Hyatt.

Harrah's Cherokee Casino Resort donated $15,000 to the North Carolina Senior Games, Inc. (NCSG) for its annual Senior Games state finals. This year marks the 29th anniversary of the Senior Games state finals, and the 12th year Harrah's Cherokee has sponsored the event. "The support of Harrah's is critically important to the western part of our state, but also to every corner of every community - all across North Carolina," Brad Allen, NCSG president and executive director, said. "Once again, Harrah's has shown its dedication to the ideals of health across the lifespan and a significant commitment to providing health and wellness opportunities for older persons."

North Carolina has the largest Senior Games program in the nation with 53 local games serving all 100 counties and more than 60,000 year-round participants. The state finals in Raleigh will bring together over 3,200 qualifiers from the local games and more than 900 volunteers throughout September and October. Competitive categories include visual arts, literary arts, performing arts, heritage arts, as well as over 40 sporting events. The 2013 state finals is set to be one of the largest in history.

"We are proud to support Senior Games and look forward to state finals in a few weeks," Jo Blaylock, Harrah's Cherokee Casino Resort VP of Human Resources and External Relations, said. "Being active is important to good health as we age, and the artists and athletes of the Senior Games inspire us all to do just that. Senior Games are important all year long, and we are proud to offer our support in many ways."

A full schedule of events and volunteer activities can be found at www.ncseniorgames.org.

WCU Academic Success Program, community partners raise $4,000 for nonprofits

CULLOWHEE - Western Carolina University's Academic Success Program and community partners raised nearly $4,000 for The Community Table, Jackson Neighbors in Need and Communities in Schools during the third annual ASP Day of Service held July 20.

Nearly $2,000 of the $4,000 raised to benefit the three Jackson County nonprofit organizations came from the ASP Day of Service festival held at Bridge Park. The event featured carnival games for children, a raffle, live music, informational booths for local nonprofit organizations, a benefit lunch from Harrah's Cherokee Casino Resort and a fake jail fundraiser. An evening benefit concert was performed by PMA and Porch 40. Meanwhile, Walmart of Sylva provided $1,500 in grant awards to the nonprofit organizations and served as a designated donation site, collecting an additional $500 in donations and items from the nonprofits' wish lists.

In addition, about 170 ASP students and faculty and staff members from WCU completed more than 900 hours of service for Catman2, Appalachian Homestead Farm and Preserve, the Sylva Rotary, the Community Garden, WATR river cleanup, Pathways Thrift Store and a roadside cleanup along Highway 107 and Old Cullowhee Road. Partnering on the service effort were ASP, Walmart, Harrah's Cherokee Casino Resort, the Town of Sylva, the WCU Center for Service Learning, the Sylva Rotary, WCU Athletics, WRGC, the Sylva Police Department and other Sylva businesses and nonprofit organizations.

For more information, contact Glenda Hensley, director of First Year Experiences at WCU, at ghensley@wcu.edu or 828-227-2786, or visit fye.wcu.edu online.

Tunica-Biloxi Tribe Chairman passes away

Tunica-Biloxi Tribe of Louisiana Chairman Earl J. Barbry Sr. passed away on Wednesday, July 31.

ALEXANDRIA, La. - Tunica-Biloxi Tribe of Louisiana Chairman Earl J. Barbry Sr. passed away on Wednesday, July 31 at CHRISTUS Saint Frances Cabrini Hospital in Alexandria, Louisiana.

Chairman Barbry was elected Tribal Chairman in 1978 and was appointed as Tribal Administrator that same year. He had served in these capacities to this day. Under his leadership, amazing changes took place. Where once there were barren fields and wooded areas with a few shanties scattered about, one may now see a unique and modern housing development, Tribal Administrative Office, a Health Department and Social Services Office, Gaming Board and Gaming Commission Office, and Tribal Police and Court Building. Tribal landholdings also significantly increased during Barbry's tenure as Chairman. During his leadership, the Tunica-Biloxi Tribe of Louisiana received federal recognition in September of 1981.

Online guide lists WCU as 'College of Distinction'

CULLOWHEE - Western Carolina University has been designated a "College of Distinction" for 2013-14 by an online guide that provides information for prospective college students, their parents and high school counselors.

WCU is one of eight colleges and universities in North Carolina recognized by the website collegesofdistinction.com, which puts the spotlight on the "hidden gems" of higher education. Schools listed on the website are judged in four areas: engaged students, great teaching, vibrant communities and successful outcomes.

