total of 67 runners and walkers came out to support the Cherokee Choices 5K on Saturday, Nov. 17. The 5K was a benefit fundraiser for the Cherokee Cancer Support Group (CCSG) dedicated in memory of Betty Dupree who was one of the founding members of CCSG. Warren Dupree, Betty's son, thanked everyone for coming out and talked about what a fighter his mother was and that she fought cancer for a long time herself. She thought the CCSG was so important to the Cherokee Community and Warren also mentioned how involved she was with all aspects of the support group.

Tara McCoy, herself a founding member of CCSG, recognized Flora Bradley, Deweese Wolfe, Stacy Rogers, Lucille Wolfe, and Lucy Teesatuskie who worked with Betty getting the CCSG going and they are still going. The group was formed in July 1998 and meets the first Thursday of every month at 5:30pm at the Safe Haven House which is located behind Jenkins Grocery on Goose Creek Road.

The program ended with Flora Bradley being recognized for her years of volunteering to the cancer support group. The money raised from the Cherokee Choices 5K will go towards prosthetics, food, gas and lodging for individuals diagnosed with cancer and needing financial help.

Cherokee Choices program related it would like to thank the following programs and people for their help: Cherokee Cancer Support Group, Warren Dupree, Tim Smith and Chumper Walker from the EBCI Recreation Department, Steve Youngdeer American Legion Post 143, Robin and Bessie Swayney, Tia Panther, Wanda McCoy, Chance Bryant, the Cherokee Police Department and Volunteer Fire Fighters, Cherokee Bottled Water, and EBCI

Park confirms Emerald Ash Borer infestation in backcountry

Park Resource Managers recently confirmed the Smokies first backcountry emerald ash borer (EAB) infestation.

According to Great Smoky Mountains National Park Biologist, Glenn Taylor, "The emerald ash borer is a 1/2 inch-long metallic green beetle that lays eggs on the bark on all species of ash trees. After hatching, the EAB larvae burrow under the bark, and create feeding tunnels that cut off nutrient and water flow to the tree. The tree can die in three to five years."

Accidentally introduced to North America from Asia, EAB was first discovered in southeast Michigan in 2002, and has spread to 16 states and two Canadian provinces killing tens of millions of ash trees. Since 2009, officials have been monitoring for the presence of EAB. Front country infestations were confirmed in June 2012 at Sugarlands Visitor Center and at the Greenbrier entrance to the Park. An off-duty park employee discovered the backcountry infestation on Injun Creek Trail in the Greenbrier area on Nov. 8. The employee noticed a pile of bark chips at the base of several ash trees. Signs of woodpecker activity on ash trees is an excellent indicator of an EAB infestation.

Paul Merten, a forest insect specialist from the USDA Forest Service in Asheville, confirmed EAB at the site by looking under ash tree bark for feeding tunnels left by the immature beetle. "The infestation is well established, probably two years old or older," Merten said.

Complete eradication of EAB is not currently feasible, but Park Resource Managers are developing a management plan to maintain public safety and protect ash trees where possible. EAB and other tree pests can be transported in firewood. Park regulations prohibit bringing firewood to the Smokies from areas that have been quarantined for EAB or other destructive pests. For more information about firewood regulations at the Smokies, visit our website at http://www.nps.gov/grsm/planyourvisit/ firewood-alert.htm

Cherokee Central Schools celebrates Native American Heritage Month

 ovember has been a special month of remembrance, thanksgiving, and celebration at Cherokee High School. Cherokee Braves have been celebrating Native American Heritage Month. Laura Pinnix, teacher of Cherokee Language at Cherokee High School, has been working with others to coordinate fun days and special events to educate students about their Native American heritage. Much like Spirit Week, students were encouraged to dress according to criteria on specific days in order to celebrate and honor traditional dress. Some of the days included: Turquoise, Leather, and Boot Day; Beadwork Day; Rock Your Mocs Day; and Period Dress Day. Students enjoyed having these fun days, and a contest was held for the month to reward the class with the most participants.

In addition to the ongoing dress participation contest, other competitions were held to encourage student interest, expression, and participation. The door contest was a competition that got everyone involved. Teachers, faculty, and staff allowed students to decorate their doors according to the theme laid out by Mrs. Pinnix: Cherokees in the 21st Century.

