Big Cove Road getting much-needed renovation or years, Cherokee community members have asked for something to be done about road conditions and lack of safe pathways for the Cherokee Central School System that has gone largely ignored. The section of Big Cove Road that connects from Saunooke Village to the new school is narrow. has no sidewalks, and has a lack of lighting for anyone who wishes to travel that segment at night. That is all about to change in the upcoming months thanks to public input and safety concerns shared by Principal Chief Patrick Lambert.

"There is a real lack of adequate walkway for our students and public who wish to travel on this road during the year," says Chief Lambert. "We have to create an infrastructure that allows not only for safe travel, but also enables access to our resources by the public and visitors of this area."

The project, a complete renovation of a segment of Big Cove Road, was triggered by Chief Lambert from discussions held with community members and students who wished to see a better, safer access route into town and around some of the river features such as swimming and fishing locations.

The project cost is currently approximately $2 million, and it is funded through both Endowment and Investment Income which are funds the Tribe received through the original school loan for the project.

In all, the plan is to repave and stripe the road, add sidewalks, and provide lighting for safer evening use. The work completed will tie the Big Cove Road segment to trail use at the "Job Corps Bridge," located near the school, to create a loop for exercise and other mixed-use activities.

"This is a project that will provide new opportunities for public use with little cost to the Tribe," says Chief Lambert. "I will continue to look for these ways to improve our community, my office is always taking public input and putting it to work."

CAPTURING LIFE'S ESSENCE

Long brings NoDAPL message to life in photos

SCOTT MCKIE B.P. ONE FEATHER STAFF

adison Hye Long looks at things differently than most people. She has the eye of a photographer, and sees the world through her lens. The EBCI tribal member will have several of her photographs featured in a show in San Francisco in a gallery called Galeria De La Raza from March 11 – April 30. "The exhibition is entitled 'Echame Aguas' which translates to 'keep a lookout for me' as a gesture of solidarity for all communities being affected by water-related issues that threaten the well-being and existence of our Earth," Long noted of the exhibit.

The photo collection that Long is issuing to the exhibit was inspired by events with the Dakota Access Pipeline (DAPL) that is running close to the Standing Rock Sioux Reservation in North Dakota. "I had a class last semester, and our final was to create a collection of images that had a concept built behind it and a personal meaning to ourselves," she said. "At the time, a lot of indigenous people were being shot with non-lethal weapons, being sprayed with mace, and even being attacked by dogs. My people were being arrested for standing up for what was right."

She added, "I took this situation very personally as did many other indigenous people all throughout the world. That is why I added two young Native American women (Peshawn Bread and Ashley Atencio) to be my models for the collection. I knew I couldn't make it to North Dakota to attend the NoDAPL fight, but I made a message through what I know best...and, that is photography."

Long, a 2015 graduate of Cherokee High School and former Teen Miss Cherokee, is majoring in photography at the Academy of Art University in San Francisco. She plans to attain a bachelor's of fine arts degree within the next three years. Following her graduation, Long said she plans to move back to North Carolina, get a business degree, and "then use both of my degrees and travel all throughout the world taking pictures for, hopefully, companies like National Geographic".

She started her photography journey at the tender age of 12. "My parents had gotten a digital camera while we were on vacation, and I was always taking pictures, printing them, and hanging them all over my wall. I then joined the middle school yearbook club at Cherokee Middle School and since then I have done nothing but grow and love this type of art, so much that I am pursuing it in art school."

Her favorite thing to shoot is landscapes.

"I grew up in the mountains, and the views and colors in the western North Carolina area are unbelievable. But, since I've moved to San Francisco, I've had access to very nice studios...so, now I really enjoy doing editorials and portraiture."

She also feels inspired by the work of other photographers. "I do have many fine artist photographers that inspire me daily such as Edward Weston, Eric Pare, and Annie Leibovitz. I am also very inspired by our local photographers that had made a big impact on my style and editing such as Bear Allison and Luke Sutton."

Long said she is very grateful for the support of the Cherokee community and the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians. "First of all, I want to thank my Tribe that offers free higher education. Without that, I probably wouldn't be here. Our Tribe has great resources. We just need to know how to use them. Secondly, I want to thank my family for supporting and believing in me. I love you all more than you'll ever know."

She went on to give a message to Cherokee youth and students, "I just want the youth to know that you should get out and take advantage of every opportunity you have to better yourself. And, everywhere you go, you are representing the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians."

