Uktena Underground

Cherokee men in the 21st Century

> By BROOKLYN BROWN One Feather Reporter

HEROKEE, N.C. - Brothers Cory Junaluska and Kyzik Wachacha, both members of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians (EBCI), have started a new podcast and clothing brand called Uktena Underground. The pair aim to provide a platform for their tribal community and the rest of Indian Country through discussing contemporary Native issues by holding "raw, intuitive" conversations, as Junaluska describes them, with their guests.

Uktena Underground, named after the infamous Cherokee legend, "Uktena," the horned serpent, started because of Wayohi (Wolftown) Anesto (Stickball). "I was playing for Wolftown and wanting to come up with some designs for merchandise for the team, and I just wasn't tech savvy at all. I'd been back from the military for some time now, and at the same time [Kyzik] was going to Stanford and he had just come back home. I just reached out and I was like, 'Hey, can you help me with this real quick?" Junaluska recalled. "He came over and was like, 'Oh, it's easy. Do this.' And I'm like, 'Okay. It wasn't easy, but that's dope.' From that we started divvying up ideas. I'd try to talk him through this picture that I'm thinking of, and he'd capture it perfectly."

Wachacha said he had always dreamed of starting a clothing brand, and the podcast developed out of their creative collaboration in merchandising.

Junaluska credits Wachacha with taking the initiative to get the podcast started.

"I mentioned that we should start a podcast, and you always hear of people having these phenomenal ideas but there's no action being taken, and I was in that same kind of rut," Junaluska said.

"He was like, 'Well, let's record one then.' And I'm like, 'Wait, right now? We don't have microphones, cameras, none of that.' And he just says, 'Use your iPhone, bro.' And that's our first one. Our very first podcast posted was on an iPhone, and it was just a 'stickball explained' episode, and it's growing from there." Uktena Underground says they are letting the podcast evolve organically, learning just as much in the process as they are hoping to share with the world. "I'm learning more about Cherokee culture and certain things I didn't know about. For example, with Levi West coming on, he brought up a lot of good points about the mounds and the pottery or the crafts or the language revitalization. Going in depth with those conversations really broadened my perspective," Wachacha shared.

Junaluska said their guests bring a unique Cherokee perspective to the episodes. "There's just a plethora of knowledge that you don't realize certain individuals have. Like Levi West, I always knew he was really inclined historically and culturally, but just sitting down and having a discussion in an enclosed room where we can just talk about that is one of my favorite moments so far."

Junaluska and Wachacha have ideas for their clothing and podcast that centers Cherokee masculinity and identity. "We do have two or three images that we would like to use. It started off with our granddad's handprint. He meant a lot to us, pretty much raised us as far as our father figure. So, we have his handprint, just his hand in some paint on a piece of paper, and we've always kept it close," Junaluska said.

Wachacha said he developed the artwork for their logo as an homage to the late Jason Reed. "He was a phenomenal male figure in our life as well," he said.

Cherokee masculinity has become an underlying theme of the podcast. They say it was unintentional, but they are leaning into it. "I would say personally, throughout my journey in life, I haven't had that many conversations about that at home or with friends or with male authority figures in my life. And it just kind of ties in with the 'underground,' within the title; these are conversations that aren't spoken about a lot, right? So, providing a space for certain topics to be discussed is important," Wachacha said.

Uktena Underground wants to be a space for the Cherokee community and other Indigenous communities to speak freely. "In the long term, we want to expand to other tribes. We wanted to give everybody a space to talk about whatever they feel needs to be talked about," Junaluska said.

"It's a space or an opportunity for people who want to voice their opinions about certain issues. Feel free to reach out and to have a platform to speak about certain things," Wachacha said, Uktena Underground has a You-Tube channel, Facebook page, TikTok, Instagram, and website: https://uktenaunderground.com/

The Care You Trust

What Matters Most to YOU Matters Most to Us.

Hospice isn't about dying.

It's about making sure your days are lived to the fullest. We ask our patients and families, "what's most important to you?" and make your priorities, our priorities. We devise a plan of care that incorporates your goals. For some people, that means they want to spend as much time as possible with family, or attend a loved one's wedding. For others it means prioritizing their faith, honoring their culture, or pursuing passions and interests. And still others want to be sure to write letters, close chapters, or document their life.