Door displays expressed a wide range of creativity and ingenuity. Several incorporated some form of modern technology and Cherokee syllabary. Others took a more artistic approach to show a past and present progression or perspective.

The instructions stated, "Teachers can guide and motivate, but not participate themselves." It had to be all student-generated. Not only were students creating visuals of the theme; but they were also creating literary works in the form of essays and poetry, which was another contest held for the students. The students really enjoyed working on the doors and literary works. They made each work an expression of their generation while honoring the generations that had come before them. It has been wonderful and enlightening to walk around the high school and observe their work. It allowed educators to see students put the skills and knowledge they have gained in the classroom into practice. It has been a demonstration of what they have learned, as well as what they still have left to learn. First prize went to Mrs. Via's class, second to Mrs. Ford's class, and third to Mrs. Stamper's class for the high school. The middle school winners were as follows: first place - Elizabeth Stillwell's class, second place -Kelly Driver's class, and third place -Scott Fitzgerald.

Several special events were scheduled throughout the month as part of the education and celebration process. The first big event was discussed in last week. It was the Veteran's Day Celebration held on Tuesday, Nov. 13 in the Cultural Arts Center. The Pendleton Basket Exhibit was featured in the Media Center on Nov. 8-9. The event that gained a lot of attention was the Food Tasting Day held on Friday. Nov. 16. Several men and women from the community prepared and brought in traditional food for the students to enjoy. Community workers who assisted with the Food Tasting Day were Ann Bradley, Judson Bradley, Martha Sherill, and John D. Long. The foods included bear meat, deer meat, bean bread, pork, sochanna, mustard greens, and lye dumplings. Several students, teachers, faculty, and staff tried items for the first time. All the students had a chance to eat and taste the food. Leo Pete wrote in a thank you note, "It was way better than lunch food." The last big event scheduled before Thanksgiving Break was the Pow-Wow held in the Cherokee High School Arena on Tuesday, Nov. 20 in the afternoon. Participants included students and members from the community. The Pow-Wow opened with the grand entry and presenting of the colors. The Veterans were honored, and then the dancers performed traditional dances. The array of colors and movements presented by the dancers was a beautiful display of diversity, which embodies a characteristic we should all embrace. They ranged from tiny tots to adults. Some Tribal Council representatives and Miss Cherokee Karyl Frankiewicz were also in attendance

Mrs. Pinnix is looking forward to the outside games and stickball expo that have been rescheduled for later in the academic year. She has also worked with administration to schedule an appreciation meal for all the high school staff to thank them for their continued dedication and service to the students, school, and community. It is her goal for next vear to increase the community involvement in the events and celebrations. If you are interested in participating in next November's Native American Heritage Month Remembrance and Celebration, please contact Laura Pinnix at Cherokee High School.

Big Cove Community Report

Community Watch

There have been several wildfires in our community along with Wolftown and Yellow Hill Communities. We want everyone to be on high alert because these fires appear to be started by arson. Community Watch is currently putting up a $500.00 reward for any information that leads to a conviction of the person or persons starting these fires. As of yet, no loss of life or serious property damage has occurred because of these fires, but it is only a matter of time. If you have any information, please contact the Police Department or contact Bo Taylor 736-2947.

Meet the new Teen Miss Cherokee

n Thursday, Oct. 4, the Teen Miss Cherokee Pageant was held at the 100th Annual Cherokee Indian Fair. There were six contestants running for this royalty including: Bradley Welch and Taylor Wilnoty from Cherokee High School; Whitney West from Cherokee Middle School; and Amy West, Kaniah James, and Adelia Crowe from Swain County High School.

The pageant was held at 6p.m. All the girls introduced themselves. talked about their chosen topic, and performed a special talent they had chosen. One of the highlights of the pageant was the traditional attire worn by the contestants. After the contestants spoke about their chosen topic, judges announced the winners. The 2nd runner up went to Adelia Crowe from Swain, and the two contestants from Cherokee High School secured the top two spots. The 1st runner up went to Taylor Wilnoty, and Bradley Welch was chosen as the new Teen Miss Cherokee.

