Cherokee delving into solar energy

By SCOTT MCKIE B.P. ONE FEATHER STAFF

f you drive by the back of the Cherokee Preservation Foundation building on Monday, Dec. 12, you may ask yourself, "what are they putting on that building?"

Well, they're solar panels. The Foundation is having 14 solar panels installed on the back of their building in an effort to go green and to spread the word locally about the potential for solar energy. FLS Energy, a solar energy systems installer based in Asheville, will install the panels.

"It is a viable, green source of energy," said Daniel Martin, senior program association with the Foundation in charge of environmental sustainability programs. "Across Native cultures, it is about leaving things how you found it and being at balance with nature and the things around you. Because of how contemporary culture is, you need to take more advanced steps to create that balance and some of those things are solar cells, windmills, things of that nature."

This initiative is one of several that have arisen out of the Generations Qualla Sustainability Effort, a program started by the Foundation in 2008 to foster environmental improvements on the Qualla Boundary.

To date, the Foundation has funded over two million dollars in grants relating to Generations Qualla programs whose focus has been energy efficiency, recycling and establishing green building standards in Cherokee. One initiative funded in the most recent grant cycle in September is for the EBCI Building and Construction program to hire a person to coordinate and implement the Tribe's Strategic Energy Plan. The plan was developed after the Tribe received a grant in 2007 from the U.S. Department of Energy.

"Taking care of the environment is really the essence of Cherokee and other tribes when you look at things," said Susan Jenkins, Foundation executive director. "But, we also have some resources that other communities don't. It is a little more expensive at first, but, in the long run it's the thing to do."

She said it is her hope that the use of solar energy will spread throughout Cherokee and believes that it will be a draw to the community. "I think people would come and want to be in a community that is really conscious and not just talking about it but actively involved in good stewardship."

The Foundation building isn't the first in Cherokee to get solar panels. The Ginger Lynn Welch Complex was fitted with 14 solar panels earlier in the year that are used to heat the "It is a viable, green source of energy. pool at the Cherokee Life Center.

"Since heating the water is a major expense in any building (residential or commercial), we wanted to help reduce the cost operation and maintenance at the Ginger Lynn Welch Complex," said Brandon Stephens, Deputy Housing Officer who said future plans include adding more panels.

"In the summer, the panels could potentially heat up to almost 400 degrees," he said. "On a winter day, it was 27 degrees and cloudy and the panels heated to 128 degrees."

According to Martin, several other buildings are slated for solar panels including the Cherokee Welcome Center, the Boundary tree visitor's center and the downtown visitor's center.

Part of the EBCI strategic energy plan has been to conduct energy audits at tribal buildings to look for ways to cut costs and save energy in the process.

Two Climate Corps Fellows from the Environmental Defense Fund were in Cherokee over the summer helping with the audits.

"We are working to make the tribal buildings and the reservation as sustainable and energy efficient as possible," Erin Evans told the One Feather in June. "At the end of these audits, recommendations are given on how to help improve the energy consumption and what the payback period for making these improvements would be as well as the overall energy and monetary savings that can be achieved."

Tribe set to repatriate, rebury historical remains found in TN

wo sets of historical Cherokee remains will be put back to rest as a result of a recent repatriation effort by the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians. The remains are being repatriated after being found many years ago by the Tennesssee Valley Authority (TVA).

"This particular repatriation includes two historic Cherokee individuals," said Miranda Panther, EBCI NAGPRA officer in the Tribal Historic Preservation Office. "One individual was discovered and subsequently removed from the historic Cherokee Overhill town of Toqua in modern-day Monroe County, Tenn. in 1976. The other individual was found in 1967 and removed from the Citico site, which is also in modern-day Monroe County."

Panther related the remains were originally found "during the course of archaeological field excavations conducted as part of the construction of the TVA's Tellico Reservoir."