Colleges are nominated for the honor by high school counselors, college administrators and the website's selection team. Schools are selected based on interviews with college admission experts, representatives from the nominated schools and administrators at other colleges, and the results of site visits. Other information such as graduation rates and classroom sizes also is considered.

In its section about WCU, that guide says the university "is on the cutting edge of technology, but it holds onto the timeless tradition of a personal approach to education, which has been a hallmark since the university's inception in 1889." For more information about the online guide and to see WCU's profile, go to <http://www.collegesofdistinction.com>.

Dig into Reading Top Readers

The Qualla Boundary Public Library has named its two top readers in this summer's Dig into Reading program. Alexandria Herndon (right photo) was the top reader in the teen category with 8,741 minutes and Tia Panther was the top readers in the 12 and under category with 2,275 minutes read. "Thank you to all of the children and parents who participated in the summer reading program," said Robin Swayney, Qualla Library manager. "A great big thank you to the Gem Mine, The Gem Arcade, and the Black light Golf from Saunooke village and the Cherokee Phoenix Theater for donating reading prizes. Thank you to Sarah and Kevin Welch, from the Extension office, for helping with the programing for our reading nights."

BabyFACE holds Daytime Group at Library

Cherokee BabyFACE held its first Daytime Group recently at the Qualla Library. Robin Swayney, Qualla Boundary Public Library manager, gave parents information on the importance of reading to their children daily and bringing them to the library. She helped the children make Library bags to transport their books in and had story time.

BabyFACE education highly values early literacy skills. The Parent Educators, Alissa Lambert and Jessica Wheatley take families two books per month and encourage parents to read daily to their child. Families are also enrolled in the Dolly Parton Imagination Library and receive one book a month in the mail. BabyFACE would like to encourage all families to visit the library with

I am a Birdtown native. I care about our Community and our Tribe and believe I can make a positive difference for our people. I have enjoyed visiting with my community members and hearing your concerns. We must protect our present and invest in our future. In order to achieve this, I believe in the following:

- Communication – it is important to keep our community informed of current issues and hear their concerns
- Expense Reduction – eliminate excessive and wasteful spending and “live within our means”
- Capital Growth— invest in areas which create sustainable opportunities and jobs for our people
- Treatment Center – establish an effective treatment center with necessary resources to help our troubled members
- Protection of the Minor’s Fund – use existing resources and debt options, don’t borrow from our youth

I am asking you to help our community by voting for me on Election Day.

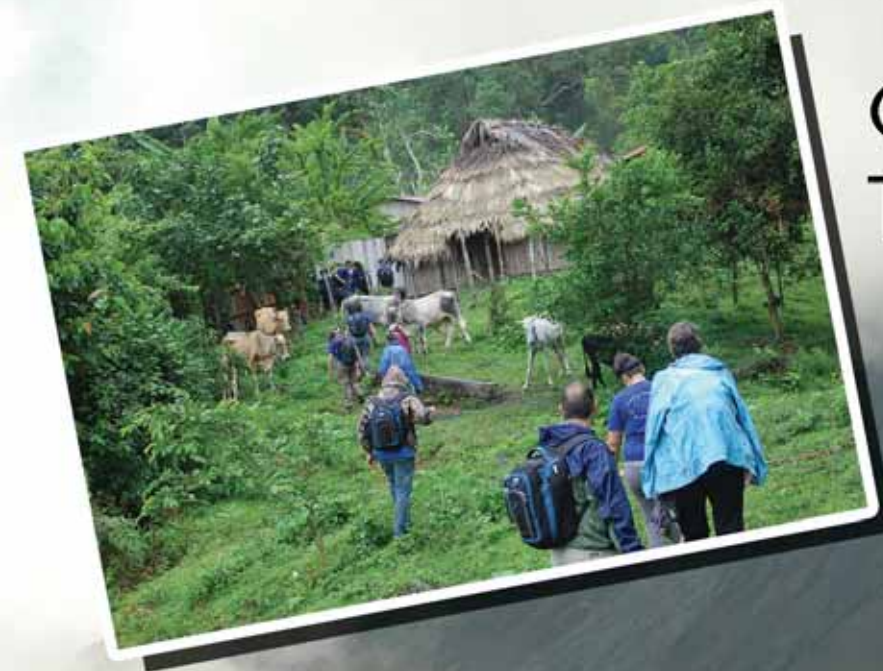

Please join me on at a cookout on August 17th from 4pm-7pm at the Birdtown Community Building

I look forward to seeing you then.