Your level of comfort, involvement of care, coordination of travel and other considerations are all part of the conversation when we work with you and your family to plan your care. Many people are eligible to receive our services sooner than they might think and calling Four Seasons as soon as you are eligible is key to ensuring your days are spent on what matters most to you.

Nantahala Town

Sponsored by the Qualla Boundary

Historical Society

The people of Nantahala Town opposed the Treaty of New Echota and worked to avoid deportation, after the army arrived in the summer of 1838. Led by Oochella, much of the community fled, avoiding capture by hiding in the dense rhododendron thickets of the Nantahala Gorge.

After removal, Oochella and many of his followers joined the Cherokees at Qualla Town and helped to found the Wolf Town community, which became a township of the modern Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

Dear Friends of the Cherokee Children's Home,

I hope this letter finds you well. As we approach the holiday season, we at Cherokee Children's Home are working to ensure that the children in our care experience the joy and magic of Christmas, no matter their circumstances.

We are reaching out to you, as a valued participant in our golf tournament, to ask for your support in sponsoring the children's Christmas celebrations this year. Your contribution will help provide gifts, Christmas dinner, and other festive essentials for the kids. We want to ensure that every child receives the same amount of gifts, creating a sense of equality and community for all.

We understand that not every sponsor can contribute and we are also incredibly grateful for any amount you feel comfortable giving. Every donation, no matter the size, will make a difference and bring joy to these kids. We are aiming to secure sponsorship for 15 children to ensure we are fully prepared, even if new children join us during the holidays. Any remaining funds will go toward our birthday fund, ensuring that each child feels special on their birthday as well.

We deeply appreciate your consideration and generosity during this season of giving. If you would like to contribute, please feel free to reach out to us at 828-359-5575, or you can donate directly via PayPal using the QR Code below.

Those 3 NDN's: Giggles and ghosts

By BROOKLYN BROWN Cherokee One Feather Reporter

herokee, N.C. - Humor is one of the seven Cherokee core values. Friends Daltun "Falls a Lot" Watty, Justin "Running Snake" Lambert, and Gatlin "Squats to Pee" West have enveloped that core value fully with their YouTube channel, "Those 3 NDN's". They are a ghost hunting trio who take on the spookiest local haunts with humor as their ultimate weapon. All members of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians (EBCI), Those 3 NDN's hope to bring laughter and entertainment to their tribal community and beyond - and maybe prove that ghosts exist along the way.

The channel began two years ago because of three co-workers who became friends. "We were on the back of the trash truck, and I was sitting there thinking, 'Wouldn't it be funny if we started a YouTube?' But I was like, 'Let's be different about it, though. Let's do paranormal, but we make it our own just being funny and being us," Watty said.

"It was supposed to be just like us three, chilling and hanging out, but then we actually started being paranormal investigators. About the second episode, we started going through the footage of it and seeing stuff on camera and it was like, 'Okay, we're really doing this. We need equipment."

With paranormal investigating becoming a centerpiece of their channel, what started out as fun became a point of connection to their community.

Bridge and the dormitories at the Unto These Hills Outdoor Drama were their most thrilling experiences so far. "At Helen's Bridge, we heard her cry. We heard her scream and cry, and there was unknown calls, and Watty received a voicemail with weird noises.

West said he thinks the community enjoys their videos because of nostalgia and relatability. "We're just exploring the places that they grew up knowing stuff happened at and we're going out and getting it on camera. And we just make them laugh."

Watty wants the channel to reach larger audiences for awareness of Cherokee people and culture. "My goal is for us to grow because I want to show the world that Cherokee still exists. I want to bring our culture out, too, with the videos that we've made like the Drama or the Village and stuff like that. I want to show people we're still here," he said.

Lambert said he wants to expand to other reservations to see the similarities and differences of their paranormal histories. Those 3 NDN's can be found on YouTube and Facebook.