She stated that a reburial location has not been finalized. "In accordance with the EBCI Treatment Guidelines for Human Remains, it is the preference of this office that remains be reburied as close to the original resting place as possible, or, barring that, within line of site. Our goal is to adhere to these guidelines as well as provide adequate safety and protection for the remains in an effort to deter looting." toric preservation officer, said the Tribe has been working with the TVA on various issues for ten years. "There have been a number of previous repatriations from TVA to us in the past. We have reburied all human remains and funerary objects we received, most at the Sequoyah Birthplace Museum reburial facility, but some at other locations closer to the materials' point of origin."

Townsend said the remains in this recent case have actually been repatriated jointly to the EBCI, the Cherokee Nation and the United Keetoowah Band of Cherokee Indians – the three federally-recognized tribes of Cherokees. The EBCI took the lead on the project.

Panther stated the repatriation is tentatively set to be complete by early spring of 2012.

Information from the Department of Interior states that TVA officials, along with McClung Museum professional staff and representatives from seven historical southeastern tribes, including the three Cherokee tribes, made "a detailed assessment of the human remains".

The DOI states that both sets of remains were curated at the McClung Museum at the University of Tennessee – Knoxville. No funerary objects were with the remains found in 1976 at the Toqua site, but "white, tubular glass beads" were found with the remains at the Citico site but are now missing.

The consultation period on the repatriation is set to end on Dec. 29 and if no further claims are made, the repatriation will go forward.

Local Disabled Veterans fly fish Cherokee's waters

he local chapter of Project Healing Waters Fly-Fishing (www.projecthealingwaters.or g) hosted a veterans fishing outing on Cherokee's trout waters this past weekend for more than 20 veterans. Veterans from as far as Camp Lejeune traveled many miles to participate in the first annual "Christmas Classic" before winter's bite set in.

Armed with fly rods, waders and super small artificial flies, the vets and local guides chased after the Oconaluftee and Raven Fork's skittish trout on both Saturday and Sunday, stopping only for lunch and to change flies.

The event was based at River's Edge fly shop in Cherokee with Robert Blankenship, of the Cherokee Fish and Game Management, providing exceptional water and fishing conditions. Saturday's fishing was slower than normal due to cold winter water temperatures, but everyone hooked at least one, with a few over 20 inches coming to the net. The Steve Youngdeer American Legion Post 143 let the veterans use their hall for the Saturday evening dinner, with Harrison's providing the catering.

Fishing commenced again on Sunday with overcast skies, but fish were once again caught. After many heartfelt best wishes, handshakes, and promises to stay in touch, the veterans and their guides began the long journeys home. The support from River's Edge and Robert Blankenship was invaluable and PHWFF cannot thank you enough.

Project Healing Waters Fly Fishing ("PHWFF") is a national organization that uses the healing powers of our streams and fly fishing to help disabled veterans. Founded in 2005, there are over 100 chapters in the United States and Canada, including the local Western North Carolina chapter. PHWFF events include fly-fishing on local waters, and hosting fly tying events as well. Participants often enjoy the camaraderie of being around fellow veterans as much as the actual fishing and tying events. For more information about upcoming PHWFF events and how you can help support this great program, email the local contacts at wncphw@gmail.com, or call (828) 550-8487.

National Park to host Holiday Homecoming

Park neighbors getting together to pick and play in the new Oconaluftee Visitor Center.

Great Smoky Mountains National Park will host a Holiday Homecoming at the new Oconaluftee Visitor Centeron Saturday, Nov. 17. Park staff and volunteers will provide hands-on traditional crafts and demonstrations from 10am - 1pm. Children and adults will have the opportunity to make a corn shuck doll, buzz button, and cinnamon ornaments to take home, or if they wish, to hang on the visitor center tree.