COSTA RICAN ADVENTURE

10 STUDENTS AND FIVE CHAPERONES TAKE ON THE 2013 ECO-STUDY TOUR

By TAMMY JACKSON
EBCI EXTENSION OFFICE

Ten high school students and five chaperones from Cherokee and western North Carolina boarded a plane in Atlanta, Ga. on June 10. Their destination: the beautiful Republic of Costa Rica. For most of the group, traveling to a foreign country would be a truly “foreign” experience.

These students were part of the 2013 Costa Rica Eco-Study Tour which is a hands-on living classroom. Through the various events the students participated in, their eyes were opened to the many facets of sustainability, integrated animal production, and peri-urban farming. These were terms that most of the students had not even heard before or knew what they meant.

Students observed how the Costa Rican people are developing a system that recycles and reuses items that we often do not think twice about throwing away. They are learning how to take the resources they have available and make them work for their world. Their goal is to be the first nation in the world to eliminate a carbon footprint.

For twelve days, the students hiked, swam, rode horses, rafted and sweated; all the while observing the beautiful scenery of the coasts of the Pacific and Caribbean oceans, and the majestic view of Mount Arenal volcano. They saw sloths, monkeys, birds, crocodiles, snakes, spiders and butterflies. The beauty of creation was before their eyes every day and without their cell phones, Ipads or Ipods, they took the time to experience it.

The result was that each student

Jacquelyn Bruun and Kyle Chapa were two of the 2013 Costa Rica Eco-Study Tour students who visited the country in June.

walked away from this Eco-Study Tour with a desire to make his or her world a little better. As the students met the Costa Rican indigenous people, they came to appreciate their contentment with the resources afforded them and their desire to help their own people through future partnerships with groups such as this.

“We are all grateful to the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians and the Cherokee Preservation Foundation for supporting this experience,” said Tammy Jackson, EBCI Extension Office and one of the trip’s chaperones. “We are also thankful for the EBCI Extension Office for staffing the tour and providing the support and facility to plan and prepare for the event. We also thank the parents, grandparents and the Cherokee community for their encouragement and support.”

Participants in this year’s tour including the following students and chaperones: students - Andrew Johnson, Jacob Long, Kyle Chapa, Conner Luckey-Smith, Keanu Crowe, Cree Rockwood, Jacquelyn Bruun, Shelby Lossiah, Katie Jacobs, Savannah Black; chaperones – Alicia Jacobs, David Cozzo, Janet Smith, Alex Mascerrilli and Tammy Jackson.

There is so much more that could be shared that cannot be written in this news article. One of the final requirements for each tour participant is that they schedule and do a presentation of the trip to their local community club, school, church or any other organization that is interested in hearing about their experience. If you would like one of the students to share his or her experience with your group or organization, contact one of the students directly or the EBCI Extension Office. For information on the 2014 Eco-Study Tour, contact EBCI Extension Office 554-6934.

UNITY fostering development of American Indian youth

A unique feature of our Native communities, and other communities like ours throughout Indian Country, is our connection to one another. This unity is more than just ethnicity, tribal affiliation, or even a spiritual one, it is also our ancestor's collective historic experience, and more importantly, our hope for a better future for our tribes, and all Native peoples. To this end, this week's highlighted opportunity for youth involvement is UNITY.

UNITY's mission is to "foster the spiritual, mental, physical and social development of American Indian and Alaska Native youth, and to help build a strong, unified and self-reliant Native America through involvement of its youth."

Recognizing that successful change must start with a proactive and involved youth, UNITY has served the leadership needs of American Indian and Alaska Native youth for 37 years. Today UNITY is a national organization with over 140 youth councils operating in 31 states and Canada.

UNITY founder J.R. Cook, a Cherokee Nation citizen from Oklahoma, worked with Native youth in leadership development for more than three decades. The organization grew from a small group of interested Indian youth in southwestern Oklahoma in 1976 to a national organization today with affiliated youth councils whose efforts and initiatives have touched the lives of thousands of Native youth. Cook devoted a decade of his life to the Upward Bound project at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford, Okla. and became aware that there was more pressure for Indian youth to fail than to succeed. He saw the need for an organization to help Native youth use their talents in a positive way. Cook began working with the Weatherford community to purchase and renovate a building that housed the Southwest Indian Cultural Center. Through the center, a dropout prevention and cultural retention education grant was received to work with students in 10 public schools in western Oklahoma. The project was so successful in increasing self-esteem among participants that Cook was presented with the opportunity expand his efforts to regional and national levels.