New business coming

The EBCI (Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians) Commerce Division presented the keys from the former Pow Wow Gift Shop in downtown Cherokee, N.C. to the new owners on Wednesday, Oct. 23. The property is on Cherokee's main street (Hwy 19), and the building will be renovated to accommodate Pop's Smokehouse. Owners project that it will take six to eight months to recreate the restaurant in that space, but they plan to have a food truck at the location in a couple of weeks. Also, their plan is to have an axe throwing amenity in the restaurant which could be available within a few months. Shown, left to right, are RJ Arneach, EBCI Enterprise Development Commercial Property specialist; Kristy Hamilton, restaurant manager; and Justin Hamilton, Monica Hamilton and ValGene Hamilton Jr., owners. EBCI Natural Resources Department and USDA Forest Service seek EBCI citizens' input for restoring JP, Tilĭ'—American Chestnut—to the Qualla Boundary

By Jaime Vanderleuvenson, Michelle Baumflek, Tommy Cabe, Stacy Clark, and Michael LaVoie

The Eastern Band of Cherokee L Indians' (EBCI) American chestnut restoration initiative is entering a phase of community outreach. The EBCI Natural Resources Department is currently working to implement restoration activities within Tribal forests—including the potential restoration of the American chestnut-and is looking for EBCI citizens' input. The USDA Forest Service is also interested in EBCI citizens' perspectives about chestnut restoration more broadly. These two entities are working together to reach as many EBCI citizens as possible with the goal of approaching American chestnut restoration on Aniyvwiyah (Cherokee) homelands in a way that reflects EBCI values.

American chestnut and the EBCI:

American chestnut has been a culturally significant tree for Aniyvwiyah for thousands of years and continues to be part of EBCI culture today (example, chestnut bread). However, much of Aniyvwiyah's relationship with American chestnut has been altered through the loss of mature trees from the chestnut blight. Few people remember American chestnut before the blight, when it constituted one-quarter to one-half of the trees in the forest. The EBCI Natural Resources Department is hoping to connect with folks who have historical and contemporary viewpoints about American chestnut restoration.

Who is involved?

The EBCI Natural Resources Department partnered with the USDA Forest Service to fund an ORISE Fellow (Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education) to assist with community outreach. The ORISE fellow is Jaime Vanderleuvenson (formerly, Van Leuven), who previously conducted the American chestnut survey of Tribal Reserve (Cherokee One Feather June 20, 2023). Jaime is working with the EBCI Natural Resources Department to engage EBCI citizens in reflecting on how American chestnut is important to the EBCI and sharing their perspective about how the EBCI Natural Resources Department should approach restoring this tree to the Qualla Boundary and within broader Aniyvwiyah homelands.

A team is advising Jaime with this work, including Tommy Cabe, EBCI Forest Resource Specialist, Mike LaVoie, EBCI Natural Resources Director, Michelle Baumflek, Forest Service Research Biologist, who has worked with the Tribe on culturally significant plants since 2016, and Stacy Clark, Forest Service Research Forester who specializes in American chestnut and white oak. Additionally, Tyson Sampson, EBCI Earth Keeper and Community Researcher, has been advising Jaime on how to be in respectful relationship with EBCI citizens.

Why restoration now and why your voice is important:

Since the chestnut blight in the early 1900s, American chestnut is considered "functionally extinct" on the landscape—meaning it is still present, but rarely able to grow large enough to produce nuts. This is why Chinese chestnuts have mostly replaced American chestnuts in the EBCI cultural food, chestnut bread (Chinese chestnuts are larger, but less sweet, so some sugar is often added). So, why are we talking about restoring American chestnut to the Qualla Boundary now? Because the methods the Natural Resources Department engages in could impact citizens' relationship with this culturally significant plant.

Traditional plant breeding methods:

Organizations have been developing blight resistance in American chestnut trees for over 100 years. Since the 1980s, The American Chestnut Foundation has "backcrossed" trees with Chinese chestnut, creating hybrids that are as mostly American, but may have some blight resistance from the Chinese chestnut-these are the trees in the EBCI chestnut orchard (Cherokee One Feather Oct. 27th, 2021 edition). Other organizations like The American Chestnut Cooperators' Foundation, approach American chestnut restoration with only American chestnut trees.