From 1-3pm, there will be an acoustic old time jam session focused on holiday music. "Musical expression was and still is often a part of daily life in the southern mountains, and mountain music is strongly tied to the Smokies history and culture," said Lynda Doucette, Supervisory Park Ranger, Oconaluftee Visitor Center. She continued, "We would like to invite musicians to play traditional Appalachian tunes such as gospel songs and traditional ballads as they were played on the porches in the old days."

The visitor center will be decorated for the holiday season and will include an exhibit on Christmas in the mountains in the past. Hot cider and cookies will be served on the porch accompanied by a glowing fire.

The Oconaluftee Visitor Center is located on Newfound Gap Road (U.S. Highway 441), two miles north of Cherokee, N.C. For more information call the visitor center at (828) 497-1904. All activities are free and open to the public. Generous support of this event is provided by the Great Smoky Mountains Association.

Martin Fiddle Band to play Tsali Care

SUBMITTED By SARAH SNEED

The Martin Fiddle Band will present a concert of Mountain Music, highlighted by the musical techniques of Manco Sneed, in the activities room of Tsali Care Center on Friday, Dec. 16 at 3pm. The event is a return engagement for Wayne and Margaret Martin and their son Joseph, who delighted Tsali Care residents with a program of well-loved tunes in 2009.

Wayne and Margaret have many good friends of long-standing in Cherokee and their musical repertoire includes many numbers favored by generations of local musicians and audiences. Wayne has mastered the fiddle techniques of Manco Sneed, who is nationally recognized as one of the outstanding Appalachian fiddlers of the 20th century. The Martins are very pleased to perform at Tsali Care Center, where Manco's daughter, Dakota, is a resident and their music has been so warmly appreciated.

Margaret, who plays banjo, and guitarist Joseph are members of the Cherokee Nation. Joe recently graduated from UNC-Asheville with a Bachelor of Science degree in Biology and awaits word of admission for graduate studies in cell biology.

Alpha Video Creative wins award for Harrah's Cherokee video wall

The Digital Screen Media Association (DSA) has announced that Alpha Video Creative was a winner in the inaugural DSA Crown Awards. Alpha Video Creative received the Silver Medal in the Point of Wait category at a ceremony held recently for the content they created for Harrah's Cherokee Casino & Hotel.

The Crown Awards were established to recognize the impact of excellent content in out-of-home environments through the use of digital signage, self-service kiosks, and mobile technology. The award-winning content was designed for a video wall located behind the hotel front lobby desk that is one LCD high by 14 LCD's wide. The fourteen LCD's form one seamless video wall with a unique resolution of 26880x1080. The dazzling eye-catching video is an interpretation of the Cherokee Creation story of a giant raptor flying over the landscape creating valleys, streams and the Great Smoky Mountains with a touch of his wings.

'We are very excited that Alpha Video Creative won a DSA Crown Award for the amazing project they created for Harrah's Cherokee Casino & Hotel. The award winning video wall has already delighted many of our guests and provides an element of Cherokee history in a creative manner," said Leeann Bridges, VP of Marketing at Harrah's Cherokee Casino & Hotel.

Literacy Center News - Dora Reed Center

SUBMITTED By PAT SWAYNEY and ERNESTINE LOSSIAH

Literacy is an important part of influencing a child's interest in learning to read and spending valuable time with family. Reading not only opens up the mind, creativity, and imagination but helps to develop a love for reading to last a lifetime. The literacy program also develops a literacy schedule weekly which is given to the Education Manager and to each classroom.

Our children are introduced to the purposes and use of the library by providing developmentally appropriate books and literacy activities. The program is also set up to spend time with all the Head Start and Infant Toddler rooms increasing knowledge of sounds, print, words, letters and to identify phonemics and rhymes, as well as the parts of the book. Our program also provides literacy enrichment activities for the children helping them to gain an overall comprehension for reading.

These are expanded to the home through parents reading to their children. The literacy center intimates a Book Club program that is an extension of active literacy goals for each of them thru the 50 Book Club and the Backpack Program. Each child receives an intuitive for each club completed. Public relations are done by sending a photo of the child to the local paper and the program newsletter.