Welch is the 17 year old daughter of Heather and Brent Younce and Jake Welch. She is currently a senior at Cherokee High School. Cherokee High School newspaper staff recently interviewed Bradley to get her thoughts on why she wanted to run and how she felt about becoming the new Teen Miss Cherokee. When asked how it feels to be an ambassador of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, she responded, "Really exciting! I'm still in shock and unable to put my feelings into words. It is a huge honor for me to go out and represent our tribe." She decided to run for Teen Miss Cherokee in order to be a good role model for the younger girls on the boundary and to teach them "it's okay to be yourself."

When asked what she is looking forward to and what she hopes to learn from this experience, Welch responded, "I cannot wait for the Historic Williamsburg trip, or the Washington D.C. trip as well; and I hope to learn more about my tribe." She hopes to learn more about her people from this experience. She hopes to make her people and school proud by "educating others about our tribe" and helping.

According to Welch, success is "reaching your goals, even if it is small goals." She believes she has experienced success because she has reached some of her personal goals already.

One of her goals after high school includes admittance to medical school. "Another goal would be to learn the [Cherokee] language and help teach it."

Jones-Bowman Fellows travel north to Alaska

BCI college students participating in the Jones-Bowman Leadership Award Program established by Cherokee Preservation Foundation have been developing their leadership skills over the past month by going north to Alaska and east to Greensboro and Chapel Hill. The trips were taken so the students could participate in customized leadership development programs they have developed with mentors who are also enrolled members of the EBCI.

Six Jones-Bowman fellows --Kelsey Standingdeer, Joey Owle, Savannah Hicks, Kayla Smith, Jessica Munson and Dre Jackson -- attended the 2012 American Indians in Science and Engineering Society (AISES) National Conference in Anchorage, Alaska, in early November. Among the many events and activities at AISES were more than 50 learning sessions organized into tracks targeting the professional development interests of the participants, the largest career fair in Indian Country, and unique sharing of traditional Native culture.

Kelsey Standingdeer said she enjoyed attending the career fair and speaking with representatives from organizations such as the Peace Corps and Alaska Tribal Health.

"This was a great trip where our group members bonded and learned more about what it takes to be a leader for our community," she said.

For Savannah Hicks, the AISES conference helped her decide to further her education by going to grad school. "The conference was informative about how many opportunities there are out there for Native students," she said.

"AISES is an excellent avenue for Native students and professionals to network," said Joey Owle. It provides opportunities for young leaders to develop their professional skills."

Standingdeer and Owle traveled closer to home for other professional development opportunities as well.

Kelsey Standingdeer (left) and Ruth Ponce-Batts display the "Promoting Diversity in the School Environment" poster they created and presented at the North Carolina School Counselor Association Conference.

Standingdeer and Ruth Ponce-Batts, graduate students at NC State in counselor education, participated in the North Carolina School Counselor Association Conference in Greensboro on Nov. 8. They presented a poster they created to other counselors at the event they titled "Promoting Diversity in the School Environment." It generated a lot of positive feedback from other conference attendees, who wanted to learn more about promoting diversity in their schools. Standingdeer and Ponce-Batts created lesson plans as a resource for their poster.

Joey Owle, a graduate student in soil science at NC State, attended the North Carolina Vermicomposting Conference in Chapel Hill immediately after returning from Alaska. Vermicomposting is a process that relies on earthworms and microorganisms to help stabilize active organic materials and convert to a soil amendment and plant nutrient source, and the North Carolina event is the only conference about earthworm farming and mid-to-large scale vermicomposting in North America.

"This conference excited me about the ability of the vermicomposting process to mitigate the environmental impacts of our many municipal, industrial, and agricultural wastes," said Owle. "The information I gained for this conference will help me to complete my graduate project focused on vermicomposting."

The Jones-Bowman Leadership Award Program makes financial awards to undergraduate college students committed to developing their leadership skills. The program honors the memory and leadership of Principal Chief Leon Jones and Mr. James Bowman, who were founding members of the Board of Directors of Cherokee Preservation Foundation. Each year they participate in the program, Jones-Bowman Fellows receive funding of approximately $4,000 for individual leadership learning plans they develop with their mentor. The Jones-Bowman Program will be recruiting EBCI undergraduate students for the 2013/2014 program in early 2013. Info: Alicia Jacobs 497-5550.