On April 16, 1976, United National Indian Tribal Youth, Inc. was incorporated as a non-profit organization in the state of Oklahoma to develop leadership among Native American youth. UNITY relocated its headquarters in 1978 to Oklahoma City.

At the 1980 National UNITY Conference in Great Falls, Montana, youth shaped their future by writing a "Declaration for Independence" in an initiative to take charge of their destiny. Youth pledged to be involved in the governmental decision-making process and promote economic development. The "Declaration" gained national attention and today Native American youth across the country are taking charge of their lives by serving others. They are helping their reservations, villages and communities by establishing tutoring programs, dance troupes, clean up days, healthy lifestyles campaigns, and other activities and projects to enrich their communities, and in doing so, their own lives. One of the organization's most recent campaigns is the "Together, We Will!" campaign calling for positive change in a "spirit of unity." The program empowers and engages the voices of youth in advocating for needed social changes, preserving Native cultures, building greater self-reliance, adopting healthy lifestyles, protecting the environment, creating coalitions for effecting change, strengthening families, understanding tribal sovereignty, and participating in all levels of government. UNITY is calling for supporters and its network of affiliated youth councils to send your stories and photos describing how individuals, youth councils, and others are working together to make a difference. Learn more about how you and your community can become involved and contribute to this campaign by contacting the UNITY office or by sending an email with your request for information to TogetherWeWill@unityinc.org.

Personally, I am considering beginning a UNITY council in my community and encourage youth to get involved in this outstanding organization. For more information, visit the UNITY website at www.unityinc.org today.

Still time for a vegetable garden!

By SARAH MCCLELLAN-WELCH

The unusual high amount of rainfall this summer has wreaked havoc on our vegetable gardens. The soil stayed unusually cool and many crops, especially the warm-season ones like melons, cucumbers and corn had to be replanted. Bean plants suffered with yellowing leaves as the rain washed nitrogen, sulfur and other vital nutrients from the soil. Gardens and fields hit the hardest by the rain were in standing water for days and the crops drowned.

In Cherokee, we are blessed not only with plenty of rain, but also with a long growing season. There is still time to plant and harvest crops this year! Our first frost date is unpredictable, coming sometime in October. But we can count on at least 60 good days of warm weather for growing one more vegetable garden this year. Getting in one more harvest is possible with careful plant selection.

To beat the end-of-season clock, plant early maturing varieties

now. Soak the seeds overnight in plain water to speed up the germination process. Early Prolific Straight-neck Squash will produce tender yellow squash in only 48 days once the seedlings are up and growing. Zucchini and Bush Scallop Squash are similar short season crops. Peanut Beans, Provider and Bush Romano will be producing in 50 days. With careful variety selection, cucumbers like Little Leaf, Straight Eights, White Wonder and Spacemaster still have time to be successful.

Some types of vegetables are cold tolerant and will continue to produce even after a light frost. Sugar Ann Snap Peas will be ready in 56 days and will keep producing through the cool temperatures at the end of the season. Radishes are a reliable quick 30 day crop. If you can find transplants, you can still grow broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage before hard frost hits the garden. Mustard, Turnips and Kale, planted now, can be harvested this fall and again next spring!

Read seed packets and seed catalogs to find the number of "days to maturity" or how quickly each vegetable variety will produce. It time to plant quick growing vegetables. Plant your late season garden in full sun to take advantage of every growing day left in the year. For more information contact Sarah at 554-6935.

EBCI youth represent tribe at UNITY Conference

LOS ANGELES, Cali. - More than 1200 Native American youth from throughout the United States attended the National UNITY Conference in Los Angeles, Cali. The Eastern Band of Cherokee representatives consisted of eight community youth leaders from the Cherokee Youth Council. The group performed the traditional frog dance and presented their own workshop session called "Let's Set the Record Straight".

Sky Sampson, the Cherokee Youth Council Program Manager said, "Our youth wanted to share our culture and minimize stereotypes about Cherokees within Indian Country and that's exactly what they did," said Sky Sampson, Cherokee Youth Council program manager. "This past year's elected representative, Simon Montelongo, was elected once again to represent UNITY throughout the southeast region. We are very proud of our young leaders and all that they are doing to educate others about us."