Incorporating Genetically Modified Organisms:

In 2005, researchers at the State University of New York developed a transgenic tree (genetically modified or GMO), coined "Darling 58" which is genetically engineered with a wheat gene for blight resistance. Darling 58 is currently under regulatory review by the United States Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) to determine if Darling 58 poses risks to plant and animal health. The Environmental Protection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration have regulatory oversight of Darling 58 before it can be released into the wild. An APHIS approval will allow these trees to be available for planting in forests without restriction, including areas adjacent to or within the Qualla Boundary.

Aniyvwiyah stewardship of American chestnut:

Prior to the chestnut blight, Aniyvwiyah engaged in a reciprocal relationship with American chestnut for millennia. American chestnut provided nutrition for Aniyvwiyah while Aniyvwiyah provided ideal growing conditions for the trees to flourish. Some of these historic land stewardship practices could be integrated into the Natural Resources Department's plans for stewarding EBCI forests for American chestnut.

How to get involved and share your voice:

Innovations in science and technology have made this a crucial time for hearing EBCI perspectives about American chestnut restoration. Share your perspective with the EBCI Natural Resources Department. What about American chestnut is important to you? What methods do you think should be employed to steward Aniyvwiyah homelands for American chestnut?

Jaime is hoping to connect with each of the community clubs to share information about the project and distribute optional surveys in which people can contribute their perspective. You can complete this survey now here (https://forms.gle/FmQ32iqt-2fRMxrtL9).

Follow-up listening sessions will provide an opportunity for folks to engage in discussion about the project with their community. Places, dates, and times to be determined and will be announced on the EBCI Natural Resources Department's Facebook page.

Contact Jaime or the EBCI Natural Resources Department directly with questions: jaime.vanleuven@usda.gov, 603-440-9812.

A Tribal Legal Process

*This is the flow from a regular call that comes through Dispatch. Charges arising from Investigations typically involve closer OTP involvement; however, patrol is also expected to consult with OTP in certain situations.

CIPD is dispatched to a call for service.* CIPD responds and, if applicable, arrest is made, and criminal complaint is filed.

Initial Appearance (IA) before a magistrate where Defendant is given a copy of the warrant and complaint, bond is set, Defendant is given a court date. Defendant is held in custody or released with conditions.

Defendant appears before the Judge/Court to be arraigned and advised to his/ right to counsel.

Defense counsel and/or OTP argue bond/ release conditions, if needed, and Defendant is given another court date.

In the event that Defendant's matters have not already been resolved by plea, Defendant's case is set on a Pretrial calendar for counsel to argue any motions

Defendant pleads guilty, or is tried before a Judge or Jury and found guilty or not guilty.

If he pleads guilty or is found guilty, Defendant will be sentenced by a Judge. While sentencing recommendations may be agreed upon by the prosecutors and defense counsel, it is ultimately the Judge/Court that orders the sentence.

Defendant will either serve active time in jail and/or have the jail time suspended and placed on supervised/unsupervised probation under the jurisdiction of Cherokee Tribal Marshals.

Prosecutor and Court now have access to review the criminal complaints, warrant, and bond conditions. OTP begins gathering discovery and information on the case.

OTP obtains discovery (reports, photographs and other information) from CIPD in connection with case.

OTP makes discovery available to defense counsel for review.

OTP has continued discussions with defense counsel regarding information provided and ultimate resolution of the case.

At the request of the Cherokee One Feather, Cody White provided this flow chart outlining the typical process by which an arrestable action or criminal complaint is handled by our tribal law enforcement and judiciary system. To clarify CIPD is Cherokee Indian Police Department and OTP is Office of Tribal Prosecutor. We thank Mr. White for supplying this educational tool.

FAITH COMMENTARY What motivates you?

By Lamont H. Fuchs, Ed.D. (Lamont Fuchs is the author of "Preacher Spurs", Christian Faith Publishing, Meadville, Pa., 2022)

What drives you to do what you do? Let's begin with a few questions, and you will soon figure out where this Spur is headed. 1. Do you volunteer to serve so you will become noticed or recognized by others for your work?