Our program also offers parents a chance to purchase literacy materials for their homes through Book Fairs. They have been very successful. We also collaborate with the local public libraries in different activities they provide such as an extension of the literacy services. The local Reading Rover comes on site to provide story telling activities for the classrooms. Teachers are invited to check out resource materials on the Reading Rover as well as parents. Please feel free to stop in and check out our literacy center.

Pat is the literacy coordinator and Ernestine is the operations manager at Cherokee Tribal Childcare Services.

BabyFace has room for 30 families

The BabyFace program still has open enrollment for the 2010 Comparison Group. There is room for at least 30 more families to sign up.

The 2010 Requirements and benefits include: must have an EBCI tribally-enrolled baby born in 2010, only meet with a Parent Educator once a year, child is enrolled in the Dolly Parton Imagination Library, and you will receive a $25.00 Wal-Mart gift card each year.

Healing and Wellness Coalition hosting Winter Solstice celebration

The Healing and Wellness Coalition is hosting the Wellbriety Winter Solstice celebration Thursday, Dec. 22 at 5:30pm at Birdtown Community Building. Please bring something to be shared for the potluck meal.

The event will honor the late Beverly Griffin who brought the Wellbriety movement to Cherokee and worked tirelessly for many years promoting it and initiating events at the changing of the seasons each year. The event also celebrates those who are in recovery and supports those working for healing and wellness.

Wellbriety is sobriety combined with wellness, a balance of the emotional, mental, physical and spiritual aspects of our lives. The Wellbriety program developed by Don Coyhis with White Bison incorporates the 12 steps of AA in a circle to conform with Native American beliefs that everything is connected.

DOI names Indian Trust Admin. and Reform Commissioners

WASHINGTON - Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar named five prominent American Indians to a national commission on Thursday, Dec. 1 that will undertake a forward-looking, comprehensive evaluation of Interior's trust management of nearly $4 billion in Native American trust funds.

"This commission will play a key role in our ongoing efforts to empower Indian nations and strengthen nationto-nation relationships," Secretary Salazar said in naming the appointees to the Secretarial Commission on Indian Trust Administration and Reform. "The five members each bring extensive experience and knowledge to the commission, and I look forward to their findings and recommendations for how we can fully meet our trust responsibilities to the First Americans."

"Our trust administration must be more transparent, responsive, customer-friendly and accountable in managing these substantial funds and assets," Deputy Secretary of the Interior David J. Hayes said. "Building upon the progress made with the historic Cobell Settlement, this commission will help usher in a new era of trust administration."

The members of the Commission are:

• Chair - Fawn R. Sharp is the current president of the Quinault Indian Nation, the current President of the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians, and a former administrative law judge for the State of Washington and Governor of the Washington State Bar Association.

• Dr. Peterson Zah, an established leader in Native American government and education circles, was the last chairman of the Navajo Tribal Council and the first elected President of the Navajo Nation.

• Stacy Leeds, a citizen of the Cherokee Nation, is Dean and Professor of Law at the University of Arkansas School of Law and former Director of the Tribal Law and Government Center at the University of Kansas School of Law.

• Tex G. Hall, current chairman of Three Affiliated Tribes and past President of the National Congress of American Indians, is currently serving as Chairman of the Inter Tribal Economic Alliance and is the Chairman of the Great Plains Tribal Chairmen's Association.

• Bob Anderson, an enrolled member of the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe (Bois Forte Band), has six years of experience working at the Department of the Interior from 1995-2001 as Associate Solicitor for Indian Affairs and as counselor to the Secretary of the Interior on Indian law and natural resource issues. He is currently a Professor of Law and Director of the Native American Law Center at the University of Washington, and holds a long-term appointment as the Oneida Nation Visiting Professor of Law at Harvard Law School.