EBCI Communities honored at Regional Event

ASHEVILLE - WNC Communities announced the winners of the 6 3rd Annual Honors Awards Program at a luncheon held at The Grove Park Inn Resort & Spa in Asheville on Saturday, Nov. 17 with over 200 community leaders from 14 counties and the Eastern Band of Cherokee to recognize and reward exceptional community development programs across the mountains.

This year marked the 63rd WNC Honors Awards, a program built on the tradition of recognizing achievements in communities for their work on behalf of their residents. The awards are designed to serve as an inspiration for replicating community success. Community programs range from addressing basic needs such as a food pantry, an emergency shelter, thrift stores, or litter sweeps to significant programs focused on education, heritage, economic development, farmland preservation or health and wellness.

"Communities of Promise" are given cash awards of $1,000 to continue their fine work on community initiatives. Big Cove Community in Swain County was recognized for sharing information and discussing key issues such as community watch, a domestic violence program, a proposed water park in the downtown area, problems with the local and county DSS, the development of a Cherokee Constitution and the alcohol referendum. Several of these meetings that impacted the entire tribe were taped and played on the Cherokee Cablevision Channel 28. Big Cove was honored for their work on community property to plant vegetables to harvest and distribute to seniors and handicapped residents, as well as the financial support to ensure the success of this project. In addition, their community hosted their first Big Cove Day to celebrate their community and culture with stickball players, traditional games, craft vendors, silent auction and a potluck supper.

"Participating Communities" received a cash award of $250 each and are recognized for their successful projects implemented during the past year. Painttown, Snowbird, Towstring and Yellowhill were the communities with the EBCI that received this honor.

"We are honored to recognize community development clubs for their innovative programs and hard work." shared Linda Lamp, Executive Director of WNC Communities. "These groups are the key to successful rural life in our mountains and will be for many years to come." Generous sponsorships from Harrah's Cherokee Casino & Hotel, Mission Health Systems, Buncombe County Farm Bureau, Carolina Farm Credit, Duke Energy, First Citizens Bank, HomeTrust Bank, and Wells Fargo made it possible to award over $28,000 to 61 communities throughout Western North Carolina for their innovative approaches to addressing community needs.

Communities voluntarily participate in the WNC Honors Awards Program by submitting an application to WNC Communities in September. Communities are judged on projects, fund raising efforts, collaboration with local organizations or businesses, economic development and sustainability, as well as their community future and vision.

Tribal member wins theatrical awards

Neosha Pendergraft (right), an EBCI tribal member, receives one of two major theatrical awards presented recently at the Performing Arts Center in Tulsa, Okla. She was recognized with the award "Best Leading Comedic Actress" for her role of Dorothy in the "Lost Pages of Oz and the Rise of the Winged Monkeys" (a retelling of the Wizard of Oz.) She was also chosen from all the actors with Encore! Theatre Arts and presented with the Directors' Choice, a new award created this year by directors Josh and Mindy Barker. This award was for Pendergraft's contributions to live theatre by doing whatever she could to assist the company, including twice stepping up and filling in for roles at the last minute. She is a sophomore at Booker T. Washington in Tulsa and is the daughter of Shan Goshorn and Tom Pendergraft and the granddaughter of Edna Saunooke Goshorn of Whittier.

Three fires burned on reservation

The Bureau of Indian Affairs reported over the weekend a total of three separate fires on the Cherokee Indian Reservation. Since Tuesday, Nov. 20, there have been fires at three different locations.

A fire on Lambert Branch burned an estimated six acres and was 100 percent contained as of Friday, Nov. 23 according to BIA Forestry Commander James Condon.

A fire in the Big Cove Community burned an estimated 25 acres and was 95 percent as of Friday. The third fire burned around 50 acres and was 75 percent contained on Friday said Condon.

There have been no injuries and no damages to any structures, including any homes.

Condon said he has had 40 contract firefighters, 18 BIA firefighters, and a helicopter air support with five support personnel fighting these blazes.

There is a suspicion that all of these fires were set intentionally; however, there are no suspects at this time. The One Feather will report more on this as information becomes available.

Connection with Sgt. Henry

Upon doing some research, I discovered your web page where Sgt. Nathan Henry was a guest speaker for a memorial service at Acquoni Expo Center on Friday, Oct. 5.