2. Do you want others to congratulate you on your completed job? 3. Are you looking for a promotion when you strive to outperform your competition?

4. Do you enjoy being on stage for the applause and cheers of the crowd?

5. Do you speak or perform so that others will praise your ability and talent?

6. Do you dress for success or to attract the looks of others? 7. Do you tell stories of success and boast of your experience and achievements so others will look up to you?

8. Do you drop names of notoriety or of influential people you have worked with, related to, or met, so others will consider you their peer or to become more popular? 9. Do you seek recognition, congratulations, or aggrandizement after leading a successful project? 10. Do you seek leadership roles because you want to be in charge? 11. Do you want others to look up to or idolize you to make you feel good?

Get it? One or more of those might have hit you between the eyes. You have already begun to rationalize with, "What's wrong with that?" The answer to that question depends on why you do it.

Read Colossians 3:2

Can you define the following words: pride, arrogance, narcissism, egotism, conceit, and vanity? I can with one word...sin. Does any of these sins cloud your judgment? Do any of these sins separate you from God as you become your idol? These are dangerous grounds, and satan uses these sins to slip in the cracks of our mentality and thought processes. You may get praise, make more money, get a raise, applause, or recognition for your talent, looks, performance, or work. But is that why you do it? That's the tricky question for yourself. Why? Read Deuteronomy 8:17-18

Since we were very young, the world has drilled these attitudes into our heads. You've been told you need to compete, you must get the prize, you have to be first, and you have to be better than the next person. Ever feel that pressure from your parents, peers, coaches, or teachers? We all have at some time in our lives. We see it as encouragement and love from those who want us to succeed and produce. To become the best we can be. But then, the praise becomes a drug, the desire to receive it becomes our addiction, and soon, the talents and gifts we received from God to glorify Him get lost in even thinking about Him at all. Read Proverbs 16:2

Related story: remember Whitney Houston? One of the most talented voices people have ever heard. Her story is tragic, but she falls right into this narcissistic kind of pride and getting sucked down by satan. An entire world watched as she rose to heights unseen before her time and then self-destructed and died from a drug overdose. She used her God-given talent and beauty at the beginning of her career as a Gospel singer, glorifying Jesus. Then came fame, money, pride, more fame, and ultimately death. How did she lose her way? Her story is here on Liveabout (2009).

How do we unload all this pro-

it, but has satan reinforced it into self-destructive pride? Note that God hates pride and those who become haughty in serving Him. Read Proverbs 8:13 and Matthew 22:37

You may think you should quit all that work, performance, ability, reward, acceptance, and praise. Not at all. You can be all that and humble, too. Read Roman 12:2

Your humility can show through, and you will receive even more blessings. God gives all good things, and everything He gives you is good. Give God the credit. Glorify Him in all that you do and the reason for doing it. Praise Him! Shout to others for what He has done for you and how He has blessed you. He gives success; you didn't earn it. He provides. We have heard this many times in our Christian discipleship education. Remind yourself whenever you embark on a project that will thrust you into a spotlight that the shining glory belongs to God. Read Matthew 6:1

We motivate others when we continually give praise, adulation, and rewards to others around us. We are supposed to. But are we complicit in making them eager for the attention and wrong reasons? Let's pray we are not. We want to lift up others, and we should like to promote those around us and remind them to give credit where credit is due. That is how we motivate and encourage our children, friends, and fellow workers. Shape your praise of others in a way that reminds them it is God that blesses them for having made the achievements or done so well in their performance. We can do our part to remind ourselves and others we love that God is first in all our lives.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