Interior selected the members after a public solicitation for nominations and, in consultation with trust beneficiaries, evaluated the candidates on the basis of their expertise and experience, including in government and trust, financial, asset and natural resource management. Members were selected in accordance with the Federal Advisory Committee Act and they will serve without compensation.

Within 24 months, the Commission is expected to complete a comprehensive evaluation of Interior's management and administration of the trust assets and offer recommendations of how to improve in the future.

Salazar established the framework for the Commission in a 2009 Secretarial Order , which addressed the Department's future responsibilities for trust management after the Cobell Settlement agreement set forth resolution of a class action lawsuit regarding the U.S. government's trust management and accounting of individual Native American trust accounts and resources. The Cobell Settlement will be effective when all appeals are resolved favorably.

On trust lands, the Department manages about $3.9 billion in trust funds and more than 109,000 leases. For fiscal year 2011, funds from leases, use permits, land sales and income from financial assets, totaling about $400 million, were collected for about 384,000 open IIM accounts. About $609 million was collected in fiscal year 2011 for about 2,900 tribal accounts. There are currently 156,596 individual Indian land allotments and more than 4.7 million fractionated interests.

SANTA BRAVES AND BOYS CLUB DEPARTMENTS PARTICIPATE IN ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARADE

Several Boys Club Departments including the Administration Department, Family Support Services, the Graphics Department and the Construction and Facilities crew teamed up to build a float for the 2011 Annual Christmas Parade. The theme of this year's parade was the Giving Spirit and the Club's float was titled "Sporting the Giving Spirit".

The Santa Braves were a key part of the parade as they helped with the float and also drove grocery carts through the crowd taking up food, toy and cash donations to assist the Christmas Store and Food Pantry sponsored by the Family Support Services' office.

Thanks to the following people who helped make the parade project a success: Meshay Long, Silas Reed-Littlejohn, Brent Gunter, Sabrina Wooten, Derrick Ledford, Avery Mintz, Kendall Toineeta, Shadow Long, Rhiannon Hull, Cemonia Sutton, Gabe McMillan, Ray Smith, Chenning Lossiah, Forrest Stamper, Steven Diggs, Leslie Lossiah, Colby Lossie, Debora Foerst, Brennen Foerst, Aria Foerst, Ray Kinsland, Craig and Melissa Barker and girls, Food Lion, Stephen Little, Chad Carver, Charles Arch, Jacob Chastain, Tuff Jackson Charlotte Littlejohn, Jesse Sneed, Jasper Wolfe, Dodie Crowe, Richie Wolfe, Trista Welch, Barbara Jones and Tiffani Reed. If we missed anyone, we apologize; just know that your time, your materials, your thoughtfulness and your contributions were greatly appreciated.

The Santa Braves will continue to collect toys and food and will sell Christmas "stockings" to benefit these projects. See any Braves winter sport athlete to purchase your stockings or to obtain additional information. Donations will be accepted until Tuesday, Dece. 20. Donations can be left at the Cherokee Boys Club's lobby, the Qualla Library, Mountain Credit Union and the school offices. If you have any questions, call Barbara Jones at 497-6092; Trista Welch at 497-5539; or Tiff Reed at 497-5027.

Remember the 1st Annual Santa Braves Christmas Bazaar to be held on Thursday, Dec. 8 and Friday, Dec. 9 at the Ceremonial Grounds. Proceeds from this sale will also benefit the Christmas Store and Food Pantry.

SCHEDULE CHANGES

There will be no Board Meeting for the month of December since this meeting time has traditionally been set aside for the Board Appreciation Lunch and Frell Owl Award presentation. If emergency resolutions are presented by the Dec. 14 deadline for approval; there will be a short meeting after the luncheon.

There will also be no Safety Committee Meeting for the month of December. Safety Meetings will resume the third Thursday of January (1/19/12) at 11:30 a.m.