Pesticide Disposal event to be held in Cherokee he EBCI Cooperative Extension Office is collaborating with the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and Consumer Service to host a Pesticide Disposal Assistance Program event at the Acquoni Expo Center on Tuesday, March 21 from 10am – 2pm. The Pesticide Disposal Assistance Program (PDAP) is a consumer services program of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

The PDAP, part of the Structural Pest Control and Pesticides Division, is a non-regulatory program that provides cost-free assistance to farmers and homeowners. The goal of the Pesticide Disposal Assistance Program is to assist the citizens of North Carolina by managing and supervising the safe collection and lawful disposal of banned, outdated, or unwanted pesticides.

Several precautions should be taken when handling and transporting pesticides. Take time to read and follow the label carefully. It provides information about special hazards and safety instructions for handling and disposing. Wear protective clothing and equipment (googles, gloves, respirator, etc.) as described on the product labels when handling pesticides.

In the event that the product is not labeled or illegible, or the product does not contain a "Hazardous to Humans and Domestic Animals" panel with protective clothing that you would normally wear when applying pesticides, at a minimum wear a long sleeved shirt with buttons at the wrist, a pair of chemical resistant boots, googles or full face shield, and a wide brimmed hat.

Have spill control material available, such commercial absorbent or kitty litter. If a spill occurs prior to transporting, use a shovel to relocate the absorbent and any contaminated soil into a container, such a five-gallon bucket.

Before transporting the pesticide, check all caps, plugs, and stoppers and tighten if necessary. Do not transport the pesticide in the cab of the vehicle with the driver. Secure the pesticide container, either in the trunk of your car or the bed of a truck, to prevent any shifting and container damage. Vapors released from the pesticides can be hazardous and cause the driver and others to become ill or cause injury if spilled.

Upon arrival at the collection site, proceed to the line as directed by the PDAP representative. If pesticide spillage occurs in your vehicle, notify the PDAP representative of the situation.

If you are planning to dispose more than five gallons of a pesticide, please contact your Extension Agent to pre-register. For unlabeled pesticide containers, also contract your Extension Agent as how to accommodate the pesticide for disposal. - EBCI Cooperative Extension

Dear Cherokee Choices - Am I addicted to coffee?

Dear Cherokee Choices,

LOVE coffee! I drink two cups every morning and one in the afternoon. I feel more energized afterwards but I am worried I am addicted. Is this an unhealthy habit that I need to break or is it ok? Sincerely.

Coffee Lover

Dear Coffee Lover,

A s an avid coffee lover I share your affection towards coffee. Coffee is by far one of the most enjoyed beverages around the world. Most of us can attest to the glory of coffee in the morning and even in the afternoon. Coffee does not only prevent us from strangling coworkers in the morning but recent studies are finding health benefits to consuming coffee as well. Here are a few of the benefits below: • The Nurses' Health Study that consisted of 83,073 women showed that regular coffee consumption was associated with a modest reduction in stroke risk.

An additional study found a reduced risk of heart disease with 37,514 participants that consumed a moderate amount of coffee.
Research from the Harvard School of Public Health, shows upping your daily coffee intake by 1.5 cups—or roughly 12 ounces—can lower your risk of developing type 2 diabetes (37% lower than people who drank 8 or fewer ounces of coffee daily).

• Coffee (or caffeine) is also a proven and safe performance aid for athletic performance- decreasing fatigue and increasing focus. Consume 1-2 cups of coffee one hour before exercise.

• Coffee even offers protection against gallstones in men.

So, how much coffee should you drink? Two to three 8-ounce cups are considered moderate consumption (*Stay under 200-300mg, an 8oz cup of homebrewed coffee contains 80-100 mg) Pregnant women or women trying to get pregnant may want to abstain from coffee or drink less than two cups a day. People with hypertension should observe the effect of caffeine on their blood pressure, since it may increase blood pressure.

Coffee is naturally low in calories; a cup has less than 10 calories. However, added sugar and cream can quickly increase calories. Those specialty drinks at our favorite coffee shops can quickly get in the 300-calorie range thus negating the health benefits.

So, keep it simple, don't go overboard with the cream and sugar, and enjoy the benefits of your cup (or three) of coffee!

Facebook Weekly Question Responses

Note: The following comments were made on the Cherokee One Feather Facebook page to our weekly question: For future EBCI tribal elections, should the Principal Chief and Vice Chief run as a ticket or continue to run separately?

Donna Ball: Separately

Davis Rezgirl Alana: Ticket... maybe it might prevent what's happening now from happening in the future.

Debi Bourgeois: Separately!

Henry N Susie Dover: Ticket - it would be nice to see them being and showing respected support for each other's honored positions while still having similar goals of accomplishments on behalf of the people and communities instead of what Chief Patrick Lambert has endured.

Pam E. Straughan: Most definitely separate

Driver Blythe: Separate

Angie Kephart: Will the One Feather focus and report on the management agreement between Harrah's and EBCI? This is detrimental to our Tribe. The Principal Chief is stalling on this. Ask questions, report answers.