Gettin' Wild: Lamb's quarters

By DR. DAVID COZZO
EBCI EXTENSION CENTER

In midsummer, the wild greens from the forest get a little thin. But don't worry, there are some excellent weeds in the garden that more than make up for the lack in the woods. Lamb's quarters is one of these. A relative of spinach and beets, lamb's quarters (also known as goosefoot) doesn't have to be encouraged or pampered. Once it has gone to seed anywhere near your garden, you will have plenty. One plant can produce up to 75,000 seeds and the seeds stay viable in the soil for up to 30 years. This adds to its reputation as a pesky weed. But there is much more to lamb's quarters than meets the eye.

How often have you babied your spinach, only to have it bolt as soon as it starts to get warm and before you get a meal out of it? And I'll bet you weeded out the lamb's quarters from your spinach patch? Next time keep the lamb's quarters and weed out the spinach. You'll get more back for your effort. Lamb's quarters tastes a lot like its cousin spinach, but it is much more nutritious. It has a similar amount of Vitamin A, more than three times the Vitamin C, slightly more protein, and almost twice the calcium of spinach. And, while only slightly tougher in a

Cherokee Idol seeking contestants

The Cherokee Idol Contest will be held at the Cherokee Fairgrounds in the Amphitheatre. A three night elimination is planned beginning Tuesday, Oct. 1 at 8:30pm. Phase two will be held on Thursday, Oct. 3 at 9pm and the finale is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 4 at 9:30pm.

Contestants will perform three different musical styles-R&B/Hip Hop, Country and Rock. Contestants will be asked to prepare a song from each genre for each night of the performance. Each night, the MC will randomly draw the style of music each artist will perform.

A random draw for the line -up of contestants will determine the order the contestants will perform each night. Contestants will be required to have their music for any of the three categories ready to go one hour before show time with it labeled clearly so that the sound technicians will have it ready for the performance.

Contestants will be judged on: stage presence, vocal performance and crowd reaction. Contestants must be an EBCI tribal member.

A grand prize winner and runner up will be selected. Grand prize is $1000 and the runner up will receive $500.

There are a limited number of slots available. To register as a contestant, call or email Chris Watty at 828-554-6486 or email at chriwatt@nc-chokeee.com.

Mountain Mediation Services holding raffle fundraiser

The "Myrtle Beach Fall Get-Away," sponsored by Mountain Mediation Services (MMS), gives the winner their choice of fall dates to visit the coast. Raffle tickets are available at several local businesses in the area including: City Lights Bookstore and Jack the Dipper in Sylva, United Community Bank in Bryson City, Attorney Brad Tisdale in Franklin, Blue Ridge Books in Waynesville, Joey's Pancake House in Maggie Valley, and with Carol Long at Tribal Court in Cherokee. Tickets are $5/each or three tickets for $12. For more information or to purchase tickets online, view MMS' website at www.mountainmediation.org.

Proceeds support mediation services, bullying prevention, and conflict resolution trainings. Mountain Mediation trained over 2,000 youth last year in local schools impacting students from Haywood to Swain County. Mediation for interpersonal disputes is available to individuals and businesses in the community. For mediation referrals, contact MMS at 631-5252 or 452-0240. The drawing will be held Sunday, Aug. 25 at MMS' Volunteer Appreciation Picnic in Clyde; attendance is not required to win.

Per capita notice for new enrollees

To be considered for the December 2013 per capita distribution, a complete enrollment application for a new applicant must be submitted to the Enrollment Office by 4:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 16. Enrollment applications received after this date will not be considered for the December distribution.

An application will only be considered complete with a county certified birth certificate and Certified DNA results sent directly from the lab to the Enrollment Office. To schedule a DNA test in Cherokee, contact Michelle at the EBCI Enrollment office 554-6463. To schedule a DNA test out of town, contact Amber Harrison (918) 685-0478. DNA Testing must be scheduled on or before Aug. 30 to obtain the results before the Sept. 16 deadline.

Because of the extended amount of time in receiving a social security number for a newborn, an application will be considered for enrollment without the social security number. However, an Enrollment Card will not be issued until the Enrollment Office receives the social security number for the new enrollee.

Applications may be obtained from the Enrollment Office located in the Ginger Lynn Welch Complex or you may call the Enrollment Office 554-6467, 554-6465 or 554-6466.

Disaster Relief Assistance Loans available at Sequoyah Fund

Sequoyah Fund has recently received funding from Cherokee Preservation Foundation for a special loan program to assist businesses affected by the landslide. This funding will enable Sequoyah Fund to make low interest loans (1-4 percent) to local businesses which have suffered financial setbacks due to a lack of customers in the first two quarters of 2013.