Tribal members help Mars Hill to record season

The Mars Hill Lions had their best football season in 26 years and several EBCI tribal members helped the cause. Taylor Teesateskie and Jaron Ayers, both freshmen from Robbinsville High School played on the team that won the regular season South Atlantic Conference title and earned a playoff berth.

Teesateskie is a running back and Ayers is a defensive back. The Lions also had another tribal member on the sidelines as Cherokee High-alum Madison Crowe is a member of the cheerleading squad.

The Lions ended the season 8-3 with a 58-32 loss to North Greenville in the second round of the NCAA Division II playoffs on Saturday, Nov. 26. The team broke school season records for Most First Downs (266), Most Offensive Yards (4,960) and Most Points Scored (343).

CHS students attend college and career-readiness events

By MARY MASON

Cherokee High School juniors and seniors have been involved in many college readiness events during the Fall 2011 semester. Some activities focused on college and career awareness and options available to students post graduation, while others engaged students in the process of applying for and attending college.

With a joint effort between the Guidance Department and the GEAR UP staff, a college preparation check list was developed and implemented. Juniors and seniors were guided through the checklist during the school's weekly Advisor-Advisee program. This checklist promoted awareness among students about the steps they must take during the coming year in order to be college ready.

In the early part of September, all seniors were invited to an information session with Laura Smith and Sandy Owle of Tribal Higher Education. The presenters explained in detail what dates and important information students would need to gather and submit in order to gain financial support for their post-secondary pursuits.

On Sept. 19, 62 seniors travelled to SCC's main campus and participated in the CARACOA College Fair, which was open to all students in western North Carolina. At this time they had an opportunity to talk with college admissions officers, collect information about individual schools and sign up on mailing lists. More than sixty colleges and universities were represented from all over the Southeast U.S., providing students with a wide array of options for post-secondary studies. CHS Students once again travelled to SCC's main campus on Nov. 4. This time, 35 juniors attended the Career Exploration Day event. The day was designed for career awareness. Based on previously made choices on careers of interest on an inventory survey, students attended break-out sessions. Each session offered presentations by persons in selected fields, hands-on activities and discussion groups. A pizza social was provided by SCC at the end of the sessions. Students were able to interact with those attending from other Western North Carolina high schools.

Some seniors chose to take advantage of applying to select schools during the College Foundation of North Carolina's College Application Week in mid-November. Others have researched and inquired about priority filing dates and completed applications on their own.

Mary is with the GEAR UP College Readiness Program.

CHS students motivated for college entrance exams

The Cherokee High School GEAR UP staff has worked closely with the school's guidance counselor, administrators and teachers to promote college entrance and placement exams. Sixty-one percent (61%) of the 80 seniors at the school have signed up for the ACT, SAT and/or the Accuplacer. Of these 49 students, 17 had previously taken at least one type of college entrance exam as a junior or sophomore. Students retaking an exam say they were motivated to gain a higher score. The fee waivers that Southwestern Community College's GEAR UP and Upward Bound programs along with Western Carolina University's Talent Search programs, provides to qualifying students assures them of the opportunity for improvement. Several students have already received notification of college acceptance, and in the case of a few, there have been more than one acceptance letter in the mail. The list includes NC State, Mars Hill, Tuscolum, Queens, ETSU and Brevard.

BabyFace holds Traditional Night

Cherokee BabyFace had its Tsa-la-gi Traditional night on Monday, Nov. 28. Several families showed up despite the snowy weather. Shown above are Dean, Charleigh and Jennifer Standingdeer working on corn husk dolls as instructor Jasmine Lambert helps. Families enjoyed traditional food, traditional language activities and even had a chance to make a corn husk doll. Parent Educator Alissa Lambert related she would like to thank all the families who came out. "A special thanks also to all who helped make the night a success: the Hope Center Staff, Stacy Rogers, Alyssa Sampson, Jasmine Lambert and Patsy Lambert; the night would not have been a success without the help of these individuals!"