Ashley Sessions: Ticket! They need to have the same goal in mind for our Tribe and work together. It puts a lot of stress on our people to see and know that our leaders do not support one another.

Jeremy Wilson: I will have to say separate. Reason being is because this allows us to see what each side has to bring to the table. Platforms are essential to showcase the scope the candidate is trying to take this Tribe. The Principal Chief will have his/her platform, and the Vice (Chief) will do the same. Nobody is going to always agree on things, but hey, that's life. We adult up, and come to a consensus on how to deliver efficiently and effectively. Running as a ticket hampers the idea of allowing us to exercise our votes, and deciding who we, the people, feel fits best for our future, and running this Tribe.

Wilson Johnson: You got to keep them separated.

Lois Dunston: Separate

Nathan Bush: I think elections should be ran differently. The people who accept the voter info should not work the booth of there own community. They should work the booth in a different community.

COMMENTARY

or some time, there have been rumblings of wrongdoing and violations of tribal law within our tribal government. Consequently, an investigation was initiated by Tribal Council in August of 2016 to address the allegations and concerns brought to my attention by numerous tribal employees. The results of that investigation, released January 18, 2017, were deemed confidential. Later, a redacted copy was released to the public at the direction of Tribal Council.

During both the investigation and in the interim between when the report was released to council and then to the public, I have remained largely silent on this issue, especially in regard to public comments. My reason for doing so is because it is inappropriate for any elected official to publicly comment on an ongoing investigation and any pending legal action. The investigation was an act of council and not initiated by my office. I had no working knowledge of the investigation while it was underway.

I feel that it was necessary to respond to the comments, allegations and accusations being directed toward me by the Principal Chief. My reason for doing so is that I believed that by remaining silent and not making a statement for the record, that many people who weren't as close to the situation like our tribal employees are, might interpret my silence as concurring with the Chief's remarks. With all due respect to the Office of Principal Chief, I do not concur. Below you will find my remarks made at Budget Council on Tuesday, February 28, 2017. This is my official statement as the Vice-Chief of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, duly elected by the people.

Transcript from Budget Council; Feb. 28, 2017

It has always been my belief that if someone says something about me that is not true, the best possible response is to ignore it...to not even validate it with a response. Since taking office this happens on a fairly regular basis. It just goes with the territory, and it is usually quite easy to ignore what is being said when it is clearly false and often times outlandish.

However, when the highest elected official in our tribe publicly levels allegations against me, both in this chamber and on social media, I feel that it is necessary to at least respond for the record and to tell my side of the story. I do this not because I have anything to defend. I do not. I make the following statement to simply give a response to all of the allegations being leveled against me.

During last month's regular session of council and prior there was a great deal of discussion about the findings of the Internal Audit investigation. Those findings led to a 9-3 vote by Tribal Council to begin an impeachment hearing for the Principal Chief. As you know, it was a very emotionally charged session. At the end of the session and later on Facebook, the Chief stated that all of this was happening because I am somehow in collusion with tribal council to remove him from office. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I would like to remind everyone that neither I nor Tribal Council generated the findings in the Internal Audit report. The Office of Internal Audit investigated and reported, that is what they do.

To suggest that there is somehow a conspiracy to remove the Chief would have to include not only Tribal Council and myself, but also the office of Internal Audit, the Audit Committee who approved the investigation and findings, and every person who testified in the investigation. It would also imply that the findings were fabricated, when they are in fact supported through documentation.

It has been alleged that I want to be Chief. and that is why all of this is happening. If I had wanted to be Chief. I would have run for the office. I am not so selfish or ambitious a person that I would try to oust another person from office for political gain. More importantly, I am not so selfish that I would somehow try to orchestrate an impeachment, knowing the anguish that it would cause to everyone involved, to the Principal Chief, his family, myself and my family, and to our entire Tribe. I can assure you, that no one takes even the idea of impeachment lightly.

Finally, it has been alleged that I have violated tribal law and that I too should be impeached. If a resolution to impeach me is brought before Tribal Council, you have my word that I will not protest it, but will accept whatever consequences may accompany the resolution, up to and including impeachment. Should a resolution for my impeachment be brought before this governing body, I will welcome the hearing as an opportunity to give an account for any alleged wrongdoing.

I will not divert attention from my actions or point fingers. I will not ask supporters to fill the chamber to defend me. There is no room in this hallowed chamber for conjecture, hearsay or rumors. I will stand and face the charges and accept whatever consequences may come, because that's what leaders do. They accept responsibility for their actions.

From my perspective, and I cannot speak for anyone else, all of this is about one thing and one thing only, the Internal Audit findings...nothing more, nothing less.

> Respectfully Submitted, Richard G. Sneed Vice-Chief,

Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians