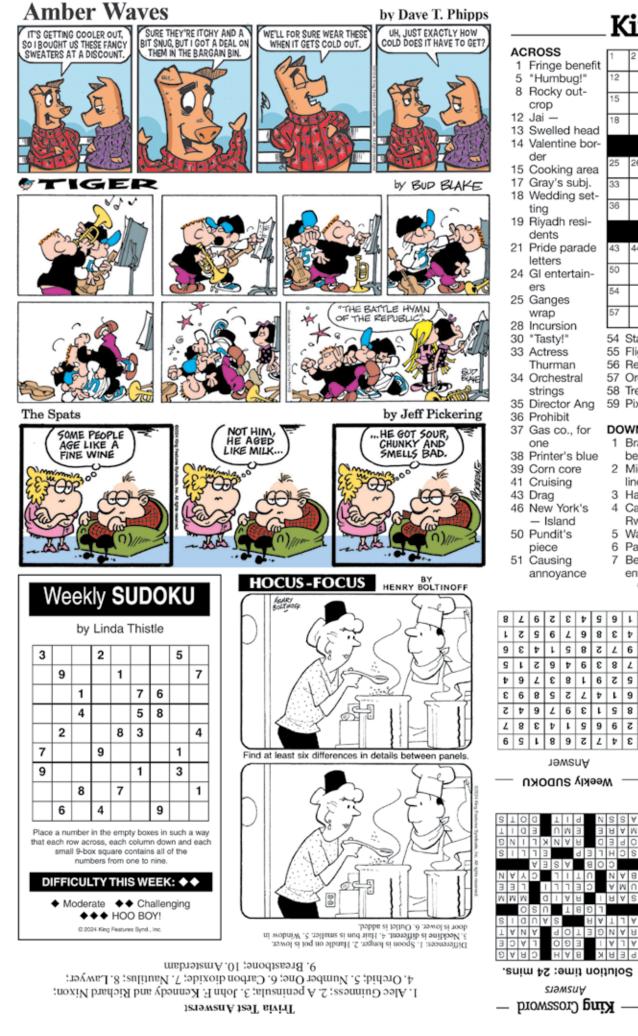

There is no fear in love. But perfect love drives out fear, because fear has to do with punishment. The one who fears is not made perfect in love.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A once-harmonious relationship appears to be hitting some sour notes. Spend some time together to see why things have gone off-key. What you learn might surprise you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You feel a need to make some changes. Good! You can do it on a small scale (some new clothes, for example) or go big and redecorate your home and/or office.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Control your tendency toward early boredom. A situation in your life might be taking a long time to develop, but patience pays off. Stay with it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel like you're on an emotional roller coaster this week. Don't fret; just ride it out and let things settle down. A Pisces shows understanding.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Do something different for once: Compromise. A stubborn stand on an important issue proves counterproductive. You need to be open to new ideas.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A friend offers advice that you perceive as an act of betrayal. But before you turn against the messenger, pay attention to the message itself.

A concert will be held featuring Nate Coffey and the Moody Bridge Band. Inflatables, vendors, Jeeps, and a 5K race that will begin at 9 a.m. at Mark Watson Park. Info: Jackson County Veterans Office (828) 631-2231

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A year of riding an emotional pogo stick finally settles down. Use this calmer period to restore frayed relationships and pursue new opportunities.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your words can sting, so be careful how you respond to a friend's actions. A calm approach could produce some surprising facts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful about whose secrets you're being asked to keep. They could impose an unfair burden on a straight arrow like yourself.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While you prefer taking the tried-and-true course in life, be adventurous this week and accept a challenge that can open up new vistas for you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your strong sense of justice helps you deal with a job-related situation. Stay with your principles. A Sagittarius emerges as a supporter.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You need to build a stronger on-thejob support system to persuade doubting colleagues that your innovative proposals are workable.

BORN THIS WEEK: You might not say much, but you're capable of extraordinary achievements. You are a loyal friend and a devoted person to your family.

Pandemic fraud and scams

The COVID pandemic has been a pot of gold for thieves and scammers who want to exploit the critical needs of hospitals and doctors. As usual, however, the criminals aren't too bright.

There was the medical supply company that conspired to sell masks that were misbranded, trying to pass them off to hospitals as genuine National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH)-approved N95 masks. The thieves gathered up their fake masks from miscellaneous sources and shipped them off at inflated prices. When NIOSH tested the masks, the scam was discovered because the masks couldn't pass the filtration tests.

A whole alphabet of federal agencies, including the VA's Office of Inspector General, came together in this effort to investigate and prosecute the thieves. Between the price gouging, the fake masks and the interstate commerce, the authorities had a good case for pandemic-related defrauding and conspiracy.

When the case goes to court, selling misbranded medical equipment alone could net the thieves a fine of a half a million dollars. Adding in the interstate commerce and price gouging could tack on additional fines and years in prison.

Then there was the guy who tried to sell millions of dollars of personal protective equipment to the VA. The scam was pretending the company was an authorized distributor of the PPE. They even generated a fake website and email address. The goods that were sent out were non-conforming and the masks were counterfeit.

Another guy stole gloves and PPE and sold them for a cool million dollars. Another scammer stole the relief funds he received, diverting $180,000 of it for his own use.

In one scam, however, it almost wasn't worth the thief's time: A woman was given two paycheck protection loans for two businesses she owned except the didn't own a business. All she got out of the scam was $41,000.

When are they going to learn? The thieves eventually get caught, and we have the VA OIG and other alphabet agencies to thank for it.

Keep your pets safe this Halloween

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Can you remind your readers that Halloween can present many dangers to pets? Thank you. — Clara in Atlanta

DEAR CLARA: You're absolutely right! While it can be lots of fun to celebrate Halloween with your pet, owners need to protect them from risks that can endanger them during the fun.

If you're having a Halloween party, consider sending your pet to a friend or family member for the evening or give them a safe place to hang out while the guests are there — like your bedroom or a back room. Make sure they have a comfy bed or blanket, water and toys.

You can bring a pet out to meet the party guests if they are well socialized and calm in group settings. Once your dog or cat (or rabbit or bird or iguana) has said hello to everyone, take them back to their safe room.

Costumes on pets are so much fun, but be sure that the costume isn't constrictive and that wearing it doesn't cause them anxiety. A few minutes at a time is recommended — enough time to get some cute photos for your Instagram.

Keep all candies, cookies and sweet treats out of reach of your pets. Chocolate is especially dangerous for dogs. Likewise, if you have party snacks out, keep them up high. Avocado, onions and grapes are also dangerous foods for dogs and cats.

If you're trick-or-treating with your pet, keep them on a leash at all times. That includes cats! It's dark, the streets are unfamiliar and there are lots of strange characters walking around. Your pet can get scared and run off.

With advance preparation, you can have a safe, fun and happy Halloween!

Final Grade: Drain lines are installed and the yard is graded to give positive drainage away from the foundation along with seed and straw to prevent erosion.

Asbestos Assessment: This assessment is performed on any home on trust lands owned by EBCI members and is being fully remodeled or demoed for replacement of a new home as the permanent residence.

Asbestos Abatement: The abatement is performed on any home that is positive for asbestos. The analysis is sent to Environmental, TCP and to the Land Fill for EBCI members replacing the old home with a new home as their permanent residence.

The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians Exclusion List

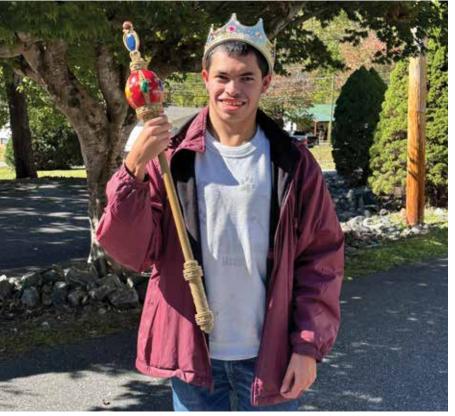

The Tribe hereby declares that the power to exclude is an inherent and essential part of Tribal sovereignty. It is indispensable to the Tribe's autonomy and self-governance. Further, it is a natural right of the members of this Tribe, through their Tribal leaders and codified Tribal law, to exercise the power of exclusion to protect the Tribe's natural, economic, and cultural resources, and to protect the health, safety and welfare of Tribal members (Cherokee Code C 2.1.e). Anyone banished by the EBCI is excluded from all Tribal lands and must vacate all tribal lands. If an excluded person is found improperly on Tribal lands will be treated as a trespasser and appropriate legal action shall be taken against them.