I am wearing today, as I do every Veterans and Memorial Day (for 40+ years) my stainless steel POW bracelet. The name of my POW Soldier was Sgt. Nathan Henry 7/12/67. I purchased this bracelet in 1970 or 71. I was a young 12 year old girl at that time!

I often wondered the whereabouts of the man whose name I wear so proudly on my wrist. I've wondered if he or a family member already posses one, as I know many were produced of the same name. If he's interested I'd be happy surrender my bracelet to its rightful owner. If not, I'll continue my tradition. I just wanted him to know.

food for the Family Support Services' Christmas Store and Food Pantry.

Several members of the Santa Braves will be participating in the Christmas Parade on Saturday, Dec. 1 by pushing shopping carts through the crowd along the parade route to accept donations of food and gifts. Cherokee Athletic Director Craig Barker also helps coordinate these efforts with the students and staff of the schools. A station will be set up at the Dec. 7 home basketball game against Swain County to sell Santa Braves Stockings.

Coach Barker has also approved a station to be set up at the home basketball game against Mitchell on Dec. 13 whereby fans can attend the games with no admission charge if they bring two non-perishable food items or an unwrapped child's gift to the game.

The Santa Braves coordinate their activities with Boys Club staff including Leslie Lossiah of the Family Support Services office, Trista Welch of the CBC Printing Department, and Tiff Reed and Terry Bradley of the Club's Administration Department. If you would like more information about the Santa Braves, please call the Cherokee Boys Club's main number at 497-9101 and ask for one of these representatives.

Please see next week's Boys Club Report for additional news regarding the Christmas Store, Food Pantry and Santa Braves program.

Seven Clans Grant Council completes workshop

Photo courtesy of Sky Kanott The Seven Clans Grant Council members successfully completed an application workshop last week. The workshop allowed the youth to demonstrate their decision-making skills, and they have now developed a new way to analyze grant applications. "We are very excited to see how others want to contribute to our community youth and ultimately improve the lives of youth throughout western North Carolina," said Sky Kanott, Cherokee Youth Council program manager. WIPE

Before teeth come in, wipe baby's mouth with a moist cloth or special baby "gum" brush.

SMEAR

When teeth start to come in, around 4-8 months, start using a small "smear" of toothpaste. This is easy if you wipe toothpaste across the brush. Use this amount until your child's second birthday.

BRUSH

After your child reaches age 3, use a "pea size dab" of toothpaste. Use fluoride toothpaste every morning and night. Check after your child brushes to make sure teeth are clean!

estern Carolina University celebrated the Native American Heritage Month on November 19-20 with the 4th Annual Native American Heritage Expo at the University Center in the Grandroom. Presenters and performers participated in the event honoring the Native programs at Western and the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians community.

A highlight of the event was the luncheon performances by the Cherokee Central Schools Elementary Traditional Singers and the second and third grade students from the New Kituwah Academy. Attendees from WCU were joined by parents and relatives of the young singers to fill the Grandroom to capacity. The Academy students performed traditional Cherokee dances, led by Matt Tooni, before everyone enjoyed a great lunch sponsored by the Intercultural Affairs department at WCU.

Prior to giving the opening greeting, Chancellor David Belcher spoke with Cara Forbes, a new Freshman at WCU and current president of the Native student organization, Digali i. Chancellor Belcher also took time from his busy scheduled to look through the exhibits on display in the Grandroom.

Other presenters included Judy Castorena who spoke on the "Remember the Removal" experience she had during the summer of 2012. Musicologist Sara Snyder of Columbia University and fluent speaker Nannie Taylor of the New Kituwah Academy presented their work on translating modern-day songs into the Cherokee language in order to appeal to the changing interests of the Cherokee speaking community. Dr. Hartwell Francis and Tom Belt presented "Computer Says 'Hello': Native American Language Learning and Electronic Media." A panel, sponsored by Dr. Lisa Bloom from the College of Education and Allied Professions, "Improving Educational Attainment through Native American Culture," included Myrtle Driver, Cherokee Elder and teacher, Jonnie Walkingstick and Judy Castorena from Cherokee Central Schools. Anna Fariello, Associate Research Professor, Hunter Library Digital Programs director presented "From the Hands of Our Elders: Exploring Hunter Library's Online Resources." Anna Taylor gave a presentation on the work she does as a local Cherokee artist. She then demonstrated and instructed some 15 WCU students on the art of finger-weaving. Students from Digali I made corn bead necklaces for gifts and Educational Outreach gave gifts of vases engraved with WCU and WCU key chains. Contributions from many resources made the Expo a success!

Tribe partnering with SCC to start Fire Fighter Academy

The EBCI Department of Public Safety, in partnership with Southwestern Community College (SCC) Jerry Sutton Public Safety Training Center (PSTC), is starting an unprecedented effort to train future fire fighters. In a joint effort to address the shortage of qualified fire fighter applicants, a new program will be offered at SCC-PSTC located in Franklin.

This program will consist of a condensed, intensive 18-week course that will produce qualified firefighter applicants possessing certifications as a Level 1 Firefighter. Basic EMT, Hazmat, Wildfire Firefighter and Commercial Driver's License prep with a focus on gaining Fire Truck/Tanker endorsements.

The Fire Fighter Academy is scheduled to begin the first week of March 2013. A preliminary screening and sign-up program will begin within the next two weeks, so contact the Tribal Education Office or Travis Scruggs, Fire/Rescue coordinator at SCC-PSTC (828) 306-7045 to sign up as there are maximum class size limitations. Assistance in test preparation will be available from SCC. Varying financial aid vehicles will be available to assist in financing the program for applicants.

Cherokee Community Wellness Team teaming up with Feeding America

Feeding America is the nation's leading domestic hunger-relief charity. Their mission is to feed America's hungry through a nationwide network of member food banks and engage our country in the fight to end hunger. The Cherokee Community Wellness Team (CCWT) is fundraising with a goal to sell 100 boxes. For every 50 boxes an organization purchases, Cherokee Food Lion matches the donation. Donations will go to the Cherokee Central School Manna Back Pack Program and Cherokee families in need.

Each year, the Feeding America network provides food assistance to more than 37 million Americans who live without consistent access to food, including more than 14 million children and nearly 3 million seniors.

A donation of $5 buys a Feeding America box of food including macaroni and cheese, pasta sauce, oatmeal, white rice, and green beans You can also purchase individual Feeding America boxes at Cherokee Food Lion. The deadline for CCWT Feeding America Donations is Wednesday, Dec.5 at 5pm. Make checks payable to Cherokee Food Lion.

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT FROM THE PRINCIPAL CHIEF EASTERN BAND OF CHEROKEE INDIANS

The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians is moving forward to administer more federally funded social welfare programs to enrolled members. In October of this year the federal administrations for Child Support Enforcement and Temporary Assistance For Needy Families (TANF) authorized the EBCI to administer both of these federally funded programs.

The Tribal Child Support Enforcement program, formerly administered through a tribal consortium, is currently in full operation and re-located its offices to the old Transit building at 117 John Crowe Hill Rd. The TANF program will be administered from this same location beginning January 2013. The public can expect an official notice of TANF operations in the One Feather, Tribal Council and Channel 28. Until that time, any TANF assistance sought by tribal members may still be applied for through the county Departments of Social Services. The EBCI and the Counties are in close collaboration as the Tribe moves forward with the administration of these and other social welfare programs.

The Tribe is committed to the tribal administration of other federally funded social welfare programs, including child protective and foster care services, and is currently in the planning process. Until the Tribe announces the official federal authorization for the administration of the child protection and foster care programs, it is important for the safety of children that members of the Tribe and members of our tribal community continue to report to the county Department of Social Services for all suspected cases of child abuse, neglect and dependency.

UNTIL FURTHER OFFICIAL NOTICE: ALL SUSPECTED ABUSE, NEGLECT AND DEPENDENCY REPORTS MUST BE MADE TO COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES. THE COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES WILL CONTINUE TO HAVE AUTHORITY TO ADMINISTER CHILD PROTEC-TION AND FOSTER CARE SERVICES FOR TRIBAL CHILDREN UNTIL OFFI-CAL NOTICE HAS BEEN ISSUED BY THIS TRIBE.

Expect a public work session on the progress of the development of a tribal child protection and foster care program by January 2013. Announcements of this work session will be posted in the One Feather and on Channel 28. 11/29