To be eligible for this loan, a business must be located on the Qualla Boundary or be owned by an EBCI tribal member. The business must also have experienced financial losses between January and June.

This is a loan for temporary assistance, not for business expansion or growth. Business owners who apply for a loan will be asked to provide monthly or quarterly financial statements from the period for which they are claiming losses. Owners may apply for amounts up to the difference between this year and last year's January - June profits.

If you do not have financial statements for the first two quarters of the year, you may still be able to get a disaster relief loan. For businesses without financial statements there will be a $5,000 cap. These business owners will also be required to attend a business accounting (Quickbooks) training before the loan can be disbursed.

If you are interested in a Disaster Relief Assistance loan, contact Sequoyah Fund to see if your business qualifies and for what amount. Feel free to contact Sequoyah Fund if you are interested in other types of assistance as well (creating and reading financial statements, disaster preparedness planning, credit coaching, or other services). Check out their lineup of services and trainings at www.sequoyahfund.org. Info: John Ross (828) 359-5006, johnross@sequoyahfund.org or Russ Seagle (828) 359-5003, russseagle@sequoyahfund.org.

Network Support Specialist

ORGANIZATION: Cherokee Broadband Enterprises (CBE), PO Box 1899, Cherokee, NC 28719 (149 B Children's Home Road)

DEPARTMENT: Network Operations

OPENING DATE: Immediately

CLOSING DATE: August 23, 2013

Cherokee Broadband Enterprise (CBE) is a growing Internet Service Provider serving the Qualla Boundary. CBE provides high-speed wireless and fiber infrastructure solutions to residential customers as well as products and services for small, medium and large businesses, including government agencies. At CBE we encourage creative thinking, ingenuity and offer the opportunity to gain experience in many areas of new and advanced technologies.

Our ideal candidate will be CCNA Networking Certified or currently enrolled in curriculum, a background in Microsoft, UNIX and Data Networking technologies, who will assume responsibility for the day-to-day support of existing wireless and network service clients.

We value a hands-on, proactive attitude and seek an individual who has a passion for complex technical challenges, with a strong sense of pride in quality of work and performance. Our company works in a highly collaborative fashion, but relies on its employees to set priorities, manage deadlines, complete project plans and support daily tasks.

Notification of Wastewater Spill in Jackson County

House Bill 1160, which the General Assembly enacted in July 1999, requires that a municipality, animal operations, industries and others who operate waste handling systems issue news releases when a waste spill of 1,000 gallons or more reaches surface waters.

In accordance with that regulation, the following news release has been prepared and issued to media in the affected county:

The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians had a wastewater spill July 30, 2013 of an estimated 1,000 gallons from a manhole near the Tribal Transfer Station. The untreated wastewater spilled into an unnamed tributary of Shoal Creek in the Little Tennessee River Basin.

The Division of Water Quality was notified of the event on August 2, 2013 and is reviewing the matter. For information contact the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians (828) 497-7000.

salad, it cooks up to taste just like its cousin. Who's calling who a weed here! And it will stand the heat in the garden without getting bitter. Even in a hot year, you can pick lamb's quarters until mid-July. Try to keep your spinach around for that long! Lamb's quarters is easy to recognize in the garden. It is so common most gardeners recognize it from weeding it out of their planted crops. The shape of the leaf does resemble a goose's foot, but one of the easiest ways to identify it is to turn the leaf over. It will have a white, powdery appearance on the back side of the leaf. The flowers are very small and not showy at all, so they are not much help. But once you know the plant from its leaves, it is very easy to identify.

Lamb's quarters seeds were one of the first domesticated plants in North America, with improved seed varieties showing up in the archaeological record as far back as 3,700 years ago. It disappears from the record around the time improved varieties of corn became the basis of the diet. But we still have a close relative from the Andes region of South America around today. The grain quinoa, held sacred by the Incans, is a very close relative of lamb's quarters and was domesticated in the Andes about the same time lamb's quarters was domesticated in the Southeastern US.

You will want to manage your lamb's quarters before it gets out of hand. With so many seeds it might take over. And you may want to weed it out of your tomato patch. It is known to hinder the growth of tomatoes just a bit. But it is a tasty, nutritious green that tolerates summer's heat. Every gardener should think twice before pulling it out of the garden.
